Housing Sole Remedy for Slums, Say D. C. Officials

Enforcing Health Rules Would Throw 5000 Into Street, Senate Group Told

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

More housing is the immediate key—and there is no other complete alternative—to wiping out Washington slum conditions, District officials told Congress yesterday.

Testifying before a Senate District Health Subcommittee, Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West said the Commissioners had broad enough authority to handle sanitation and condemnation proceedings in the city's slum areas.

But stricter enforcement of health regulations must wait until there is more housing for evicted persons to move into, West emphasized.

842 Complaints Filed

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), also was told that the District Board of Condemnation for Unsanitary Buildings now has a backlog of 842 complaints on violation of health regulations in substandard dwellings.

These cases are not being pressed rapidly, Carlin H. Whitesell, Assistant Engineer Commissioner said, chiefly because "possibly 5000 persons would be thrown out on the street with no place to go."

Senator Smith, who described her "roundtable" housing conference as "extremely valuable," said she may recommend that the District Committee appeal to the Senate Appropriations Committee to allocate funds to the new fundless District Redevelopment Land Agency.

Whitesell, representing the city heads, laid before the Smith subcommittee a 6-point slum clearance program which was tentatively agreed to earlier by the Commissioners at a District Building meeting yesterday morning of health officials and city housing agencies.

It called for:

1. Fuller enforcement of existing health codes as applied to unsanitary buildings, if correlated with assurances that suitable hous-

Ruhland Hints At Screening Of Negroes

District Health Officer George C. Ruhland said yesterday that he is "almost ready" to suggest screening of Negroes planning to move to Washington to determine whether they would be a "drug on the market."

Dr. Ruhland made the statement in a slum clearance conference before the District Commissioners and offered it as a partial solution of the District's slum problem. He repeated virtually the same statement later before a Senate District Subcommittee.

"What I am about to say is political poison, I know," said Ruhland. "But colored people are the ones who primarily decide the health conditions in the District.

"John Doe comes up here from Alabama. He makes more money than he could at home and finds Washington a paradise. So he notifies all his relatives and they come up here to live with him and there is overcrowding.

"What we need is an education program for the colored—prompted by themselves—to show them that they are better off where they are with elbow room and a place to grow greens."

Calder Named Army Secretary, But Says He Hasn't Accepted

Curtis Ernest Calder, New York utilities magnate, was reported yesterday by an "unimpeachable source" to have agreed to accept the post of Secretary of the Army within 60 days.

A few hours later, however, Calder told reporters he had not accepted the job "now or 60 days from now."

Word of his appointment and acceptance was revealed at the White House just after Defense Secretary Louis Johnson emerged from an appointment with President Truman.

Wire services carried the story without qualification, and later the United Press identified its source as Secretary Johnson.

At the same time, the question of a successor to Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan—who resigned this week after aiming an angry blast at Secretary of Defense Johnson for canceling the Navy's super aircraft carrier—cropped up.

A source, equally authoritative to that making the Calder announcement, declared that Jonathan Daniels would not succeed Sullivan. Yet later in the day, this was somewhat discounted by a visit to the White House by Daniels, who has been repeatedly mentioned for the post.

The same source telling of Calder's acceptance said that Assistant Army Secretary Gordon Gray will become Undersecretary of the Army—now vacant—and be acting Army chief until Calder arrives.

It was reported in Washington that Johnson and Calder conferred here Monday. It has been an open secret that Johnson has urged Calder to take the Army post.

Meanwhile Royall announced that he will join the New York law firm of Dwight, Harris, Koegel and Caskey, which will have a Washington office. Royall's name will appear second in the name of the firm.

Royall, commended for a "grand job" by Johnson, received a 19-round salute yesterday from an honor guard in dress blues on leav-

Dr. Sweeney to Post Offered to Quit Gallinger; Dr. Stebbing

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, superintendent of Gallinger Hospital for the past four years, will resign about May 15, he disclosed yesterday.

As a result, District Health Officer George C. Ruhland announced he has proposed promotion of two Gallinger officials to the posts of superintendent and chief of staff. He said the proposal for consolidating the two as one $15,000 post has been dropped.

Dr. Ruhland said the position of superintendent has been offered to Dr. P. A. E. Stebbing, present assistant superintendent and medical superintendent.

The chief of staff position has been offered by Dr. Ruhland to Dr. Joseph F. Fazekas, chief medical officer for the past year. This post is occupied by Dr. P. S. Rossiter, who tendered his resignation last September, but has stayed on awaiting replacement.

Commissioner Guy Mason, who supervises the activities of the Health Department, left the city yesterday. His approval would be necessary before the changes could be effected, Dr. Ruhland pointed out.

Dr. Sweeney, now 66, said he plans to take a rest and then accept a private post. He has been eligible since 1945 for retirement pay from the Navy with the rank of captain, but has been unable to draw this while on the District payroll. His District pay is $10,000 a year, plus $1500 in lieu of quarters.

He came to Gallinger during World War II to remain for "the duration and six months."

Doctor Sweeney said he informed the Commissioners "about a year ago I would resign if they could find a replacement." Now that several persons have been under consideration, he said he felt it proper to resign.

Dr. Ruhland said Dr. Sweeney's resignation has not been asked, and that the retiring official told him he had "found something more to his liking."

Dr. Ruhland said the consolidation project has been dropped because "we have got to have service that will go on" and "good men like Dr. Talbot (Dr. William B. Talbot of New York City) grew tired waiting for us to offer something positive and accepted something else."

Dr. Stebbing confirmed that he had accepted the superintendent's position. Now 46, he was graduated from Georgetown University in 1930 and interned at Gallinger Hospital. After two years of private practice here, he became admitting officer at Gallinger and later chief resident physician.

He resides at 800 North Carolina ave. se. with his wife and two children.

Dr. Fazekas, 39, entered the Albany, N. Y., Medical College after 10 years of research in physiology and pharmacology. He worked in a Boston diagnostic clinic for several years. He came here as chief medical officer in July last year. He resides at 1 Stockton rd., Silver Spring, with his family. The position pays $9975 a year.

Eavesdrop Evidence Barred, Gambling Case Is Dismissed

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday dismissed gambling charges against Louis W. Dove, 40, and Dr. Max Schwartz, 54, in District Court.

Earlier the pair had been described by Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly as "among the biggest gamblers on the East Coast."

On March 31, Judge Schweinhaut granted a defense motion to suppress alleged evidence obtained by two detectives who eavesdropped outside a window.

He said he dismissed the case when it came before him for trial because the Government had tendered the same evidence ordered suppressed and because there was no other evidence offered.

Dove and Schwartz were arrested last October 6 in an apartment at 2151 California st. nw. The arresting officers, Detective Sergt. James Roche and Pvt. Angelo Bonaccorsy, said that over a period of several days they had listened outside the bathroom window of the first floor apartment and had heard bets being accepted over telephones inside.

The officers said they broke into the apartment without a search warrant on October 6 after they overheard one of the men say to his companion: "The janitor just called and says someone in snooping around outside."

In a statement accompanying his dismissal verdict, Judge Schweinhaut said he had made a test, with counsel for both sides present, in the alley beside the building to determine if conversation could be heard from within the apartment.

"Nothing intelligible could be heard," said the Judge, in explaining why he had agreed to the defense motion to suppress the evidence. This ruling also had the effect of making inadmissible as evidence anything seized inside the apartment by Roche and Bonaccorsy.

Coplon Trial Gets Account Of Her Quest

G-Man's Affidavit Quotes Papers in Bag To Prove She Sought Report on Red Spies

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Judith Coplon was accused yesterday of trying to obtain a "top" secret Government report on Soviet and Communist spy activities in the United States.

The accusation was contained in a sworn statement by Robert R. Granville, a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which was submitted at the 27-year-old girl's espionage trial in District Court.

It was Granville who arrested Miss Coplon, then a Department of Justice analyst, and Valentin A. Gubitchev, 32, a Russian engineer on the United Nations staff, on the night of March 4 in New York City.

Listed Papers Found

His affidavit listed the papers found in Miss Coplon's handbag that night, including one in which she told of trying to get the top secret FBI report "which I described to Michael."

Miss Coplon, talking to reporters after court adjourned yesterday, laughed heartily at this and said it referred to the Archangel Michael.

Archibald Palmer, her counsel, said that the reference to Michael was all part of an "allegory" that was to go into a novel Miss Coplon was planning to write. He and Miss Coplon led reporters to a Bible and pointed out to them the references to the angel Michael in Revelations.

The statement found in Miss Coplon's handbag after she and Gubitchev were arrested, according to FBI Agent Granville's affidavit, follows:

"I have not been able (and don't think I will) to get the top secret FBI report which I described to Michael on Soviet and Communist intelligence activities in the United States.

"When the moment was favorable, I asked Foley where the report was (he'd previously remarked that he'd had such a report); he said that some departmental official had it and he didn't expect to get it back.

115 Pages Long

"Foley remarked there was nothing 'new' in it. When I saw the report, for a minute, I breezed through it rapidly, remember very little.

"It was about 115 pages in length; summarized first Soviet 'intelligence' activities, including Martens, Lore, Poyntz, Altschuler, Silvermaster, et al.

"It had heading on Soviet U.N. delegation but that was all I remember. The rest of the report I think was on Polish, Yugo, etc. activities and possibly some info on the CP, USA."

Miss Coplon, before her arrest, was an analyst in the Foreign

Russia Asked To Be Exact On Proposal

West Allies Believed Calling for Written Statement to Avoid Misinterpretation

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Russia was asked yesterday to set out in unmistakable terms her position on lifting the blockade of Berlin and the proposed four-power meeting on the German crisis.

It is believed that the United States, Great Britain and France seek a written statement on the Russian position, to attempt to avoid any fuure claim of misinterpretation.

American Ambassador Philip C. Jessup, who has been conducting what previously had been secret negotiations with Jacob A. Malik, Soviet delegate to the United Nations Security Council, conferred with Malik for 95 minutes yesterday in New York.

Informing France and Britain

The State Department later announced:

"In a statement to the press yesterday, the Department noted that Mr. Jessup would have a further talk with Mr. Malik in continuation of the informal conversations which had taken place regarding the possible lifting of the Berlin blockade and a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

"Mr. Jessup saw Mr. Malik today as planned and communicated to him informally the position of the three governments. The governments of France and of the United Kingdom will of course be informed concerning this conversation."

There was no indication as to how soon Russia would reply to this latest communication. State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said if either the United States or Russia "thinks that there should be another meeting, they will inform those concerned and a time for such a meeting will be set."

Private Talks Disclosed

On Monday, Tass, the Soviet news agency, disclosed that Jessup and Malik had been holding private meetings since February 15, when Jessup first approached Malik in New York. Tass said that if a date for a four-nation meeting on German questions could be agreed upon, Russia would lift the rail and road blockade it imposed on Berlin last June 19, if the Big Three's counter-blockade of the Soviet zone was lifted at the same time.

The State Department, the next day, said there had been five such meetings and that if the Tass report were correct, and there were no qualifications to the Russian terms, they would be acceptable. But there were still "certain points requiring clarification," said the department.

Jessup's visit yesterday was to resolve these officially undisclosed issues.

The Western Allies have stated that they will not agree to halt or postpone their efforts to establish a West German government as a condition to a conference on Germany. They have insisted that the Russian blockade must be lifted before there can be four-power talks.

It was disclosed yesterday that on Tuesday night Assistant Secre-

Some 'Flying Saucers' Still Unsolved, Air Force Reports

More than a year's exhaustive investigation leaves some of those flying saucers still an unsolved mystery, the Air Force reported yesterday.

It said that a special technical intelligence unit, aided by civilian laboratories and scientists, had run down most of the published—and some unpublished—accounts of "saucers" and had found reasonable explanations for a majority of them.

But as to others—some 40 per cent of the 270 incidents reported here and abroad—the Air Force said:

"No definite, conclusive evidence is yet available that would prove or disprove the possibility that a portion of the unidentified objects are real aircraft of unknown or unconventional configuration."

The lengthy report on "The Project Saucer"—heretofore secret—disclosed these previously undisclosed facts about the mysterious incidents:

1. A military pilot was killed while chasing one of the "saucers" over Fort Knox, Ky., a year ago. While circumstances indicate he "blacked out" due to lack of oxygen at high altitude, mystery still surrounds the object he was pursuing and what happened to him.

2. While the great majority of "saucers" reported to Air Force intelligence occurred over the continental United States—some 30 sightings were reported over Holland, Turkey, Gadbjerk, Denmark; Lake Holland (at the Yugoslavia-Greece border), Norway, Sweden, Asuncion, Paraguay, Alaska, Newfoundland, Hawaii and the Philippines.

3. A pilot sighted a "continuous glowing white light" over Andrews Air Base, Md., last November and reported it "took definite evasive action" as he attempted to close in, flying at very high speed. But "the mystery was cleared up when the object was identified positively as a cluster of cosmic ray research balloons," said the report.

4. The much-publicized report report of Lieut. Gov. Donald S. Whitehead of Idaho, who declared he saw one of the saucers, was concluded by Prof. Joseph A. Hynek of Ohio State University to be either the planet Saturn or Mercury.

The Air Force considered all possible explanations of the phenomona, and concluded:

"The 'saucers' are not a joke. Neither are they a cause for alarm to the population. Many of the in-

Chiang, in Shanghai, Urges All To Fight Communist Tyranny

By Tom Lambert

Shanghai, April 27 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek arrived in this Red-menaced city today and urged all Chinese to fight "Communist tyranny."

His dramatic appeal came as two Communist columns moved toward Shanghai and another lanced deeper to the south to cut off the last rail lifeline to the rest of China.

The retired President said he spoke only as a citizen.

Shanghai was menaced by two columns bearing down on this greatest Asian metropolis from the west and northwest. Already they had taken Soochow, 50 miles to the west, without a fight.

The Shanghai garrison command said Nationalist troops had taken up new positions six miles east of Soochow and that fighting was continuing. Thus the Reds might be only 44 miles west of Shanghai.

A third Communist column was slashing southward from Soochow for the rail junction city of Kashing. Kashing controls the railway from Shanghai to the escape port of Hangchow. This is the only rail line from Shanghai still in Nationalist hands.

A report that Red guerillas had taken Putung across the Whangpoo River from Shanghai's business heart was in error. Communist guerillas were operating in the area but they had not taken over.

Garrison headquarters said Communist forces on the west were fanning out from Soochow. One column moved from Soochow along the railway that leads to Shanghai. The garrison asserted 5000 Reds were killed at Soochow. It said fighting still was in progress.

Other Red forces moved south from Soochow along the highway toward Kashing, 50 miles southwest of Shanghai. Kashing's fall would cut the railway to Hangchow, fortified city another 50 miles down the line.

The garrison said "crack gov-

Shift of Fliers From Marines Reported Next

Johnson Is Described As Planning Transfer To Navy and Air Force

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson was reported yesterday to have marked down abolition of Marine Corps aviation as "next on his list" for revamping the armed forces.

Well-informed Congressmen said that a directive had been prepared which would "gradually" transfer Marine airmen to either the Air Force or Navy and give the Air Force their wartime roles and missions.

Hearing the widespread reports, many members said they would ask for a showdown on Johnson's reorganizing powers.

Navy supporters on Capitol Hill protested the new Defense Secretary's action in canceling construction of the 65,000-ton super aircraft carrier, the U. S. S. United States, but will not attempt to upset the action now, leaders declared. There are too many foes of the big carrier to press the fight on this score, it was said.

However, they agree with retiring Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan—who resigned Tuesday with a blast at Johnson—that the carrier action was only the beginning of an attack to take away the Marines and naval aviation from the Navy.

Johnson, however, has told several ranking members of Congress that he has no intention of transferring the Marine Corps to the Army, but considers the existence of three air forces — Air Force, Navy and Marines—to be "wasteful duplication."

They say that a directive trans-

India to Stay In Empire as A Republic

Accepts King as Head Of Commonwealth but Ends Allegiance to Him

By Ned Russell

London, (Thursday), April 28 (NYHT).—India will become a republic and still remain in the Commonwealth, it was announced here today.

This was agreed in a new policy declaration by the Prime ministers of Britain, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan and Ceylon, and the External Affairs Secretary of Canada.

Under the declaration India accepted the King as "the symbol of the free association of" the Commonwealth's "independent member nations" and, will regard him as the "head of the Commonwealth." But India abandoned any formal allegiance to the Crown.

The other seven nations, including Pakistan, formally acknowledged India's impending status and, at the same time, reaffirmed their own positions, including their common allegiance to the crown." They plan to drop the term "dominion" and the declaration dropped the term British from "British Commonwealth of Nations."

The declaration said the eight countries "remain united as free and equal members of the commonwealth of nations, freely cooperating in the pursuit of peace, liberty and progress."

The declaration represented a victory for Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India, who was eager to retain empire trade preferences. It was also a major achievement for Prime Minister Clement Attlee, who prevented the breakaway of India with its vast resources and purchases.

Market 'Burglar Suspects' Caught

Reports that burglars were breaking into the Western Market, 21st and K sts. nw., led police late Tuesday to the apprehension of two suspects—aged 7 and 8.

Police said the boys confessed breaking into the Mott Theater, 26th and M sts. nw., a week ago, by sliding down a chimney. Their loot both times included only pennies and candy, police said.

The junior thieves gained access to the market by shinnying up a drain pipe and through a second-story window.

According to police, the 8-year-old has been absent from school for 52 days.

Soviet Economist Eats Words, Wishes He'd Done So Sooner

Moscow, April 27 (U.P.).—Russian Economist Eugene Varga, who had disagreed sharply with the official Soviet interpretation of western politics and economics, today retracted his "errors."

He said the "harsh criticism" by the Communist Party and press of his book, "Changes in the Capitalist Economy as a Result of World War II," was "necessary and correct." He added that he would write a new book correcting the mistakes in the first.

Writing in the magazine Economic Problems, Varga admitted he had not "acted cleverly" in failing to recognize immediately, as "other comrades did," the correctness of the party's criticism of his work.

"But better late than never," he said.

Varga had written that he felt the post-war capitalist' economy was not facing an imminent crisis and that an armed conflict between the western powers over competition for world markets was improbable.

Probe Is Ordered In Ship Sinking

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, April 27 (U.P.).—Maritime police today ordered an investigation into the grounding and breaking in two of the 20-million-dollar British liner Magdalena on its maiden voyage.

The 17,000-ton Royal Mail luxury liner, equipped with every modern navigational aid, broke apart and sank yesterday as it was towed into Rio Harbor after being freed from a reef on which it had grounded Monday.

There were no fatalities nor serious injuries among the 594 persons aboard.

Ratification Plea Stresses Mutual Aid Obligations

State Secretary Says Big Military Force in Europe Is Not Planned

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Dean Acheson yesterday asked Congress to approve the North Atlantic Pact as well as a proposed $1,450,000,000 military assistance program, to assure "security today and henceforward."

Acheson was the first witness at the opening of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's hearing into the pact. It plans to take up the military assistance and mutual aid program later.

Yesterday's afternoon session was enlivened by an angry row between Committee Chairman Tom Connally (D., Texas) and two Republican Senators, not members of the committee. The two, Forrest C. Donnell (Mo.) and Arthur V. Watkins (Utah), had asked permission to take part in the hearing.

Less Free Than Before

Acheson's testimony was marked by several important assertions:

1. In answer to a query by Connally, he declared that a Senator who voted for the pact would "be less free to vote against a military program than he was before." In explanation, he offered:

"There is something in this treaty which requires each member to accept the principle of mutual assistance." However, he continued, if a Senator thinks for some reason or other that the United States is not in a position financially, economically or militarily to help the other signatories to the pact, then that Senator has the right to exercise his judgment accordingly.

2. That he was authorized by President Truman to assert that no new signatories would be added to the North Atlantic Pact without the "advance and consent" of the Senate. Each new addition, he said, was considered by Mr. Truman as a new treaty.

Only by Unanimous Consent

3. He also asserted that no additional signatories would be taken into the pact except by unanimous consent of all present adherents. This statement was in answer to a question as to prospects for accepting Spain as a member later.

4. That ending of the Berlin blockade or any "ups and downs" in the cold war would not lessen the need for the two agreements. He said that to permit that to influence our decisions would give the Soviet the power to determine our actions in Europe.

"I feel that it would be a most unwise way of proceeding," he said. The Nation should go ahead "calmly" he said, and not be influenced by any war of nerves.

5. That the pact does not conflict with any provisions of the United Nations, but that, instead, it supplements U. N. and conforms to the U. N. Charter.

6. That the pact and military assistance program do not "contemplate" a large military force in Europe, but are designed merely to enable Western European nations to modernize their defense forces.

He asserted that the arms program also does not call for sending any American forces overseas

Senate Committee Approves Bill to Lift Oleo Tax

Another major hurdle in the drive to remove Federal taxes from oleomargarine was cleared yesterday when the Senate Finance Committee approved a House-passed bill to wipe out the levies.

The measure would kill the Federal tax of 10 cents a pound on colored oleo and a quarter-cent on the white variety. It also lifts license fees of $600 a year on margarine manufacturers and $6 a year on retailers.

But it requires restaurants to post notice when they serve colored oleo rather than butter and states that they also must serve it in triangular pats.

The committee approved the bill by voice after rejecting, 7 to 6, an amendment by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) which would have killed wartime increases in excise taxes. Johnson will offer it again as a floor amendment.

Democrats Decree Test on Patronage

By The Associated Press

President Truman and Democratic leaders mapped out a new patronage system yesterday based on a "party loyalty" test.

Apparently, though nobody said so specifically, the degree of support a Senator or Representative gave to President Truman in the last election campaign will have a heavy bearing on how much he has to say hereafter about who get political jobs.

Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, Democratic National Chairman, told reporters about the decision after a conference of nearly an hour at the White House.

In attendance were House Speaker Rayburn, House Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts, Senator Myers of Pennslyvania, assistant leader in the Senate; William Boyle jr., executive vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Donald Dawson, administration assistant, who handles patronage affairs for the President.

McGrath made it specific that the "party loyalty" test would not be based on votes in House or Senate, but on performance back in the districts.

He was emphatic on the point, but would not go beyond that statement that the measuring stick would be how Congressmen function for the party back home, and not how they vote here.

He suggested that reporters watch developments to see how the new system functions.

McGrath said the whole field of patronage was covered, including tighter coordination on political posts among the national committee, the White House and loyal democratic members of Congress.

McGrath said there had been complaints from some congressmen that jobs in their districts had not been cleared with them, and that they thought they ought to have more to say in these cases.

Asked if he was talking about Southern Democrats who broke with the national party and nominated their own presidential candidate last fall, McGrath did not reply.

Some 'Discs' Still a Mystery

cidents already have answers. Meteors. Balloons. Falling stars. Birds in flight. Testing devices, etc. Some of them still end in question marks."

Check of the 240 domestic and 30 overseas reports, it was said, brought the conclusion that thirty per cent were "astronomical phenomena" such as meteors; thirty per cent were "conventional aerial objects, such as weather and carnival balloons, birds, etc., and 40 per cent were still a mystery. The investigation is continuing, said the Air Force.

"The small area covered by the disc barrage," said the report, "points strongly to the belief that the flying objects are of earthly origin, be they physical or psychological. Thus, although visits from outer space are believed to be possible, they are thought to be highly improbable.

"In particular, detailed reports made on study of individual incidents and the over-all picture of project 'Saucer' point to the fact that actions attributed to the flying objects reported during the last two years are inconsistent with the requirements for space travel."

The investigators also considered, and largely discounted the possibility that the saucers were supported by means of rays or beams. The possible existence of some sort of strange extra-terrestrial animals was remotely considered, it was said, inasmuch as "many of the objects described acted more like animals than anything else." It concluded that "there are few reliable reports on extra terrestrial animals."

"Possibilities that the saucers are foreign aircraft have also been considered," the report said. "But the reported performance of the discs is so superior to anything we have yet approached in this country that it is considered only an accidental discovery of 'a degree of novelty never before achieved' could suffice to explain such devices."

The previously-undisclosed account of an airman's death in pursuing one of the discs was described as follows in the report:

"Three of the planes closed in on the object and reported it to be metallic and of 'tremendous size.' One pilot described it as 'round like a tear drop, and at times almost fluid.' The flight leader, Capt. Thomas F. Mantell, contacted the Godman tower with an initial report that the object was traveling at half his speed at 12 o'clock high (directly in front of him at his altitude).

"'I'm closing in now to take a good look,' he radioed. "'It's going up now and forward as fast as I am, that's 360 miles per hour', Captain Mantell recorded from his F-51. 'I'm going up to 20,000 feet and if I'm no closer I'll abandon the chase.'

"That was the last radio contact made by Mantell with the Godman tower. Later that day his body was found in the wreckage of his plane near Fort Knox.

"Subsequent investigations revealed that Mantell had probably blacked out at 20,000 feet from lack of oxygen and had died of suffocation before the crash.

"The mysterious object which the flier chased to his death was first identified as the planet Venus. However, further probings showed the elevation and azimuth readings of Venus and the object at specified time intervals did not coincide. It is still considered 'unidentified.'"

Another previously unreported case of a "saucer" occurred in the Phillippines a year ago. Lieut. Robert W. Meyers of the 67th Fighter Wing, leading a flight in the Philippines, sighted an "object" about three miles away. When he went to investigate, the silver "flying wing," which resembled a "half moon" with a dorsal fin, made a 90-degree turn and disappeared in about five seconds, it was said.

The widely reported "space ship" reported by two Eastern Airline pilots last summer in Alabama is still "unidentified" despite exhaustive examination, the Air Force reported.

On the other hand, "saucers" reported seen after an explosion in Kansas in February, 1948, were identified as a "stony meteorite." Many cases were found to be hoaxes.

Considering the possibility that the "saucers" may have come from another world, the report found that only Mars is believed to be capable of supporting life and therefore might be the origin of the intruders, though Venus is a remote possibility.

However, scientists believe it very doubtful that Martians are now visiting Earth, for it is "hard to believe that any technically-established race would come here, flaunt its ability in mysterious ways . . . but each time simply go away without every establishing contact."

Outside our own stellar system, 22 stars have satellite planets with possibility for sustaining life, said the report. The chance of such space travelers existing at planets attached to neighboring stars is very much greater than the chance of space-traveling Martians,' it was said.

However, one "formidable stumbling block" was reported: It would take a space ship 80 years to travel from the nearest star at 18,000 miles per second. One chance of cutting down this time was cited. If the inhabitants of the distant world had found it possible to convert nuclear material into jet energy, the time from the nearest star, "Wolf 359," could be cut to only 16 years.

Marine Fliers May Be Shifted

ferring Marine aviation already has been prepared, though its exact terms are still undecided. Moreover, say these Congressmen, no one in the Marine Corps has yet been consulted and the new Defense Secretary has not conferred with Marine Corps leaders.

Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee was reported to have arranged a meeting with Johnson for this morning to discuss Marine aviation.

"Perhaps Johnson has the authority to revamp the services and cancel construction of the carrier and perhaps he doesn't," said one member of the House committee who asked not to be quoted. "But we feel that Congress is being by-passed on major issues and will demand a showdown if the Marine air transfer is ordered."

Marine Corps aviation now consists of eight groups organized into 23 squadrons, totaling 18,000 officers and men. Pilots are trained both for carrier duty and ground support of land troops operating from improvised shore bases. They are especially skilled in amphibious operations to form the air support of shipborne invasions, and provide a reserve for general duties on Navy carriers at sea.

During World War II, Marine aviators shot down over 2100 Japanese planes and produced some of the foremost aces of the conflict. Among them were Joe Foss and "Pappy" Boyington, who between them accounted for 54 enemy aircraft. Marine fliers fought at Guadalcanal, New Georgia and Bouggainville and were chiefly responsible for knocking out the Jap stronghold at Rabaul.

The carrier cancellation question was raised yesterday at a meeting of the House Armed Services Committee when Representative Bates (R., Mass.) proposed a committee investigation. Chairman Vinson, however, overruled him, promising a full inquiry of the matter, when the group considers legislation to increase Johnson's powers.

Meanwhile, it appeared likely that the Republicans would make an issue of the problem. Representative Scott, chairman of the Republican National Committee, took the House floor to denounce "Captain Truman and Colonel Johnson" for scuttling the carrier United States. He predicted that "this anti-Navy administration" would abolish the Marine Corps and Naval Aviation.

25 Seamen Rescued After Day on Ice Floe

St. John's, Newfoundland, April 27 (U.P.)—Twenty-five crew members of a sealing ship were rescued today after spending 24 hours adrift on an ice floe.

The seal boat Newfoundland radioed that it had picked up the crew, who inched their way across a half-mile of dangerous, cracking ice to reach the rescue ship.

Calder Picked For Army Post

ing the Pentagon after nearly seven years of Army duty.

In a farewell message to his subordinates, he said he believed prospects for peace are better now than at any time in the past three years. The principal reason, he said, is the "support given by the American people to national defense and military readiness."

Top Administration officials have said the problem of arranging personal business affairs has been an obstacle in Calder's acceptance so far.

Calder, who will be 57 on May 15, was born in Winfield, Kans., and attended public schools there.

In 1927 Calder went to New York as president of American and Foreign Power Co., a sub-holding company of Electric Bond and Share, with operating utilities subsidiaries chiefly in South and Central America, and also in Mexico, India and the Far East. In 1944 he was elected chairman of Electric Bond and Share.

Reds Seen Beaten In European Drive

By Wes Gallagher
Chief of the AP Bureau in Berlin

New York, April 27 (AP).—Soviet overtures to lift the Berlin blockade represent a diplomatic defeat for the Kremlin—perhaps the most crushing it has suffered since the end of World War II.

The effects on Europe may be tremendous.

The action confirms what observers in Europe have known for months — that the Soviet bid to control all Europe has failed. Communism and the Soviet Union are on the defensive in Europe.

Russian Bluff Called

To some Western leaders, the Soviet postwar drive to sweep over Europe by coercion and threat of force has been revealed as a giant bluff. The turning point came with the installation of the Berlin airlift.

To interfere with the airlift and achieve their aims of driving west from Berlin, the Russians had to commit an act which might result in war. They did not dare take that risk.

American airpower took over the role that seapower held in the last century. It was the enforcer of foreign policy.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, on his own, ordered the airlift into operation. He was not sure it could supply the city but believed the effort should be made. Clay's move had many opponents in Washington. Many believed it would be a costly failure.

Clay, LeMay Did It

While Clay battled for planes, a moody, taciturn American airman, Lieut. Gen. Curtis LeMay, turned the lift into reality.

To Clay goes credit for originating the airlift, but LeMay made it technically possible.

The lift turned the diplomatic tide in Europe in this fashion:

The people of Europe, not only Germany, looked upon Berlin as the showdown. When the United States stayed, and struck back despite the cost and danger, western Europe took heart.

The forces against Communism became more active. The Communist Party dwindled in France and Italy.

Seeing the tide stopped, many Europeans believed the danger of war was subsiding and recovery worth working for. Production spurted.

Counterblockade

The Western powers imposed a counterblockade. They chopped off the flow of coal and steel from the Ruhr to eastern Germany.

Communist bosses of east Germany's economy could not meet the insatiable Soviet demand for goods. Eastern Germany's economy started to fall apart, discontent flourished.

The Russians were far out on their prestige limb. To abandon their demands in the present fashion without gaining any of their boasted ends is a tremendous backdown. It will be a crippling blow to Soviet prestige. Waverers who feared Soviet power will now lean to the west.

Eastern Europe's satellites cannot help but notice the weakening Soviet grip. The cumulative effect may force a fundamental change in Soviet policy not only in Berlin, but all Europe.

Second Czech Aide Resigns Post Here

By Homer Bigart
NYHT News Service

Brig. Gen. Josef Schejbal, Military and Air Attache of the Czechoslovakian Embassy, has renounced his job and appealed for asylum in the United States, it was learned yesterday. He quit Thursday, rather than return to Prague with his wife and son, as ordered.

Skala

Meanwhile, the Czech Communist regime suffered another embarrassment when Hugo Skala, who resigned last week as deputy chief of the trade mission to the United States, held a press conference in Washington, in which he revealed highly secret information.

Equipment Sought

Dr. Skala, who had been chief of the economic division of the Czech Ministry of Finance, indicated that the real purpose of the mission was to attempt to unfreeze $29,000,000 worth of plant equipment and raw materials which the Communist regime bought in the United States, but was unable to obtain because of export restrictions. Nearly all of this amount, it was learned from another source, represented materials of military importance. For example, the biggest item was a $16,000,000 steel strip mill.

As bait for unfreezing this stuff, the trade mission was to offer $22,500,000 as settlement for American claims on property nationalized by the Czech government. This was considerably higher than any previous offer, but the mission was to insist that American loosening of trade restrictions was necessary first.

Conference Recessed

The lowest American offer, submitted by State Department economists who are carrying on the negotiations is 45 million dollars.

Dr. Skala's defection has thrown the Czech mission into a tizzy, and the conference has been recessed until Tuesday. Evzen Leoble, deputy Czech Minister of Foreign Trade, then will receive precise statements from the State Department on various categories of claims. He then will return to Prague, leaving behind a working party to continue negotiations.

At his press conference, Dr. Skala said he was allowed to leave Prague because, although a non-Marxist, the regime has no one else with equal knowledge and experience. First he had to undergo a three-hour "loyalty quiz." Then he quietly arranged for the escape of his wife and 12-year-old son, who, with a single guide, walked across the frontier into the American zone of Germany April 15—the same day that Dr. Skala flew with the mission from Prague.

"It was the sort of thing I thought happened only in movies," Dr. Skala said. "For when I checked into a New York hotel on Easter there was a boy with a cable saying my family was safe in Germany."

Dr. Skala stayed mum for two days, when sightseeing with other members of the mission. Then, on April 19, he took a train for Washington and called at the State Department, where he was promised speedy action on his application to remain in America. Next day he wrote Ambassador Vladimir Outrata his letter of resignation.

Dr. Skala reported increasing terrorism in Prague. During the last four months there have been several night roundups by police of persons suspected of economic sabotage.

German Nationalism Reviving, Taylor Says

Paris, April 27 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Telford Taylor, United States chief of counsel for war crimes, said tonight a new militaristic Germany "would inevitably be our enemy, not our ally."

Taylor, in an address for the Paris Center of Foreign Politics, said "unfortunately Germany's postwar revival has been accompaniel by a resurgence of militant natinoalism."

India to Stay With Empire

portant act the Labor government has done for this country, the Commonwealth and the world," a highly placed British source said.

No Change in King's Title

If India had withdrawn from the Commonwealth, the strategic as well as economic impact might have been disastrous to Britain's position.

A communique said only the "constitutional questions" involved in the Indian problem were discussed.

The title of King George VI will not be changed. A British government spokesman explained that India would no longer have a governor general (since it will elect its own president) and would give up the right of appeal to the Privy Council at London because she will have her own supreme court.

Britain will probably be represented in India by a high commission with ambassadorial powers.

Soviet Asked to Define Terms

tary of State Dean Rusk, British Minister of State Hector McNeil, and Soviet Deputy Prime Minister Andrei Gromyko had a "conversation" followng a dinner party at the New York home of U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie.

Press associations reported that the three were among 25 guests and after dinner, left the quests and had an hour-long private talk on major international questions, including Berlin and the North Atlantic Treaty.

The State Department press officer said this was "making a mountain out of a molehill." He said Rusk, McNeil and Gromyko "just happened to drift together after dinner" and talked "only informally about issues on the U. N. agenda in a purely conversational manner."

Gromyko yesterday was present at the Jessup-Malik talk.

World tension over the possible Big Four meeting, and the hope it would bring an easing of the cold war, mounted last night as the next Russian move was awaited, with speculation that the four foreign ministers would meet in Paris, possibly about July 1.

This is about the date when the western Allies hope a German federal republic can be established in their occupation zones under supervision of an Allied High Commission.

A few hours before the Tass report on Monday, German political factions reached agreement on terms for a west German constitution, after eight months of debate. This left observers wondering if the moves were anticipated, which of the two actions—the Russian announcement on Berlin or the German agreement—touched off the other.

Western diplomats have been extremely cautious in their attitude toward the proposed meeting on Germany, believing the move may be a Russian propaganda venture. If the meeting occurs, French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman said in Paris, and there is agreement on Germany, it might bring not a unified Germany, but separate East and West German governments "co-existing . . . with a common supreme institution" pending a German peace treaty.

While there was no official confirmation here that the United States asked Russia for a formal reply to yesterday's presentation by Ambassador Jessup, this was reported by the Russian-controlled Berlin radio.

'Something Is Cooking' In Moscow

By Eddy Gilmore

Moscow, April 27 (AP).—Some diplomatic sources said today the reopening of the Berlin question, if handled correctly and with infinite care by all sides, could lead to an ending of the cold war.

A feeling prevailed in Moscow that Soviet Russia and the Big Three western powers may be on their way toward a new stage in postwar relations.

"Something is cooking," said an American source. "At this point it doesn't smell bad."

The Russians appeared to be proceeding with caution. They have offered informally to end the blockade of western Berlin if the western powers drop their counter-blockade of east Germany and set a date for a Big Four meeting to discuss a general German peace settlement.

An authoritative source at the British Embassy said:

"We're knocking on wood."

The skepticism that has usually accompanied new moves in the cold war was lacking in western quarters. But all stressed the delicacy of the present situation and agreed new steps should be thoughtful, slow and cautious.

(This dispatch passed through Moscow censorship. Whether the censor made any deletions was not apparent in the copy as received in New York.)

Neither the Communist Party newspaper Pravda nor the government newspaper Izvestia carried any news or made any comment on the situation.

Chain Letters Demand 'Free' Czech Vote

Prague, Czechoslovakia, April 27 (U.P.).—Czechoslovak anti-Communists are circulating chain letters demanding "secret and free elections" under United Nations sponsorship, it was reported today.

The secretly circulated letters call on dissatisfied citizens to mail their protests to the United States Embassy in Prague before May 25. Embassy officials declined formal comment, but it was reported that several hundred letters were received last week.

Communist leaders have reportedly ordered a countercampaign, demanding that the United States stop its "warmongering," but so far no Communist letters are known to have been received.

West Diplomats Score Treatment By Tito's Militia

Belgrade, April 27 (AP).—Five Western countries protested today the treatment of diplomats by militiamen during a Yugoslav demonstration last Sunday.

The protests came from the United States, Britain, Belgium, France and Italy.

The demonstration was in honor of Djure Djakovich, secretary of the Yugoslav Communists 20 years ago, who was slain after refusing to disclose party secrets.

The envoys complained that their aides were prevented from reaching the railroad station during the demonstration.

As a result the United States was prevented from sending diplomatic pouches which ordinarily leave here every Sunday.

Airlift Hauls 9119 Tons to Berlin in Day

Berlin, April 27 (AP).—The airlift flew a near record tonnage into Berlin today.

That was one of the few hard facts amid expressions of both hope and skepticism concerning the possibility the Russians may knock down their blockade.

Flying through clear skies, four-engined planes delivered 9119 tons of fuel and supplies in 1022 flights in 24 hours ended at noon. Only once before had they exceeded that mark. That was when the record 12,940 tons were flown in April 16. Western Allied officials kept silent concerning developments in New York and elsewhere. They said only that rail and automotive equipment was ready to move into Berlin.

The British-licensed Sozialdemokrat reported leading German Communists of the Soviet zone were summoned to Russian headquarters at Karlshorst yesterday to discuss technical steps in lifting the blockade.

Radar System Makes Berlin Airlift Tick

Berlin, April 27 (U.P.).—The radar traffic control system used to guide airlift planes could be expanded readily to serve a city twice the size of blockaded Berlin, an Air Force officer said today.

Maj. Alden Van Buskirk, Melrose, Mass., commander of the squadron which operates the system, said present equipment could bring 14,000 tons a day if enough planes were available, and 28,000 tons if he were given more ground controlled approach radar gear.

The record to date is a little less than 13,000 tons.

"During the war, all the troops in the European theater were supplied by 20,000 tons per day landed by ship on the beaches of Normandy," the major said.

The key to the Berlin control system is a radar set known as the AN/CPS-5, with which radar operators here can keep track of every plane within 70 miles of the city.

Secret circuits in the set blot out stationary objects in the area, displaying only moving "targets."

A "video mapping device" makes it possible to plot the course of incoming planes with respect to ground installations.

The AN/CPS-5 has been used only experimentally in the United States.

Van Buskirk predicted today the set eventually will revolutionize commercial air travel.

"With conventional systems, large airdromes in the United States are able to accommodate safely only five landings an hour in bad weather," he said. "We bring planes into Berlin every three minutes, day or night, and we could bring one in every 45 seconds if we liked."

Radarmen guide planes into the proper approach pattern for one of the city's three airfields.

When the plane reaches the field, it is turned over to the crew of a ground controlled approach set. These men "talk the pilots in" to a landing.

Premarriage Proof Of Awareness Urged

Boston, April 27 (AP).—A Protestant Episcopal bishop would have couples seeking marriage by an Episcopal clergyman sign a statement to show they knew what they were doing.

Bishop W. Appleton Lawrence of western Massachusetts told the church congress today that the denomination also should set up an appeals court for the divorced.

Jewish-Arab Agreement Expected Soon

Lausanne, Switzerland, April 27 (AP).—Final peace terms between the Jews and Arabs will be agreed upon during the coming week, Mark Ethridge, chairman of the U. N. Conciliation Commission, predicted today.

The commission opened preparatory peace talks today with Egypt, Lebanon and Israel. Syria and Trans-Jordan are also scheduled to take part.

Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, said the future of some 850,000 Arab refugees in the Middle East and the proposed internationalization of Jerusalem are the major problems before the peace conference.

The commission met the Israeli, Egyptian and Lebanese delegations in turn today. A further meeting is scheduled Thursday with the Syrian delegation. A Trans-Jordan delegation is expected to arrive early next week. Iraq and Saudi Arabia will not take part in the talks. All the meetings are secret.

Reopening of Syrian Border Is Reported

Beirut, Lebanon, April 27 (AP).—Reports from Damascus today said the Syrian border with Trans-Jordan had been reopened as suddenly as it was closed 24 hours before.

Brig. Husni Zayim, who overthrew the Syrian government March 30, announced dramatically yesterday that he had closed the border with Trans-Jordan, was calling new recruits to the armed forces and that Syria was not going to be annexed to any Hashimite crown.

King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan has openly advocated a greater Syria scheme in which Syria, Trans-Jordan, Iraq, Arab Palestine and Lebanon would be united under his rule.

Britain, the United States and France sent letters to Zayim today recognizing his government, Damascus officials said.

Bevin Pleads With Spain to Open Chapels

London, April 27 (WYHT)—Foreign Secretary Bevin told Commons today how he has tried for more than a year to obtain the reopening of seven British Protestant chapels in Spain.

The chapels have been closed since January, 1947, "by order of the Spanish authorities," Bevin said.

A Foreign Office source explained the chapels were closed under terms of a Spanish "bill of rights" enacted in July 1945, which banned public worship by all non-Catholic Christian sects. The bill specifically permitted private worship.

Civil governors began to interpret the bill as forbidding any form of proselyting and banned "external worship" as proselyting.

Reunion of Leopold, Regent Played Down

Brussels, Belgium, April 27 (AP).—The Belgian cabinet played down the Bern meeting of exiled King Leopold III and his brother, Regent Prince Charles, in announcements tonight.

Leopold met for six hours with the Regent, Premier Paul-Henri Spaak and Justice Minister Moreau de Melen in Bern Monday. The Cabinet said the meeting was merely an informative conference.

Turks Guard U. S. Official in Party Girl Case

Istanbul, Turkey, April 27 (U.P.).—Turkish police posted special guards today to protect United States Information Officer James MacFarland after local newspapers accused him of sponsoring a party where young Turkish girls were "corrupted."

MacFarland's life was threatened on three occasions over the incident.

MasFarland said he had neither arranged nor attended the party.

Sailors from Destroyers

It was held April 20 at the American YMCA for United States sailors who brought to Istanbul the destroyers Buchanan and McCalla, given to Turkey under the military aid program.

Forty Turkish school girls were invited for tea and dancing.

Press reports that the affair developed into "drunkenness and corruption" aroused such resentment among Turks that Prime Minister Shemsettin Gunaltay has felt obliged to schedule a personal explanation in Parliament this week.

Would Be Tame in U. S.

Americans at the party said it would have been considered "very tame" in the U. S.

They said nothing stronger than tea was served and that the only "immortalty" was jitterbugging and a possible stolen kis in a dark corner.

The girls were chaperoned, they said, and were not permitted to leave the party with sailors.

The first report on the party was an editorial April 21 in the newspaper Yeni Sabah, nationalistic organ which resents American interference in Turkish affairs, including military aid.

Chiang Urges All to Fight Red Tyranny; 2 Troop Columns Driving Toward Shanghai

ernment troops" had been sent northwest to meet the second Red column advancing on Shanghai. This column is apparently headed toward Taitsang, 25 miles northwest of Shanghai.

Three ships loaded with Nationalist soldiers, their decks crowded with trucks and planes, left Shanghai, presumably for Formosa. It is on this island that Nationalist China may make its last stand.

The withdrawal of foreigners from threatened Shanghai continued. The United States liner President Wilson is due to sail Thursday with 250 Americans aboard, cutting the American colony here to about 1800. Other Americans were leaving by plane. The United States Navy closed its fleet postoffice.

The British consulate said if fighting broke out in the Shanghai area, all British warships would quit the Whangpoo and sail north to the Yangtse. It said evacuees would have to depend on merchant ships and planes.

Chiang's unexpected arrival in Shanghai (he previously was reported headed for the southeast coast port of Amoy) was reported by the Chinese and foreign press. There was no fanfare.

His statement, which declared that China may become the tinder box for a third world war, was issued by the government Central News Agency under a Chikow date line.

Chiang made his appeal for a continued fight in his capacity as director-general of the Kuomintang (government party). Only last week he joined Acting President LI Tsung-jen in a statement calling for a fight to the finish.

Chiang charged that the Communists sought to "enslave the Chinese people to the cause of international communism by attempting to make all China a military base and a source of manpower for the benefit of a Communist plan for world domination."

He said the Communists by crossing the Yangtze made the same political and military blunders which defeated Japan in China.

He predicted the Communist thrust into South China "will bring the Reds face to face with a tangling mass of military, political and economic problems which eventually will result in their downfall."

"I am certain," he said, "that so long as we carry on the struggle the Communists can neither enslave nor destroy our country. Within three years final victory will be ours."

He styled the Communist movement a "dark and brutal force which seeks to rob our people of their liberty."

"Although I retired from the post of President," he said, "I feel I cannot lightly disregard my responsibility as a citizen at a time when our country is faced with danger and our people are on the brink of disaster."

He urged the people to support acting President Li Tsung-jen, whose refugee govenment has gone to Canton in South China.

A dispatch from Canton said a 100,000-man Nationalist army was hurriedly being organized there for a final stand.

Truman Urges World Tour for Forrestal

President Truman and leaders of the National Defense establishment are urging former Secretary of Defense James Forrestal to make a leisurely round-the-world inspection tour as soon as he recovers his health, it was learned yesterday. The trip would be made by military plane.

The proposal for the trip was revealed coincident with a statement yesterday by Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson that he found Forrestal very much improved during a visit with him Tuesday at Bethesda Naval Hospital. Forrestal suffered a breakdown from overwork following his resignation.

Attorney General Clark yesterday issued a supplemental list of 36 allegedly subversive organizations, including the New Association of Georgia Klans, the National Blue Star Mothers of America, and the Abraham Lincoln Brigade.

He named seven groups as "Fascist," 23 as "Communist," four as advocating or approving "acts of force and violence to deny others their rights under the Constitution," and two trying to "alter the form of government of the United States by unconstitutional means."

Clark sent the list to Chairman Seth W. Richardson of the Federal Loyalty Review Board for use in determining the loyalty of Government employes.

The list named the organizations as follows:

Bulgaria Rejects U. N. Bid to Join Religious Parley

Sofia, Bulgaria, April 27 (U.P.)—Bulgaria today rejected an invitation to participate in United Nations General Assembly discussions of religious freedom.

In a cable to U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie, Foreign Minister Vasil Kolarov said the trial of Protestant pastors in Sofia last month was an internal affair.

The Bulgarian note followed a similar rejection four days ago by Hungary.

The government announced that Bulgarian orthodox, Moslem and Jewish church leaders last night cabled Lie that churches in Bulgaria were "enjoying complete freedom."

10 Maryland Citizens Sue in Ober Law Test

A suit to test legality of Maryland's new anti-Communist law was filed in Baltimore yesterday by a group of 10 private citizens.

The measure, which became effective when Governor Lane signed it, six days ago, makes it a crime to belong to any subversive organization.

Among the 10 plaintiffs were five members of the Johns Hopkins University faculties—a Prince Georges County businessman and a George Washington University language professor.

The businessman, Byron Allen, 7401 Dartmouth ave., College Park, termed the law "ridiculous." Describing himself as "a civil rights man from way back," Allen said the State has "only a handful of Communists." "There is no urgent and pressing need for the law and the people of the State should vote on it," he added.

The George Washington University professor, Dr. Garrey D. Eldridge, 302 Marvin rd., Silver Spring, declared: My attitude is mainly that of a school teacher."

He added he thought provisions of the law referring to teachers will "serve to restrict the activities of teachers and inculcate a sort of fear in the teaching profession."

Among other things, the suit contends that the law violates the State Constitution on the grounds that it is a violation of the rights of free speech, free assembly and freedom of the press.

It also charges that the law represents a denial of due process of law because the statutes are alleged to be too vague to warrant legal prosecution under them.

Six Baltimore attorneys are acting as counsel in the case.

Meanwhile, it was announced that both the State and Baltimore City have stopped hiring workers pending receipt of loyalty forms which all applicants must now fill out certifying they are not subversive.

Communist 'Bible' Read at Trial of 11 Reds

New York, April 27 (AP).—A so-called "Bible of Communism" was offered in Federal Court today as evidence that the party hoped to use armies of non-Communist nations as springboards for revolution.

Miss Calomiris

A section of the book, "History of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union," was read by the prosecution to Federal Judge Harold R. Medina and a jury at the conspiracy trial of 11 top Communist leaders.

It called for setting up groups within the armed forces to turn any "imperialist" war against "one's own imperialistic government."

The plan, as outlined in the book, was to call on workers to "convert an imperialist war into a civil war, in which workers and peasants in uniform were to turn their guns against their own bourgeoise."

Angela Calomiris, a brunette photographer, testified that the book was used in Communist classes she attended.

The attractive young woman took the witness stand for the second day today.

She told the jury she spent seven years as "a very active Communist," planted in the party by the FBI.

At one party session, Miss Calomiris said, students were instructed from the "History of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union."

She quoted an instructor, Ben Siminovsky, as telling the class the book was the bible of communism and "the most important and basic book" of the party.

She also studied "chapter by chapter, page by page and paragraph by paragraph," she said, another book, "Foundations of Leninism."

All 11 defendants are accused of conspiring to organize the Communist Party in the United States to advocate violent overthrow of the Government.

Judith Coplon Tried to Get 'Top' Secret Data On Spy Activities, FBI Sworn Statement Says

Agents Registration section of the Department of Justice. Her chief was William Foley, who is listed as one of the Government's witnesses.

FBI Agent Granville, in his affidavit, said he had been told officially that "several hundred FBI reports" were found in Miss Coplon's desk in her office. These reports, he said, related to espionage and counter-espionage in the United States.

Asked For Reports

"I was further informed," he said, "that the defendant Coplon had made a request of a fellow employe to see all reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation relating to Internal Security-R (Russian) and to any reports in which there was mention made of embassies, consulates and embassy personnel.

"The information . . . referred to was of a special significance in that I also knew that Coplon had been relieved of her assignment of reviewing internal security matters."

He said that in her handbag, following her arrest, were "30 sheets of paper known as data slips containing extracts from reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation relating to security matters and to suspected espionage agents in the United States."

This, he said, "was the property of the Government."

Attorney Palmer had argued that the papers were Miss Coplon's property.

Statement of Education

Agent Granville's affidavit said that the bag also contained a brief statement of Miss Coplon's educational background. She is an honor graduate of Barnard College.

The bag, he said, also contained "background statements concerning three potential recruits for espionage service."

The Granville affidavit was part of a memorandum submitted by the prosecution to justify the acton of FBI agents n arresting Miss Coplon without a warrant, and to combat a defense motion that the papers taken from the girl's handbag be returned to her.

Defense Counsel Palmer, in filing a motion for the return of the papers the day before, argued that the FBI seized them illegally without a warrant.

U. S. Cities Reasonable Ground

The Government's lawyers — John M. Kelly, jr.; Raymond P. Whearty and Fred E. Strine—argued in their memorandum yesterday that the FBI agents had "reasonable ground" to make the arrest. They said that the requirements of the statute which empowers them to arrest without warrant were "obviously fulfilled."

They pointed out that Gubitchev was a Russian alien, and went on to say that "any alien offender is likely to disappear, particularly if he is associated with espionage activities.

"It would seem," they said, "that if the crime is a joint one and one of the two defendants is likely to flee within the meaning of the statute, the FBI would be justified in arresting both defendants at the same time if they are together. They need not arrest only the alien who is likely to flee and ignore his companion."

Defense Attorney Palmer, in arguing that Miss Coplon was a victim of entrapment, emphasized that none of the FBI agents had seen the girl actually pass papers to Gubitchev.

Can't Arrest First

Referring to the circumstance that the papers were found in Miss Coplon's handbag after her arrest, Palmer shouted:

"You can't arrest one first, and try to find the reason for it afterward."

Judge Albert L. Reeves will announce his decision on the defense motion for the return of the papers after the trial is resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

The jury was excused from the box throughout yesterday's session while the attorneys argued over the motion.

Among the spectators was Mrs. Rebecca Coplon, mother of the defendant. A sad-eyed woman, who occasionally gave way to tears, she was wearing black because of the recent death of her husband, Samuel M. Coplon.

Hood College Girls Present

In the courtroom also were 22 girls from Hood College in Frederick, Md.

Miss Coplon laughed occasionally at the sallies of Attorney Palmer, and joined with him after adjournment in scoffing at the "top secret" statement in Agent Granville's affidavit. It was she who found the passage in the court Bible about the Archangel Michael in Chapter 12 of Revelation.

It read:

"And there was war in Heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels."

Another passage read:

"And there appeared another wonder in Heaven; and behold a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his head."

All "Build-Up" For Novel

Attorney Palmer said that this passage was in Miss Coplon's mind when she mentioned Michael in her statement, and he explained that, to her, the red dragon and his seven heads, meant Soviet Russia and her satellites.

It was all, he said, a build-up for her "allegorical novel."

Palmer contended that the Government prosecutors had no right to file Agent Granville's affidavit because it had not been backed up by evidence.

He laughed at the names in Miss Coplon's statement—Silvermaster and the others.

"If that be a top secret," he said, "then the morgues of the country's newspapers must be filled with the dead."

Agent Granville was one of three FBI men that Palmer called to the witness stand while he was arguing for return of Miss Coplon's papers. The other two were T. Scott Miller and Edward F. McCarthy.

Each in turn testified that he did not see Miss Coplon actually pass any papers to Gubitchev, a point which the defense has been hammering at from the outset.

Reprisal Fair, Russian Says

By Henry Shapiro

Moscow, April 27 (U.P.).—A leading Russian expert on international law said today the Soviet Union is entitled to take reprisals against Americans in Russia for the arrest on spy charges in New York of Valentin A. Gubitchev.

Bitterly denouncing Gubitchev's arrest as violating elementary and universally recognized principles of international law and morality, Prof. Eugen Korovin wrote in the Literary Gazette that Russia, as a victimized country:

". . . Has the right to demand corresponding moral and political satisfaction or to apply reprisals against citizens and diplomats of the state which acted lawlessly."

Korovin cited American statutes as evidence of American recognition of the diplomatic immunity of persons like Gubitchev.

Metropolitan Area

Washington is increasingly plagued by the fact that its metropolitan area is divided into six political jurisdictions. The city has long since ceased to be confined to even the 10-mile square that was set aside by the Founding Fathers as the seat of the Federal Government. Its traffic, utility, law-enforcement and city-planning problems extend into Montgomery and Prince George's Counties of Maryland and Arlington and Fairfax Counties and the City of Alexandria in Virginia. If the Capital is to develop in an orderly fashion, we must look forward in increasing measure to solution of its problems on an area-wide basis.

A constructive step in this direction was taken recently when the Interfederation Council composed of representatives of citizen groups in the jurisdictions that make up the city voted for a study of their common metropolitan problems. Representatives in Congress from nearby areas are being asked to introduce a bill setting up a committee "to study problems affecting the metropolitan area and to recommend remedies." That would be a good beginning.

Most cities troubled by similar growing pains bring new territory within their metropolitan limits. Last year 289 cities incorporated 145 square miles of fringe land within their boundaries. Obviously this solution is not open to the District. Only Arlington County and Alexandria could be brought back into the voteless District under the Constitution as it stands, and there seems to be no prospect of winning the consent of either—or of the State of Virginia—to such reannexation. Area problems will have to be worked out through cooperation. Perhaps a utilities commission functioning throughout the area, with a representative of each local unit, will have to be set up. But the first step is a careful examination of the problem by experienced men, and the sooner that is undertaken the better.

Funny Business

The well-nigh hopeless confusion over the scuttled Navy supercarrier has not been removed by the Sullivan-Johnson exchange. If one may accept Navy Secretary Sullivan's explanation in his letter of resignation, there is justification for his pique over the way the abandonment order was handled. Mr. Sullivan asserts that he was assured by Defense Secretary Johnson on April 18 that he would have a further opportunity to present the Navy's case on the supercarrier. The next word he had was a long-distance telephone call on April 23 informing him of Mr. Johnson's decision to halt construction. Certainly this, if true, was a piece of unnecessary brusqueness.

But what about the Navy's own contribution to the fiasco in going ahead with the keel-laying while the issue was still in doubt? Whether the Navy was under a misapprehension about the status of the carrier never has been satisfactorily explained. There is a growing body of evidence, however, that points to the conclusion that the carrier never was approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in so many words, and that Congress was misled as to the actual opinion of the Joint Chiefs. In light of the many doubts over the carrier and the knowledge that Secretary Johnson did not favor it, was Mr. Sullivan trying to pull a fast one in proceeding unilaterally under conditions of what Mr. Marquis Childs calls comic stealth?

No layman is fully competent to appraise the merit of Mr. Johnson's order. Only this much is certain: the Joint Chiefs of Staff is the body charged with passing on questions of top military strategy, and a majority of the Joint Chiefs last week voted against the carrier. This advisory opinion formed the basis for Mr. Johnson's decision.

Despite the confusion, there is little reason to think that the issue would be clarified by the sort of congressional investigation demanded yesterday by Senator Wherry. To be sure, ultimate decisions on matters of this sort are made by Congress as the agent of the people. But the Joint Chiefs of Staff have made their decision, and Congress ought to think twice before overriding their judgment on a question of military strategy. What an impossible muddle would result if legislators were to undertake to act as military experts and to substitute their notions for the considered program of the men whose job it is to plan for the national defense! A check by Congress in terms of over-all appropriations is necessary; but if the country is to have any meaningful defense at all, then the details must be left to the military strategists. Both congressional and public appraisal of defense plans would be helped, as we indicated Tuesday, by more frank information from all sources.

In some respects Mr. Sullivan's blast and his expressed fear that the supercarrier decision may be a prelude to the abolition of the Marine Corps and naval aviation reflect a distrust of a majority vote of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Naval insistence on a veto really is a negation of the purpose of unification. If the Joint Chiefs are to be trusted with high strategy, it must be presupposed that they also will take a broad view of all requirements of the national defense. Altogether, if there were elements of arbitrariness in Secretary Johnson's order, the Navy also has a good deal to answer for.

Chinese Confusion

The starting point in any appreciation of the fast-developing situation in China is that there has been much more of a Nationalist collapse than a Communist victory. It is important to make this distinction.

Chiang Kai-shek, whatever his merits in the days before the Sino-Japanese war, had lost his touch completely. As a soldier he carried a defense complex to the point of absurdity, as shown by the stockade over the land entry to Shanghai, a stockade which is dotted with mud pill boxes. This shrinking soldierliness was coupled with an overweening conceit expressed in his determination to run all China from Nanking. Yet it was neither the one nor the other shortcoming that brought nemesis to Chiang Kai-shek. His offense in Chinese eyes was the toleration around him of perhaps the worst orgy of corruption in Chinese history. It has been said that Chiang himself was personally honest. However, he that toucheth pitch is defiled therewith, and the pitch that Chiang touched between his return to Nanking and his "retirement" would have filled the Yangtze River.

China is perhaps the greatest social democracy extant, even though there is no political democracy to speak of; and that means that public opinion counts. The voice of the people is the voice of God to agnostic China, and the Confucian philosophy is more than Jeffersonian in its defense of the people's right of revolt. In monarchical China a board of censors sat in Peking whose duty was to report in the public interest on the derelictions of rulers and officials. They were the progenitors of Mr. Drew Pearson. Officials soon mended their ways, or had their heads chopped off, after an expose came from the censors' brushes. When the monarchy fell in 1911 the succeeding war lords had a way of sensing the frown of the populace, and bowing before it. For instance, Yuan Shik-kai in 1917 had aspirations to start a dynasty himself, but knew that his cause was hopeless after the mere rumor of this ambition had started a rebellion in far-away Yunnan Province. Similarly when one of the last of the war lords, Sun Chuan-fang, heard that Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists were marching against his capital in 1927, he detected the voice of the people and made little attempt to defend his capital.

Chiang Kai-shek is now just as much the victim of the people's displeasure as he was its beneficiary 20 years ago. He was doomed as soon as his Nationalism ceased to be a popular movement. That he has been saved hitherto from extinction has been due to the aid he has received from America. In this respect history has repeated itself. In the '60s, for instance, the Manchu dynasty was through, and would have been overthrown but for foreign intervention. Instead it was propped up, but it got so decrepit that in 1911 it collapsed while the foreign powers were not looking, so to speak. One after another "strong men" in republican China then got foreign aid, and there has been a succession of disappearances and collapses. So that every new regime has inherited an appalling chaos.

This is particularly true of the Communists. They have been endowed with so many problems of disorganization with the empty vessel of the Nanking government that their tasks of administration and reconstruction are bound to be colossal. To make this worse for them, China is not self-sufficient, let alone possessed of the means of reconstruction; and this will be a strong card in Western hands, provided the Westerners maintain a united front in any dealings with the new regime.

Frankness That Pays

Mr. Acheson provided a contrast yesterday to those officials whose first instinct, in dealing with Congress or the public, is to run for cover. He had to tell the Senate Foreign Relations Committee whether the North Atlantic Treaty bound the United States to provide military help. He did not evade the question. "If you ratify the Pact," he told the Senators, "it cannot be said that there is no obligation to help. There is an obligation to help, but the extent, the manner, and the timing is up to the honest judgment of the parties."

Not content with straightforwardness on this point, Mr. Acheson announced that the addition of any country to the treaty group would require the approval of two thirds of the Senate. This means that Spain, for example, cannot be brought furtively into the North Atlantic Treaty, and that the public will not be confronted with an accomplished fact before it has had a chance to speak its mind. From start to finish Mr. Acheson proceeded yesterday on the theory that frankness wins more votes in Congress, and more support from the public, than timid quibbles. It is a pity that others in his own department have not yet learned the lesson.

Cost Of Medical Care

Chairman Elbert D. Thomas of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare candidly says that it is impossible to estimate how much it will cost to pay for the medical and hospital service to which the public would be entitled under the Administration's health insurance bill. It is reasonable to surmise, however, that it will cost more than the Government is now planning to spend. A worker earning $2400 would be taxed $36 a year. A tax of equal amount would be paid in his behalf by his employer and the Government would add a contribution of $12 for each of the first three years. In other words, a total of $84 a year would go into the insurance fund in behalf of the $2400-a-year worker, and twice that sum in behalf of a worker with twice that income. In all cases the worker and members of his family would be entitled to complete medical, hospital and dental care, including eyeglasses, hearing aids and so forth.

If $2400 may be roughly regarded as an average income, it is difficult to see how $84 could be stretched to cover so many benefits for a breadwinner and several members of his family. The unfortunate fact is that the average family now obtains only a fraction of the medical, dental and hospital care that it ought to have. Under a system in which these important services would become the right of everyone, demands for medical care would expand enormously. Appropriate emphasis has been laid on the fact that the country does not now have the doctors, dentists, nurses, hospitals and clinics to render such complete service. It is also important to investigate whether there would ever be any hope of providing full medical care at the cost now contemplated.

Sponsors of the compulsory insurance bill seem to take it for granted that complete health care can be provided to all the people for little more than inadequate care for some of the people now costs. That seems to us a basic fallacy. Indeed, complete physical examinations once a year for all members of an average worker's family are likely to cost more than he would pay into the system. Such examinations are unquestionably desirable as the starting point for shifting medical care from an emergency to a preventive basis. But examinations along with hospital care and doctors' calls are expensive, and we doubt that they can be made less so by collecting insurance premiums in the form of taxes. Certainly this is a point that demands thorough exploration by the subcommittee to which the health insurance bill has been referred.

One-Way Peace

In Paris the "World Congress of Partisans of Peace" has wound up its 5-day session of praise for the Soviet Union and castigation of the United States. In Prague a subsidiary meeting has followed every move in Paris, down to an identical concluding manifesto. The latter calls for a permanent committee with branches in every country to continue the battle for "peace." It will, among other things, expose and condemn "aggression against the national independence and democratic liberties of the peoples."

The proposed permanent committee is, of course, nothing but a new Cominform. Its branches are in fact already in existence in the form of Communist Parties in every country. For their purposes peace is wonderful if it coincides with the settlement of all differences in Moscow's favor. It is anathema if, as in China now, it would interrupt the military advance of Marxism, as was shown by the boos that greeted a British delegate's suggestion that peace is as desirable in China as elsewhere. When O. John Rogge mildly intimated that the Kremlin is not without blame for the present divided world, he, too, got raucous abuse and catcalls. The one-sidedness of this kind of "peace" is as transparent and as naive as the one-way transmission of "culture" advocated at the New York meeting.

Of winds which harbor all its hurts.

No human adolescent cries
Rebellion stronger to the skies,

For drifting on the parent land
It rises to its greatest stand

Of white defiance. Then mature,
Its middle years it must endure

Although our bones return to earth,
The snow in dying has rebirth

And every smile tear it sheds

A paradox upon a tomb.

When all our passion and desire
Are ashes of remembered fire,
We crawl between our Arctic sheets;

But snow, with earth's returning hours,

Treaty Machinery

We have two ways of entering into obligations with other countries, by treaties and by executive agreements. A treaty requires a two thirds majority of the Senate, an executive agreement no congressional consent.

Thus both ways are not truly democratic, for in one case a minority of the Senate can be decisive, and in the other the President acts alone. In addition, both ways are weakening our negotiating power; the former, because the other party to a contract can never be sure of the Senate's approval, the latter because, for want of a clear delineation between the fields of treaties and executive agreements, the validity of an executive agreement may be doubtful.

I am wondering, therefore, whether it might not be possible to agree upon the following procedure, which is, I think, in line with the effort to form a bipartisan foreign policy.

There should be an understanding between the Senate, acting by a two thirds majority resolution, and the Administration, that executive agreements should be made only with the unanimous consent of a small bipartisan committee, and that the validity of agreements so concluded should not be doubted. In this way, the main disadvantage of the present practices could be avoided until an amendment to the Constitution can be achieved.

New York.

Tax-Exempt Housing

Perhaps the greatest need today is that of houses and apartments, which are now so difficult to find in every American city. This should be accomplished by free enterprise and not by a socialistic government at enormous expense to taxpayers.

The right way was put into effect April 1, 1920, in New York City at a time when apartments were greatly needed. From that date until April 1, 1932, every building started that was a home was exempted from taxation. The tax exemption applied only to the house and the structure itself and did not apply to the tax levied on the lot on which the home or homes was erected. Directly following the effect of this home-exemption law, there were built in seven years a total of 378,732 separate buildings.

This plan should be put into effect without delay by every American city. To penalize property owners with rent regulation because of the shortage of houses is like scolding a small congregation because church attendance was so unsatisfactory!

HENRY WARE ALLEN.

DP Jobs

To quote the person who signs himself as "Practical American" in his letter of April 21: "How can The Washington Post be in favor of the new DP law when there are four million unemployed Americans? Why should we let in thousands of foreigners to compete with our men when there are not enough jobs to go around?"

The new displaced persons law does not deprive our own men of jobs. Before a DP comes to this country he has to be sponsored by an organization or a person who guarantees the individual a job, which is open because there happens to be no available labor for such a position; also all financial aid necessary, such as transportation charges from the port of debarkation to the place of permanent resident. The dislike or fear of foreigners is unreasonable, because with the exception of the Indians, all of us are foreigners. The United States is truly a melting pot of the peoples of all nations, a factor which contributes to its greatness.

Teen-Age Sightseers

I have been planning to take the members of my senior civics class on an educational trip to Washington. Recently one of the students brought to the class a copy of Mrs. Fern Tymensky's April 21 letter.

I feel that Mrs. Tymensky has perhaps never experienced the joy of working with high school seniors. I wonder if she has ever known the thrill of chaperoning a group of 50 on a tour of Washington. Oh yes, they talk, they laugh, they chew gum, they spread over the sidewalk, and they do not fully appreciate all that they see. However, they are not expected to react as mature individuals since they are still teen-agers.

For the past two years I have accompanied such groups of high school students to Washington. I have returned with the students after such a trip, and I know that underneath the superficialities, witnessed by a chance passerby, there are deep and lasting impressions which find expression in class for the remainder of the year.

Nonsegregated Sports

At long last the question of athletic competition between teams of white and colored schools will be considered by a committee of the Board of Education of Washington.

Professional mixed boxing has been of almost weekly occurrence for years. In all of the major high school and college track meets colored and white boys run on the same teams or against each other. The Evening Star games locally have demonstrated the possibility of free competition. Even in Southern States colored boys have competed with white athletes.

A few years ago the Eastern High School cross-country team willingly entered local cross-country runs sponsored by the YMCA and the colored high schools. Last year the Salvation Army basketball teams was composed of local white and colored star high school players and played several postseason games with colored high school teams.

I believe there would be better track teams and basketball teams in all of the schools if the goals of city championships were unlimited. I am sure that the huge athletic debts would disappear if the contests were free and open and the monies centrally collected and disbursed.

Chewing Gum Tax

In order to raise revenue for the District, why not put a tax on chewing gum, a double tax on bubble gum and a heavy fine for people who throw trash on the streets?

Justice At Nuernberg

With great interest I read Mr. Daniel Harlan's April 18 letter concerning the war crime trials at Nuernberg. Not only Mr. Harlan, but many eminent American lawyers as well criticize the war crime trials because of their alleged unfairness: It is maintained that they are based upon a law which never had been accepted by the German people, and that no representatives of that nation are to be found among the judges.

The objection is being raised that the fundamental principles Nullum Crimen sine Lege (no crime without legal definition) and of the nonapplicability of ex post facto laws have been violated by the trials.

Permit me to show that neither the American Government nor the Allies are violating basic principles of international law if they put German officials to trial.

On August 27, 1928, Germany signed the treaty for the Renunciation of War called Kellogg-Briand Pact and agreed, according to Article 2, to the complete and exclusive application of pacific means for the "solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature, or of whatever origin they may be."

It must be said that no special sanction is threatened against the violation of the pact, and that no definition of any individual guilt can be concluded from the wording of that pact.

By the Treaty of Versailles of 1919, the trial and punishment of the German Kaiser and of individual members of the German armed forces had been provided. The Kaiser should be tried "for a supreme offense against international morality, and the sanctity of treaties" (Article 227). By Article 228, the German government recognized the right of the Allies "to bring before military tribunals persons accused of having committed acts in violation of the laws and customs of war."

The German government, by signing the Treaty of Versailles, thereby recognized the criminal responsibility of the head of the state and its assistants in matters of violation of international morality, and the sanctity of treaties. In connection with Article 230, the German government agreed to furnish the documents and information "necessary to insure the full knowledge of the incriminating acts, the discovery of the offenders and the just appreciation of responsibility."

At the conference at Moscow in 1943 the United States, the United Kingdom, and the USSR, declared their intention to punish German officers and members of the Nazi Party guilty of atrocities and that they should be sent back to the countries in which their crimes were committed for judgment and punishment according to the law of these countries.

None of the governments represented in the United Nations objected to this declaration, and as a matter of fact, it must be stated that the international tribunal treated and sentenced the accused Nazis less severely than the individual countries probably would have done.

By the unconditional surrender the German nation forfeited its sovereignty, and thereby its jurisdiction as far as the Allies deemed fit to take it away. It was a wise act, for the trials against the war criminals before the German Reichsgericht in 1919 and 1920, the jurisdiction of which had then been conceded by the Allies, was a sad farce which made the allied prosecutor ridiculous before the revengeful German nation.

Tabling The Displaced

By Malvina Lindsay

America, Ltd.

(Scene—A meeting of the Association for Advancement.)

CHAIRMAN — First on our order of business is a very old problem, one we have been eluding — I mean considering for years, that of the displaced persons.

Erasmus J. Dare — As president of Atomic Age Citizens, Inc., I demand that we either prod the Senate into action to remove the unjust discriminations in this law or else start a movement to tear down the Statue of Liberty. We can't afford to go on standing as hypocrites before the world.

Mr. Gloss — Wait! As legislative representative of the Status Quo Protective League, I want to see full justice done these people. But we can't be do-gooder's to the world.

Mrs. March — This isn't do-goodism. Why should we have these silly, bigoted restrictions on entry of the displaced when we could use a lot of them? In their camps are about 2500 doctors and 2500 nurses, as well as dentists, domestics and other persons we are short of.

Dr. Bellwether — I protest! There's NO shortage of doctors!

Mrs. March—Then why do our rural areas lack adequate medical aid for their 13 million children?

Dr. Bellwether—Our doctors went to practice in the cities. Besides we can't have these foreigners pulling down our standards.

Mr. Dare—How does it happen they're maintaining such high health standards in their camps?

CHAIRMAN—Mrs. Mortimer Stalacite wishes to speak.

Mrs. Stalacite—I am not opposed to letting in the right kind of displaced persons, say domestics and laborers—of proper background. But we must be careful about opening our doors to refugees who would compete with us in medicine, law, dentistry or any of the professions, or businesses, or even students who would run away with all our scholarships.

Mrs. McAddle—Aren't we as smart as they are?

Chairman—Keep to the question! I see Mr. Nesselrode Groove, civic leader, is here. Any message, Mr. Groove?

Mr. Groove—Mr. Chairman, my stand is—let well enough alone.

Mr. Vanderpuffer—A lot of these people lack stability. Besides this country's getting more foreign every day.

Mr. Dare—This is a moral question. We have to meet it no matter what inconvenience or discomfort it brings us.

Mr. Vanderpuffer—The man is an idealist!

Mr. Dare (heatedly)—I demand an apology! Otherwise I shall bring suit.

Chairman (rapping for order) —No name calling please!

Mrs. March—I don't see how we can set up prescriptions of race, religion, background, age, occupation—and I imagine soon height, width, color of eyes, number of teeth, manners and accent for these courageous refugees from dictatorships—and still call ourselves Americans.

Mrs. Stalactite—May I remind you that my people came to this country on the Mayflower?

Mr. Vanderpuffer—Mine followed Henry Hudson.

Dr. Bellwether—I had ancestors on both the Dove and the Ark.

Mr. Gloss—Madam, my people came with William Penn!

Mr. Groove—Mine came with Capt. John Smith.

Mrs. McAddle—How did they ever get in?

Chorus—Mine came——

Chairman (rapping for order) —Let's get back to the subject. Perhaps Mrs. Montclair St. Vitus has a suggestion.

MRS. ST. VITUS—Mr. Chairman, I do think we're losing sight in all this of the good old-fashioned virtue of charity. A crust of bread in the name of sweet charity is better than——

Mrs. March — A chance to make a self-respecting living?

Mrs. St. Vitus—I suggest that instead of changing laws we let Congress alone——

Mr. Gloss—A good idea!

Mrs. St. Vitus—And that we stage a big benefit — say a spring carnival with everyone in United Nations costumes, and with a lot of give-away prizes for the displaced people.

Mrs. Stalactite—I'll be glad to lend my name as a sponsor.

Mr. Dare—We're talking as if we were back in the eighteenth century.

Mrs. March—When did we ever leave it?

Mr. Gloss—Mr. Chairman, on second thought, I question whether we should take any action at all at this time on such a controversial issue. I propose we table the displaced for another year——

Chorus—Second the motion!

Robeson's Charges

A Connecticut official, resentful of Paul Robeson's recent pronouncement in Paris regarding Negroes and Russia, advocates exiling the singer from the State in which he holds residence. Since expatriation has never proved a very effective weapon for combating ideas, perhaps the State of Connecticut and the country as a whole could silence Robeson more permanently by correcting the abuses that give him an argument.

Servant Trouble At The White House

LIPPMANN

MR. TRUMAN painted a heartrending picture of life in Washington when he remarked at his press conference last week that public officials had to be iron men with an elephant hide and that their pay is not worth the ribbing they have to take. If that is the way things are, Mr. Truman is going to have his worst trouble in working out a proper scale of payments. For iron men can be found. Those who were not born with elephant hides can grow them. But how to figure out the pay is a puzzle; perhaps the best way will be to renegotiate the salaries at the end of each month, letting those who have been glorified by Mr. Fulton Lewis, jr., pay consolation to those who have been ribbed by Mr. Drew Pearson.

All this will not be what the storybooks say about the ideal public servant who has the iron of conviction in his soul and wears the armor of a good conscience. But this is a great country even in its less glamorous moments.

MUCH HAS been said in recent years about the difficulty of getting and keeping able men in public life. Now there is no doubt that the pay is too low, especially for officials who have no private income, who have a growing family, and who ought in order to do their work well to be able to meet other public men outside their offices. But while salaries ought to be increased, they can never be increased to the point where these abler men can earn as much working for the Government as they could earn in private life.

As a matter of fact, the difficulty of getting or keeping the able men is not usually a matter of money. The difficulty of getting them is to recognize ability when it has not yet been demonstrated by some obvious worldly success. This is a great gift and a rare one: to see who is going to be eminent before he has made a reputation, and then to want him and then to back him. This was one of the conspicuous achievements of Stimson and Marshall during the war, that they were able to discern the qualities of men, who have since become famous, while these men were still unknown and obscure.

THE DIFFICULTY of keeping men has not often, I believe, been caused by money. Much more often than not that has been the ostensible reason, so to speak the diplomatic reason, why men have resigned and have gone back to private life. There may have been some who had to go and earn money though they would have preferred to stay in office, though they were actually asked to stay in office. But many more have gone, announcing that they had to earn money, when in fact they were being eased out of office or were being refused the promotion which they felt they had earned.

Rarely have they refused to come back, even though they could not possibly have had time to recoup their fortunes, if they were offered something sufficiently important and interesting to do. The joys of private life, which they thought they yearned for amidst the frustrations of public life and admidst the ribbing from Congress and the press, have usually palled on them quickly. For the truth is that public life, once a man has been infected with its excitement and importance, is something that few ever get over. They are homesick for it ever after, and even the congressional investigations and Drew Pearson's broadcasts are, like the pangs of childbirth, soon forgotten.

MR. TRUMAN'S main difficulty, in fact his only real difficulty, is that he has not always wanted to keep, or been willing to promote, the ablest men who learned to be public servants during the past decade.

The greatest waste in the public service is that just about when men have learned how to govern, they are retired because someone else wants their job, or because they feel they must be promoted. Therefore, a man who has done well in one post but probably has gone stale in it and ought to move out of it, is rarely offered a different post.

He can only go up or go out. If he has been an Assistant Secretary of State he feels that he cannot be an Assistant Secretary of Commerce because the Department of Commerce is not so high in the hierarchy of rank as is the Department of State. So just when he would make an excellent Assistant Secretary of Commerce he retires—largely because his dignity demands that he be made Undersecretary of State.

If only these customs could be changed, it would do more than anything that can be done with money, to improve the public service.

The Fearmongers

AS A weapon in the war of propaganda between East and West the so-called peace conference in Paris misfired. It misfired because the charges brought against the United States were so fantastic.

Childs

Howard Fast, the writer, a member of the American delegation, went further than almost any other speaker. He had the effrontery in this day and age to talk about Soviet Russia as the home of liberty and to say that a "terror" existed in this country striking down anyone who spoke about peace.

The Soviet delegates must have been startled at this eulogy. Even their own propagandists do not go so far as to claim liberty, in the Western sense, for the Soviet citizen.

Here at home we are free to advocate peace, even the kind of peace that would mean the surrender of western Europe to Communist control. If any proof is needed, it was supplied by the Waldorf-Astoria "peace conference" held in New York a month ago.

When this has been said, however, the observer who looks at the facts here at home must add an important qualification. There is in this country a noisy and persistent minority that seems determined to end our liberties. These people are apparently so ridden by fear and suspicion that they do not have faith in the common sense and good judgment of the American people.

IN ONE State Legislature after another these fear-ridden zealots are tampering with and in some instances abrogating the ancient American heritage of freedom. If they have their way, if the fear, the hysteria, the intolerance, are not checked, we shall find that we have made ourselves over in the image of what we profess to abhor—the totalitarian state.

Out in Illinois a committee of the Legislature is "investigating" the University of Chicago for subversive activities. The university is supported from private sources and not from taxes. It is well recognized as one of the great centers of learning in this country.

The legislative committee has gone to extraordinary lengths in what seems to be a deliberate attempt to persecute and intimidate. An irresponsible and unqualified witness was allowed to smear Prof. Harold C. Urey, one of the atomic scientists who did major work on atomic fission. Urey has been cleared by several top security agencies for continuing studies in nuclear fission.

"The policy of repression of ideas cannot work and never has worked," Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins told the committee. "The alternative to it is the long, difficult road of education. To this the American people have been committed. It requires patience and tolerance, even in the face of intense provocation. It requires faith in the principles and practices of democracy, faith that when the citizen understands all forms of government he will prefer democracy and that he will be a better citizen if he is convinced than he would be if he were coerced."

THE MARYLAND Legislature has passed a so-called antisubversive law which, as The Washington Post pointed out editorially, might under strict interpretation of the law make it impossible to teach any political philosophy, even the principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence. Apparently fearing a free expression of the will of the voters, the Legislature passed an amendment making the law effective immediately so that it would not be subject to petition for popular referendum.

Here is a sinister pattern repeated all too often in State after State. This country has grown great out of the free exchange of ideas and knowledge. That greatness can be destroyed unless those who believe in freedom, and I think that would include most Americans, now stand up and actively resist the fear-mongers.

In my opinion, a member of the Communist Party does not have an inherent right to teach in a tax-supported public institution. Communism in its basic belief advocates the overthrow of the present system and all its institutions.

But any law that seeks to prevent the teaching of a political belief or to make criminals of those who advocate a belief cuts straight across the Constitution with its great charter of liberties. This is not the issue at the University of Chicago. A few students belong to a Communist Study Club and the fearmongers are behaving as though this rich and powerful Nation were about to be undermined.

Acheson Ties Pact to Arms Plan In His Plea for Ratification

prior to any attack against any member of the pact.

7. That no "ring of steel" around the Soviet Union and its group of Eastern European satellites will result from the two actions. Acheson termed Russia's claim that the pact is "aggressive" is ridiculous, that any military force the arms program would provide would be too small for any aggressive action.

8. That the military assistance proposal should not interfere or cause any reduction in our own military preparedness program.

Johnson to Testify

To most questions dealing with military phases, Acheson answered that he was not qualified—that they should be answered by the military. Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson will appear before the committee today or Friday, as soon as it finishes with former Senator Warren Austin, United States delegate to U. N.

Acheson's reception in the morning was extremely friendly, both from Republican as well as Democrat members. After committee members had finished their questioning, Connally introduced the two visitors, Donnell and Watkins, and chided them for not being present when the hearing began.

Donnell came back with a bristling reply. Both he and Watkins, he asserted, had asked on March 23 to be permitted to attend the hearings, he said, but did not get a reply until yesterday noon.

"Everybody knows," Connally shot back, "that the Senators are not for the treaty. They are here to impede, obstruct, delay and filibuster against the treaty." Then as an afterthought, he remarked:

"I don't say that in an unfriendly or hostile way."

"Of course, the chairman didn't mean to be hostile," Donnell replied sarcastically. Then, raising his voice, the Missourian declared that he resented the words of the chairman. "I can't help resenting such language," he shouted. "We have just as much right to our opinion as any other Senators. We are not here to delay, obstruct or filibuster."

"The future conduct and the questions of the Senators will reveal whether I am right or not," Connally replied, adding that he would withdraw his words and apologize.

Refused to Be Mollified

Both visitors refused to be mollified by Connally's statement. Watkins declared that "I can't say that I'm for or against the treaty."

"I have been trained as a lawyer and as a judge," Watkins went on, "and when I don't understand a matter I inquire into it." He defied Connally to produce any statement he had made that indicated he had taken any position against the treaty.

Watkins declared that he hadn't received permission to attend the hearings "until 2:20 this afternoon." But earlier, he said, he had read a dispatch in a Salt Lake City newspaper of last Saturday where Connally was quoted as saying that Watkins would be invited.

"It was known in Salt Lake City last Saturday, but I didn't know it until today," he shouted, to which Connally, with a grin, replied:

"Apparently the Salt Lake City papers are better advised about what is going on here in Washington than is the senator from Utah."

Watkins also charged that Connally's letter had limited him to questioning Acheson, whereas he also wanted to question other witnesses. Because of that limitation, he said, he declined to take any part.

Lays Blame Upon Russia

Acheson in his formal statement bluntly laid the blame for the needs for a North Atlantic Pact and arm agreement upon Russia.

"The sense of insecurity prevalent in western Europe is not a figment of the imagination," he declared. "It has come about through the conduct of the Soviet Union.

"Western European countries have been the basic purposes and principles of the Charter (of U.N.) cynically violated by the conduct of the Soviet Union with the countries of Eastern Europe. Their right to self-determination has been extinguished by force or threats of force. The human freedoms as the rest of the world understands them have been extinguished throughout the whole area.

"Economic problems have not been solved by international cooperation but dealt with by dictation. These same methods have been attempted in other areas—penetration by propaganda and the Communist Party, attempts to block cooperative international efforts in the economic field, wars of nerves, and in some cases thinly veiled use of force itself."

Although yesterday's hearing was scheduled to deal mainly with consideration of the pact, the greater part of it was given over to consideration of the military aspects of the proposed arms agreement.

The cost of the arms program, Acheson estimated at $1,130,000,000 for the Atlantic Pact countries, and 320 million dollars for other countries, such as Greece and Turkey.

He declared that the economic recovery of Europe, which he credited largely to the Marshall Plan, had increased the freedom-loving countries' "will to resist aggression."

"Is there any sound basis to think that the will to resist is any greater than at the outset of World War II?" Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) asked. Hickenlooper referred to "Dunkirk, the fall of France and other historic failures" of that war.

Acheson declared that "those experiences have left a strong effect on those countries. In my judgment they have increased their will to resist and exist."

He then went on to declare that a great difference exists between the "will to resist and the ability to resist."

"The fact that countries met disaster does not represent any lack of will to resist," he commented, adding that this country, too, had experienced similar disasters early in the war. As an example he referred to the capture of the Philippines.

The witness declined to make any estimates of what the arms program might cost after next year. But most of the goods to be furnished, he said, are "so-called capital goods—the type that does not wear out in a short time." They didn't include, he said, such things as "shoes and ammunition."

He also admitted that considerable thought had been given to the danger of one of the pact countries becoming communistic, and the military goods in its possession lost. But he said increased security and economic betterment made such possibilties more remote each day.

Automatic Separation

Acheson agreed that the pact did not provide any way for a signatory to withdraw from it or to be ousted within the 20 years of its life. But a nation, he said, that turned communistic, wouldn't be able to live up to the terms of the agreement, and that would provide for its automatic separation from the pact.

The Secretary repeatedly asserted that it would be up to Congress to decide whether a declaration of war would be necessary in the case of an attack upon any of the nations adhering to the pact.

There were other measures, short of war, he said, which might be undertaken, depending "upon the gravity of the attack."

Donnell, in the course of an hour's energetic questioning, posed the following hypothetical question: If, after the pact has been ratified, the Soviet Union should hurl 500,000 troops at Norway, would the United States, in fulfillment of its obligations be required to oppose with armed force?

"That is the obligation which in my judgment would follow," Acheson replied.

Besides Defense Secretary Johnson and U. N. Delegate Austin, W. Averell Harriman, Economic Cooperation Administration Administrator in Europe, will testify.

Fear of DDT Baseless, Say U. S. Scientists

NYNT News Service

Government scientists said here yesterday that a wave of "unwarranted fear" concerning the use of newly developed poison insecticides, principally DDT, has swept the country, and is seriously threatening the Nation's food supply.

They added that "millions of dollars" worth of damage has been done to the agricultural-industrial forces marshaled each spring in America's perennial campaign against pests.

These losses, they said, will be multiplied many times over in the resultant food crop attrition if the concerted educational counter-attack which they plan to launch shortly fails to stop the "insecticide alarmists."

What Happened

Commissioner Paul B. Dunbar, of the Food and Drug Administration, said the Texas experimental station of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine "a few months ago" found traces of DDT in milk from cows housed in barns treated with DDT-base sprays for fly control.

There was no indication of harmful amounts, but "because we know so little about DDT, and because milk is a primary food, particularly for babies," Dr. Dunbar said, "the Food and Drug Administration decided against allowing any DDT 'tolerance' in milk, such as it long has permitted for other poison insecticides applied to fruits and vegetables. We felt that we ought to be doubly safe on milk."

Notice Sent Out

This policy, he said, resulted in the livestock branch of the Department of Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration sending out a notice April 7, to manufacturers, registrants and distributors of DDT insecticides, cautioning them to revise their labels and warn prospective users not to apply the preparation directly to dairy animals, their forage or barns, or to beef cattle.

The country's entomologists and the dairy industry were cooperating on the problem, Dr. Dunbar said, adding that they "have it very well in hand, so that there is absolutely no jurisdiction for the public fears that have been built up."

Plane Down at Sea, Cutter Rescues Airmen

New York, April 27 (AP).—The four-man crew of a crippled United States Air Force transport ditched their plane far out in the Atlantic today alongside a Coast Guard cutter which rescued all of them.

The C-47 twin-engine transport made its emergency landing beside the cutter Sebago, 610 miles southeast of Newfoundland.

ing will be made available to "avoid widespread suffering."

2. To this end, National Capital Housing Authority will seek means to give priority, in any existing legislation or new public housing under its control, to persons ejected from condemned buildings.

3. Careful consideration should be given to extending the code so as to place a proper limitation on occupancy.

4. Every possible effort should be made to obtain an immediate appropriation for the Redevelopment Land Agency and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission under provisions of the local Slum Clearance Act of 1945. This is deemed essential to the early initiation of a slum clearance and redevelopment program for the District," a statement on the program said.

5. The corporation counsel will look into the question of whether the city heads should seek amendments to the pending national housing bill or separate legislation to permit the land agency to "function more efficiently than the existing law permits."

6. The District Commissioners will give careful consideration to certain other suggestions of the District health officer for health code enforcement.

Whitesell bore down on the one major step Congress could take now to help meet slum clearance problems—an immediate appropriation to the land agency, which has been granted a 20-million-dollar authorization over a 10-year period.

"That would be the fastest way to get some action on slum clearance," he told the group.

The land agency, would purchase land for private development in "balanced communities." NCHA, on the other hand, is concerned solely with public housing.

Land Agency Chairman Mark Lansburgh urged the Commissioners to seek legislation to make the agency eligible for national housing funds.

John Ihlder, executive officer of NCHA, told the city heads yesterday that he could go ahead with a low-rent housing program here under another section of the national measure if Congress approves the Senate-passed amendment restoring his site acquisition authority.

General U. S. Grant, chairman of the National Park and Planning Commission, which draws plans for the all local redevelopment projects, agreed that prompt construction of public housing unit. would speed progress of the slum clearance of the work agency.

Grant pointed out at the morning meeting that the land agency must have additional housing for evicted people before it can go ahead with a slum-clearance project.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland told the Senate District Subcommittee that sanitary enforcement could be stepped up if he had:

1. Authority to limit the number of persons permitted to live in a given house.

2. Authority to board up dwellings on grounds of unsanitary conditions without waiting for the Board of Condemnation for Unsanitary Buildings to act.

3. Many more than the present 30 sanitary inspectors on his staff. He suggested merging his food and sanitary inspection forces for visits to blighted areas.

Senator Smith said she was deeply impressed with Ruhland's proposal for a slum educational drive as "one small thing we can do without specific legislation."

Baruch Gives Warning of Propaganda on 'Injustices'

Camden, S. C., April 27 (AP).—Bernard Baruch said today that Americans should "guard against those who would seek to destroy your faith in our Government by talking of injustices and intolerances."

Baruch, financier and adviser to Presidents, spoke at ceremonies marking "Baruch Day" in Camden, his native city.

"I have had intolerance practiced against me and mine all my life," said Baruch, a Jew, "but I never permitted it to rouse in me envy, jealousy or hatred, or to weaken in the slightest my faith in our form of Government, its Constitution and its institutions."

Declaring that he was directing his remarks particularly to the children of Camden, Baruch added:

"Were our form of government to be destroyed, the result would only be intolerance and injustice on a truly terrible scale, as has happened wherever freedom has been destroyed.

"So watch those who want to change our form of government to a so-called welfare state, copied largely after others wallowing in misery and who in their trials look only to us."

Baruch said children should learn "mental and physical discipline; how to get along with your neighbors, and how not to be hurt by real or seeming inequalities and injustices, but to take whatever comes to you and do the best that you can do."

4 Changes Tightening Lesinski Labor Bill Reported Acceptable to Administration

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Administration leaders in the House are prepared to accept four tightening amendments to assure passage of the Lesinski labor relations bill, it was learned yesterday.

As a result of the concessions, the House majority leadership feels certain it can beat down a move by a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats to retain the bulk of the Taft-Hartley Act in the form of the Wood bill.

None of the Administration leaders would admit that concessions were being offered to lure Southern Democrats away from the coalition, and Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), majority leader of the House, denied knowing of any compromise in reply to a direct query by Representative Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.)

Admitted in Private

Nonetheless, in private, several Administration leaders admitted that the amendments would be accepted in order to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act with the Truman-indorsed Lesinski bill.

The four amendments would:

1. Guarantee free speech to employers.
2. Require collective bargaining be undertaken in good faith both by employers and unions.
3. Provide a loyalty oath for both union and company officers.
4. Strengthen the method of dealing with emergency strikes affecting the national health and safety.

Labor leaders have often, though privately, stated willingness to accept the first three amendments. But the fourth amendment would be acceptable to organized labor only if it does not provide for giving the President strike-stopping power by court injunction.

Provides Cool-Off Period

The Lesinski bill, as presently written, provides for a 30-day voluntary cooling off period in emergency strikes, during which a presidential fact-finding committee investigates and comes up with recommendations for settling the dispute.

Meanwhile, the House yesterday completed nine hours of general debate on the Lesinski bill. At noon today, the House will begin taking up amendments, beginning with the coalition-backed Wood bill, which will be immediately proposed as a substitute to the Lesinski bill.

After a listless first day of debate on Tuesday, the House yesterday was treated to several outbursts of heated argument, attack and counterattack.

Dramatic highlight of yesterday's debate was the surprise proposal by Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.), a Lesinski bill supporter, that the Nation's labor leaders call a one-day work stoppage—"not a general strike"—to demonstrate rank-and-file unity behind the unions' drive for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Unions Cool to Idea

Klein disclosed he had made the suggestion in a telegram to union leaders. The suggestion met with a cool reception at both CIO and AFL headquarters. But in the House, the reception to the proposal was warm and even torrid.

A fellow Democrat and New Yorker, Representative Donald O'Toole, declared: "I don't think the responsible labor leaders should be held responsible for the mouthings of a single Congressman."

Representative Walter Brehm (R., Ohio) expressed thanks that the Nation's labor leaders were "more stable" than some Congressmen. Representative Gordon Canfield (R., N. J.) warned the House that Klein's proposed work stoppage would hardly make votes for the Lesinski bill.

Majority Leader McCormack and former Majority Leader Halleck engaged in a hot exchange that found them talking at the same time.

McCormack declared that the Wood bill was the Taft-Hartley Act all over again, but with a new name. Halleck vigorously denied the assertion, insisting that the Wood bill contained amendments to the Taft-Hartley Act in favor of labor.

At one time, McCormack shouted that even Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.), among the sharpest of the Administration critics, didn't like the Taft-Hartley Act.

"It's not strong enough," retorted Hoffman.

Chicago Widow Hacked to Death

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. HAZEL GRINDE, 57, found dead on the blood-smeared bathroom floor of her Chicago apartment, was hacked to death with a pair of 7-inch scissors, police said. Nine gashes were in her neck. Mrs. Grinde, a well-to-do widow of a former loan company official, was found by a daughter, Alice, 27, when she returned from a dinner party. The owner of the apartment building, who was acquitted of a murder charge in 1922, a robbery charge in 1915 and an assault to rob case in 1926, had a key to her apartment and is being questioned

FW A Engineer's Death in Crash Is Held Accident

A coroner's jury yesterday handed down a verdict of accidental death in the streetcar-auto collision early Monday at 6th and D sts. ne. that cost the life of Raymond R. Mosier, 35-year-old Federal Works Agency engineer.

Mosier, who lived at 623 6th st. ne., died about 4 p. m. Monday in Casualty Hospital, eight hours after his automobile collided with a streetcar operated by Homer M. Gwinn, 59, 1300 H st. ne.

Mrs. Frances B. Ward, 417 2d st. ne., a streetcar passenger who was seated directly behind the motorman, testified Gwinn had started the streetcar east on D st. and was in the 6th st. intersection when Mosier's car was seen coming north "at full speed" on 6th st.

Ford Meeting Breaks Up; UAW Board to Act on Strike Today

Detroit, April 27 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co. and the CIO United Auto Workers failed today to settle a strike-threatening dispute over Union "speedup" charges.

The matter of a 65,000-man walkout therefore was placed squarely before the UAW executive board, meeting here Thursday. Union President Walter Reuther has promised that the board would act on a request for strike sanction if the issue was not settled by then.

A three-hour company-union session broke up at noon with no announcement except that there would be no further conference before the board meets.

U. E. to Seek Benefits Totaling $500 a Year

New York, April 27 (AP). — The CIO United Electrical Workers will seek wage increases and other benefits totaling about $500 a year for 600,000 workers, the union said today.

James J. Matles, director of organization for U. E., made the announcement as a news conference. The union represents workers for General Electric, Westinghouse, RCA, Sylvania and other companies.

Matles said the $500 annual figure would include demands for higher wages, pension improvements, health programs and other economic benefits.

It also may include, he said, demands for a shorter work week "to halt the present trend of mounting layoffs, part-time employment and falling weekly earnings.

Shortage of Equipment To Close Packard Plants

Detroit, April 27 (AP).—Packard Motor Car Co. today announced it will be forced to close its assembly plants Thursday night because of a shortage of brake equipment.

Packard is the third car maker to be forced down by the strike in the Bendix Aviation Corp. plant at South Bend, Ind. The others are Nash and Kaiser-Frazier.

The Packard closing will affect 8000 workers and bring to approximately 34,000 the number of workers directly and indirectly affected by the Bendix stoppage.

Vitamins Overcome Alcoholism in Rats

Alcoholism, at least in rats, has been successfully treated with massive doses of vitamins, minerals and amino acids, it was scientifically reported here yesterday.

Moreover, similar treatment may be effective on human alcoholics, said Dr. Roger J. Williams, chief biochemist of the University of Texas.

Dr. Williams reported on his animal experiments and advanced his provocative theory to scientists attending the closing session of the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences, at 2101 Constitution ave.

The proposed treatment for "compulsive drinkers," he said, is based on the proposition that alcoholism may be inherited, that human alcoholics are the victims of inborn "blocks" to natural body processes which set up "perverted appetites."

May Cause Allergies

Other blocks to natural body metabolism, he said, may be found to cause allergies, arthritis, heart disease, multiple sclerosis, mental disorders "and perhaps even cancer."

He lumped all such ills under the coined term "genetotrophic diseases" (geneto signifying inherited, and trophic referring to nutrition) as ills resulting from inborn metabolic blocks with subsequent nutritional deficiency.

This new concept, he reported, is initially supported by results of alcohol experiments on rats, performed at the university's laboratories by himself and his associates, Dr. L. Joe Berry, physiologist, and Dr. Ernest Beerstecher, jr., biochemist.

In the experiment, the rodents were given free choice of water spiked with alcohol or just plain water. Roden response, he reported, was varied.

Some Drank Heavily

"Some drank fairly heavily beginning sometimes the first day the alcohol was offered," Dr. Williams reported. "At the other extreme, some continued to abstain for an indefinite period of time.

"Intermediate between these were those that drank very moderately for an indefinite period of time, and those that drank very little at first but after a few weeks drank relatively heavily."

Genetic influence on alcoholic appetites of the rats was established, toth e researchers' satisfaction, at least, on their findings that the offspring of tested animals "showed substantially the same pattern of response" to the free booze. The pattern was followed even to the third generation of closely inbred strains, he said.

At various stages of the experiments, the animals were fed concentrations of vitamins, minerals and amino acids. And, the scientist reported, in individual cases among the hard-drinking rats, the drinking habit was curbed as much as sevenfold by adding extra amounts of either Vitamin A, B-complex vitamins, linseed oil, or the vitamin which combats pernicious anemia.

The experimental studies, Dr. Williams said, "lead us to conclude that we can by dietary control keep all the rats in a colony from consuming alcohol (under the free-choice conditions).

"We are also convinced that after an appetite for alcohol has been developed, it can be abolished in all rats by a use and extension of the method we have developed . . .

"It is hoped that for the treatment of alcoholism in human beings a 'shotgun' therapy (excessive administration of many substances in the belief one or more may take effect) may be developed which will effectively curb or abolish the excessive appetites of many compulsive drinkers."

River Chestnut Eradication Hearings Open

A $142,000 Army program to eradicate water chestnuts from the Potomac River will be discussed in open hearings at 10 a. m. today before the House Public Works Committee.

The program has the backing of the District Commissioners, Maryland and Virginia officials, and Federal agencies. An Army report estimated that it would result in annual benefits of $150,000. The cost of clearing them up would be spread over 15 years, so that it would average less than $10,000 a year.

The hearing will be in the new House Office Building, Room 1302.

Officials told Congress that eliminating the water chestnuts would reduce pollution, lessen hazards to navigation, increase the recreational value of the Potomac shores, and contribute to reclamation of feeding grounds for fish and wildfowl.

Lieut. Gen. R. A. Wheeler, chief of Army engineers, described the water chestnut as a "pestilential plant" which form dense beds of floating vegetation that often obstruct shipping channels. Some $325,000 has been spent in the past decade to get rid of them.

The hearing will also review these proposed Army river and harbor projects:

A $118,000 harbor near Bowler's Wharf on the Rappahanock River, Va.

An $18,200 channel in St. Patrick's Creek, Md.

A $10,400 channel in Hellens Creek, Md.

A $59,450 channel and boat basin in Governor's Run, Md.

A $76,000 channel and jetties to make Lake Ogleton, near Annapolis, Md., a harbor for small boats. The channel would link the lake with the Severn River.

Penicillin Is Tops Despite Ill Effects

It's almost a heresy to write anything but praise for the wonder drug penicillin, but it does yield some bad reactions.

The occasional ill effects which follow its administration range from simple itchings at the injection site to anaphylactic death, characterized by an outpouring of the blood's fluid into the brain and lungs.

Other reactions include high fevers, nasty skin rashes, large hives, swellings and soreness at the injection site, and serum sickness. The last-named, appearing some five days after administration of penicillin, is unmistakable to anyone who ever experienced it, and is more graphically called "the miseries."

Physicians who have specialized in research with penicillin estimate it causes some noticeable ill effect in up to three persons for each 100 treated. Worst offending form, they say, is penicillin in oil and beeswax. Aqueous penicillin and procaine penicillin in oil with aluminum monostearate are less offending with at least some reaction noted in about one of every 100 persons treated.

But those are only estimates, they emphasized. In statistical practice, only severe reactions are counted. Here the reaction rates range from 6.2 for each 1000 cases downward to 1.3 per 100.

Latest statistics released by the United States Public Health Service on penicillin reactions experienced at rapid treatment centers for early syphilis show but one death. The fatality, blamed on the antibiotic, followed injection of procaine penicillin with 2 per cent aluminum monostearate, commonly used at VD centers.

A second death attributed to anaphylactic shock following penicillin injection was recorded by Dr. George L. Waldbott of Detroit, and published in the February 19 issue of the Journal of the Medical Association.

The victim, a 39-year-old woman, had a four-year history of severe bronchial asthma, it was specially noted. She received her first penicillin injections in April, 1947, receiving intramuscular injections every three hours for seven days.

A second course, in May, 1948, consisted of four daily doses of 300,000 units of procaine penicillin; a third course, on June 30 totaled 400,000 units administered in doses of 50,000 units every three hours. At no time, reported Dr. Waldbott, had there been any ill effect from the therapy, and it was always followed by improvement of the asthma condition.

On August 18, the physician's report continued, the patient came back with severe asthmatic complaint. She was given a vial of Penicillin, and returned home.

"At about 1:45," Dr. Waldbott's report stated, "the first dose of penicillin (50,000 units) was administered. . . . Within five seconds the patient complained of a strange taste in her mouth and tongue and swelling and tightness in the throat and nose; her face became flushed, bloated and extremely cyanotic (blue); she felt itchy all over.

"Leaning over the kitchen table and asking for a glass of water, she collapsed and died immediately."

He diagnosed the death as anaphylactic shock, end reaction in allergic cases in which the patients receive substances to which they have become over-sensitized.

Although no physician claims that all persons who experience penicillin reactions have histories of allergy symptons, it has been noted that in the majority of severe reactions recorded and studied allergies have prevailed.

Specialists in penicillin research advise that patients who have had ill effects from penicillin be wary of its continued use—and at least tell their physician of their experience before he gives them further "shots."

Baby Pops Pop And It's a 'KO'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

THE WINNA'—Richard "Rickey" Peloquin, seven months old, has his gloved right hand raised in the fighter's victory gesture by his father, Ralph Peloquin, after the youngster accidentally "ko'ed" his dad. The father, an ardent fight fan, was fastening the miniature gloves on his son when one of them slipped to the floor. As he bent down to pick it up, Rickey swept the 6-pound, coin-filled bank off his highchair and it struck daddy on the head (note bandage). Pop was out cold for several seconds. Both live in Berlin, N. H.

$15 Cancer Center 'Contribution' Here Highest in Nation

The $15 "contribution" charged applicants at the five cancer detection centers here is the highest within the national network of such clinics, it was disclosed yesterday.

In contrast, residents of adjoining Maryland get their cancer detection tests free in their State, without pleading poverty and without advance solicitation.

Chief reason for the high fee here is that the District Division of the American Cancer Society must pay all expenses of the centers, explained Dr. Peter D. Comanduras, division medical director.

"At many other centers throughout the Nation," he declared, "much of the expense is met by the community, the county or the State.

"Here we must pay for everything. That includes rent, heat, electricity, janitor service, secretaries, nurses and the examiners. If the Health Department here would provide quarters with building services and nursing facilities we probably wouldn't have to require the contributions."

Another reason for the $15 fee, he said, is that local cancer funds of the ACS are used as much as possible to finance cancer research and cancer diagnostic and treatment service here.

"We are trying to make the detection centers as self-sustaining as possible so we can use our funds for the other purposes," he explained.

Though there have been but few protests to the $15 charge, he said, it apparently has cut down the applications. Last summer, when the charge was $15, applicants had to wait three or more months for the examinations.

"Today a person may get examination in about a week after application," he said.

The $15 still does not cover the full costs of operating the centers, Dr. Comanduras said, nor does it pay back any of the approximately $1000 put up by the cancer society to initially equip each of the five centers.

The cancer detection centers sponsored by the ACS here are located at Garfield, Doctors, Georgetown, George Washington and Children's Hospitals. Freedmen's Hospital, Federal institution for Negroes, offers the test at a $1 charge, but free to those who can't pay.

The District Health Department operates one cancer detection center at Gallinger Hospital, without charge to District indigents.

Dr. Thomas Nealon of New York, assistant director of services, medical and scientific department, American Cancer Society, said service charges for ACS-sponsored cancer detection clinics in United States range from nothing to $15.

The top fee, he said, is charged in Boston, Mass., as well as Washington, D. C., and "probably in a few other, smaller cities." Until the detection services are standardized, Dr. Nealon said, there is no way of determining an average actual cost of the examinations.

"It probably runs around $20," he estimated.

A check of cancer detection services in Maryland shows that in that State no fee is charged regardless of the financial state of the applicant.

The centers are underwritten through funds of the ACS in the various counties in cooperation with the State Health Department. The State thus provides quarters and some of the routine tests, such as urinalyses, while the ACS pays the examiners and does the stenographic work at its headquarters.

In Baltimore, the society pays the whole bill at Johns Hopkins Hospital, an actual cost rate of $3.05 an out-patient visit, and provides the examiners. At University and Providence Hospitals, there, the society pays the examiners only, with the hospitals providing the quarters, testing facilities and other services.

Only solicitation made of Maryland applicants is a routine request for a contribution to the ACS which is mailed to persons receiving the examination. The mailing list is compiled from records processed at the detection centers, it was said.

In contrast, applicants at the five District cancer detection centers who plead inability to pay the $15 contribution are not accepted, said Dr. Comanduras, The applicants, however, are referred to Gallinger Hospital if they qualify as District indigents, he said.

Murder Charged

Wife Death Guilt Denied By Minister

THE REV. GEORGE HETENYI,
. . . Charged with slaying

Rochester, N. Y., April 27 (U.P.).—A powerfully built, handsome Episcopal minister, who once was ordained a priest in the Greek Orthodox Church, was charged with first-degree murder tonight in the slaying of his estranged wife.

The Rev. George Paul Hetenyi, of Amherst, N. Y., was arraigned late today and granted a one-week adjournment to allow an attorney time to appear with him.

Hetenyi declared: "I did not murder my wife. I am innocent."

The bullet-pierced body of Mrs. Jean Gareis Hetenyi, 25, a former violinist with the Oakland (Calif.) Symphony Orchestra, was found in the Genesee River Saturday.

Police stated that a bullet taken from Hetenyi's automobile was found to match two bullets removed from his wife's body. Police said the clergyman had driven his car into a Buffalo gas station Saturday and offered to "pay double" if the upholstery was cleaned of rustcolored stains.

Authorities also found Hetenyi had taken a woman's stained coat into a cleaning establishment to have it dyed, and left a suit of his own stained clothes at another cleaners.

No report of chemical analysis has been made and the death weapon has not been found

The victim's mother, Mrs. William B. Gareis, arrived by plane from Oakland, Calif., and said she knew of the couple's reported marital difficulties.

New York, April 27 (AP).—The world Paul Makushak shunned for 10 years closed in on him today. He didn't like it.

While psychiatrists sought to fathom his mind, Makushak, 33, pleaded to go back to the dark, filthy cubicle in the wall of a Brooklyn tenement house where he says he lived since 1939.

Police broke through the wall last night and fell back before the fetid air of the cubicle and the strange sight confronting them. Out crawled a massive man wrapped in filthy rags. A great fringe of curling dark beard almost covered his face. Dark eyes blinked at unaccustomed bright light.

He was stooped and barely able to stand after the 10 years in his 3x5-foot cave. He had not bathed in 10 years. His cubbyhole contained no sanitary facilities. Virtually all his time there he spent lying on a filthy pallet.

Hidden by Mother

His tailor father, Peter, said he had not seen Paul since Paul went on an errand for him 10 years ago.

His mother, who fed him and tended to his needs, guarded the secret of his existence until she was forced to go to a hospital yesterday.

District Attorney Miles F. McDonald said today there was no evidence of any crime, since Makushak entered his living tomb voluntarily. He added that Makushak told him:

"If I'm released I want to go back to the room."

United States Attorney Frank J. Parker and the FBI sought to learn if Makushak had gone in hiding to avoid the draft. If he had been there since 1939, as his father believed, he could not have crawled away to avoid the draft, which was not enacted then.

On the other hand, his cubicle contained an old radio. But Makushak claimed he knew nothing about the war. He said he didn't care how the world was running. He spent his life sleeping and practicing shorthand.

Makushak answered most questions calmly. But psychiatrists at Kings County Hospital hoped to learn why he shunned the world and then, if possible, readjust him to society. They had a few clews to work on after he was cleansed and placed in a clean bed in a sunlit hospital room.

Makushak's parents quarreled and separated. His father lived downstairs in his tailor shop. His mother lived upstairs handy to her son's third-floor cubicle. On one of the rare occasions when the parents spoke, Mrs. Makushak told her husband Paul was in Canada.

As police half-carried him from the tenement last night Paul smiled at his bewildered father and said, "hello, Pete."

Later the tailor said despondently. "He didn't even call me pop."

When asked if his mother had anything to do with keeping him prisoner, Paul snapped:

"Don't blame her, I imprisoned myself because I didn't care how the outside world was going."

A neighbor, whom Mrs. Makushak asked to feed her son while she was in the hospital, notified police. Physicians reported the mother hysterical in the hospital after learning he was discovered.

Makushak said he didn't care for girls and never was in love. He had taken a year's business course after graduating from Bushwick High School in 1937—lowest man in a class of 237. Though not an apt student, he was recalled by fellow pupils as active in extracurricular activities.

Decapitation Trial Begins

Bland, Va., April 27 (AP).—The Commonwealth said today it will try to prove in the murder trial of Ralph A. Newberry, 37, that his wife was still alive just before she was beheaded last January.

In a 40-minute opening statement, special Commonwealth's Attorney John R. Boggess said fingerprints and other evidence will be introduced to identify the victim as Newberry's wife, Katheryn, 37.

He said the prosecution will show that she was beaten probably into unconsciousness with "fists or some deadly weapon" before she was beheaded.

Boggess called it "one of the most revolting and shocking crimes in the history of Virginia."

Judge V. L. Sexton, jr., admonished Boggess to limit his opening statement to what the Commonwealth expects to prove in the case after Defense Attorney James Livingston Dillow objected to parts of the statement, saying Boggess was "drawing conclusions."

4th Convicted In Rape Case

Martinsville, Va., April 27 (AP).—A Circuit Court jury today convicted Howard Lee Hairston of rape and fixed his penalty at death.

The jury deliberated 1 hour and 20 minutes before reaching its decision.

A motion to set aside the verdict as contrary to the law and evidence was overruled by Judge Kennon C. Whittle, who deferred formal sentencing until the completion of other trials in the case.

Hairston and six other men were indicted for the January 8 criminal assault on Mrs. Ruby Stroud Floyd. He was the fourth of the group to be tried separately and the fourth convicted. In each case, the penalty has been fixed by the jury at death.

Hairston did not take the witness stand in his own defense as did Joe Henry Hampton, Frank Hairston, jr., and Booker T. Millner, the three previously convicted.

State and local police officers testified to the arrest of the defendants. A confession obtained from Hairston was introduced in the trial

Defense Cites Bible In 'Big Joe' Trial

Second Trial

Witness Tells Norfolk Jury Of Bribery.

Norfolk, Va., April 27 (AP).—C. A. Withrow, a former policeman, testified today he had been payoff man at the First Precinct since last May for Carvel Benson, who has been arrested often on numbers lottery charges.

Withrow was the first witness to testify today at Benson's second trial on a charge of bribery. Benson's first trial ended in a hung jury last month. He was indicted by a special grand jury which spent eight weeks investigating police corruption and vice conditions.

Withrow today identified a list of policemen's names as a list he had given Benson and said it was a payoff sheet. He said Benson gave him $240 last November 30 to pass on to policemen whose names were on the list. Withrow described Benson as "one of the largest gamblers in town."

The ex-policeman told the jury that "the police force was corrupt when I came here 11 years ago . . . I know because I was mixed up in it." He said he "stayed pretty clean for two or three years" before he accepted money from racketeers.

Seventy persons have been summoned as witnesses, indicating a long trial.

Commonwealth's Attorney H. Lawrence Bullock told the jury that police arrested Benson in a raid on a Church st. establishment December 2, that Benson displayed a list of "68 or 69" policemen and declared that if he went to jail the policemen on the list would go with him.

Twenty-four patrolmen have been indicted on charges of accepting bribes from Benson through Withrow. They will be tried next month.

The Bible was quoted in defense of Joseph H. (Big Joe) Scheve by his counsel, Charles E. Ford, as arguments in his assault and gambling trial were completed yesterday.

District Court Judge Henry A. Scweinhaut will send the case to the jury today. Scheve is charged with assaulting Robert Ricker with intent to kill, assaulting him with a loaded pistol, and gaming. Three other defendants are charged with gaming.

Ford referred to the Bible in an effort to prove that Scheve was justifiably angry when he hit Ricker in the head with the butt of his pistol.

Money-Lenders' Case Cited

"Even the Lord once felt anger, when he whipped the money-lenders from the temple," Ford summed up. "So Scheve felt anger when he could not get out of the house after five hours of effort."

Prosecutor Arthur J. McLaughlin, in his summation, contended that during the three-day trial the evidence had shown:

1. Scheve, his son, Theodore, 2521 34th pl. se.; Hyman Rosen, 40, 1616 Isherwood st. nw., and Herman "The Judge" Kadan were involved in night-long crap games in the basement of Kadan's home at 2730 Woodley pl. nw.

2. On the morning of January 6, in Kadan's home, Scheve hit Ricker on the head with the butt of his pistol and then pulled the trigger of the pistol, aimed at Ricker, repeatedly. The pistol failed to explode.

Calls Ricker a Blackmailer

Ford offered virtually no defense to the gambling indictment in his 70-minute summation. He called Ricker a "despicable blackmailer," and said his clients were in court only because they refused to submit to blackmail.

Whispering one minute and shouting the next, Ford told the jury "Big Joe" Scheve had a right to brush Mrs. Ricker aside in his efforts to leave the Kadan house, and had a right to defend himself when Ricker subsequently "attacked him." Scheve has admitted he hit Ricker on the head with the butt of his pistol, but argued the blow was struck in self-defense.

Ford denied Scheve pulled the trigger of his pistol, and said that it was physically impossible to click the trigger of an automatic pistol without an explosion, as charged by the Government. The pistol was not introduced in evidence.

Horse Player Keeps Phone

District Court Judge David A. Pine yesterday finally signed an order he granted two weeks ago, enjoining the removal of the telephone of a Maryland horse player.

The injunction was granted to Nathan Miller, 4923 LaSalle rd., Avondale, Md., one of the 300 persons whose telephones United States Attorney George Morris Fay is seeking to remove in his drive to curtail gambling. Miller has admitted he makes his living "following the horses."

Before he signed the order, Pine rejected three drafts submitted to him by Miller's counsel and the Government.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City was enjoined from removing Miller's telephone on the basis of a letter it received from Fay, requesting removal.

Fay was enjoined from requesting removal of Miller's telephone on the grounds it was being used to violate District gambling laws.

In his verbal opinion two weeks ago, Judge Pine ruled that it had not been shown Miller used his Maryland telephone to violate District laws. He specifically refused to enjoin its removal on other grounds. He said he had heard evidence indicating Miller's telephone was being used to violate Maryland laws.

Fay is expected to appeal Judge Pine's decision, although he would not comment yesterday.

Judge Pine yesterday insisted on accurate phrasing of his order "so the Court of Appeals might understand" completely his reasoning.

Slot Machine Cases In St. Marys Quashed

Fifteen St. Mary's County residents indicted for operating slot machines illegally before the devices were legalized in the county will not be brought to trial.

This was learned yesterday when Montgomery County officials said State's Attorney John H. T. Brisco of St. Mary's, had requested the cases be dropped.

The 15 indictments were transferred to Montgomery in December, 1947, after St. Mary's officials complained they could not get convictions against the defendants in jury trials there.

Trial was delayed in Montgomery at the request of St. Mary's officials.

Charles County Slot Machines Now Silent, Crusading Minister Reports

La Plata, Md., April 27 (Spl.).—The teasing jangle of illegal slot machines has been temporarily silenced in Charles County—by gambling interests—according to a crusading clergyman.

Nearly all the estimated 1200 one-arm bandits have been hidden recently, the Rev. Harold A. Milstead, pastor of Calvary Methodist Church in Waldorf, told a reporter. He suggested two reasons for the cease play order:

1. Slot machine operators want to remove possible evidence before the grand jury goes into session May 16.

2. Operators are trying to take propaganda ammunition from those opposed to a bill for a referendum on legalizing slot machines in the county.

Opposition to the bill, now before Governor Lane, is being mapped by the Charles County Ministerial Association, recently formed, with Mr. Milstead as chairman. He is planning a mass meeting May 6.

The clergyman said he has written Sheriff Elmer M. Quade, charging there is an "unabashed, defiant and scandalous violation of the laws of this State and county in regard to the slot machine racket."

"Therefore, Mr. Sheriff," Milstead said he wrote, "I call upon you to do your sworn duty by enforcing the gambling laws, along with every law, and rid our county of this scourge."

Quade, asked about his reaction to Milstead's charges, said "He's just got a brainstorm. He's not hurting himself, but he's not hurting anyone else either."

"I haven't seen a slot machine in 60 days," Quade said. "If my deputies saw any recently they never told me."

Editorial Awards Given

New York, April 27 (UP).—John H. Crider, editor-in-chief of the Boston Herald, and Wilbur B. Mueller, editor of the Moline (Ill.) Daily Dispatch, received the 1948 editorial awards of the United States Council of the International Chamber of Commerce tonight.

Bright sun shining—new greenery showing—soft breezes calling you onto the highway—this is the season that Buick of yours was made for!

And you can have all that—with just a little attention to some simple things to shake the winter out of its bones.

For instance—the rusty sludge that has accumulated in your radiator should be cleaned out. Transmission and rear end may be low on lubrication, and should be checked. Crankcase oil should be changed to a summer grade.

The underside of your car has taken a lot of splashing on wet roads. Some of the chassis grease has been washed out, some of it fouled with mud and grit.

So it's time to drain out the dregs of winter. Time for a little of the knowing, loving care every Buick gets at the hands of our Buick-trained men, armed with Buick-developed tools, Buick-established methods, Buick-engineered parts.

It doesn't take long, doesn't cost much. But it goes a long way toward making old Buicks step out again like lively spring colts. How about stopping in—this week—to see about a spring rejuvenation for your faithful Buick?

Check your car--- Check accidents!

Driving is twice the fun when you have complete confidence in your car—when you know that tires, brakes, steering, lights and the like won't let you down.

Altogether, there are 10 points to be checked for safety on any car. Bring your Buick in to us for a thorough going-over before setting off on your spring safaris. We'll take the worry and fuss off your hands—so you can be carefree at the wheel.

Senate Triples Cancer Fund To $15 Million

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday tripled its appropriation for cancer research after a salvo of warnings that one out of every five persons in the United States is doomed to the painful, lingering death of the cancer victim.

On motion of Senator Warren Magnuson (D., Wash.) the Senate increased funds for cancer research from five million dollars to 15 million dollars in an amendment to the Labor-Federal Security Appropriation bill.

In its appropriation for the National Cancer Institute at Bethesda, the Senate increased the provision for grants-in-aid to States to fight cancer from $17,027,000 to $21,650,000.

Included in this is a provision for $148,000 for research at Georgetown University.

Sees "Startling Neglect"

Magnuson termed cancer the No. 2 killer of the Nation, and said there was "a startling neglect" of this dread disease, nearly half of whose victims are under 65.

He told the Senate the Nation has one cancer detection center for every 1,500,000 persons and needs one for every 100,000 persons.

Senator Matthew N. Neely (D., W. Va.), relating the long congressional battle to provide funds for cancer research, said he had seen Senator after Senator and Representative after Representative die from cancer.

The vote for the increase was unanimous. Then the Senate turned its attention to heart disease, labeled the Nation's No. 1 killer.

Fund Topped $7,667,000

As finally approved the appropriation for fighting heart disease during the year starting July 1 is $16,392,000, or $7,667,000 more than was proposed by the committee. Chairman Dennis Chavez (D., New Mex.) and Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) succeeded in getting reconsideration of the vote, but the Senate confirmed its previous action by a roll call vote of 42-to-34.

Also approved were contract authorizations for the National Heart Institute totaling $12,625,000 as against $3,850,000 proposed in the bill.

Later the Senate defeated, 43 to 25, an amendment by Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) to add nine million dollars in Federal funds for research into the causes and cure of mental illnesses. The extra funds would have gone to psychiatric centers of the United States Public Health Service and to the National Advisory Mental Health Council. One out of every 10 persons needs psychiatric help sometime during his lifetime, Pepper said, and one person out of 20 spends some time in a mental institution.

McGrath Calls Home Rule Bill Democracy 'Seed'

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) yesterday called the District's Home Rule bill "important to people all over the world to whom we are trying to sell the democratic way of life."

McGrath, who is chairman of the Senate District Committee, and of the Democratic National Committee, spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club in the Mayflower Hotel.

It's hard to sow the seeds of democracy overseas, the Senator said, when foreigners can "turn around and say you have a million people living in your own national Capital and they don't have a single word to say about their Government."

Two Illinois Boys Plead Guilty in Teacher Shooting

Arthur, Ill., April 27 (AP).—Two boys accused of shooting a country school teacher after they were spanked for writing notes were held for the grand jury today.

Lloyd Titus, 16, of Glen Phillips, 11, were charged with assault with intent to commit a felony (theft of an automobile).

The boys entered no plea. They were unable to post bond.

Mrs. Nina Donahoo, 57, teacher of the White school near here, shot through the groin, probably will recover. Sheriff Glen W. Braden said the boys related they were spanked Monday by Mrs. Donahoo's husband, George, teacher of the nearby Maple Grove School. He had caught them passing notes.

PUC Waives Bidding Rule In Pepco Case

By S. Oliver Goodman

Potomac Electric Power Co. was granted permission yesterday afternoon to sell 592,250 shares of additional common stock without competitive bidding.

"The record indicates extreme doubt that any material advantage would be gained by . . . competitive bidding," the District Public Utilities Commission said in its formal order approving Pepco's petition for a waiver.

"The record clearly shows," the PUC added, "that in order to dispose successfully of an issue of common stock of a public utility company in this area, any group undertaking the task would require the assistance of local investment bankers."

The waiver decision follows intervention by Otis & Co. at a PUC hearing. The Cleveland investment house had contended that Pepco could obtain a better price for its proposed issue by allowing competitive bidding. The Otis firm also had offered to enter a bid.

In its decision the PUC pointed out that in permitting a negotiated deal on the stock, the underwriting fees and subscription price still are subject to the commission's review.

The PUC authorized the sale by competitive bidding of a 10-million-dollar issue of Pepco first mortgage bonds. Proceeds of this and the stock issue will be used to meet Pepco construction needs this year.

Both proposed issues are already registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Amendments will be filed to include yesterday's PUC order and several minor revisions. Effective date of the SEC registration is expected to be about May 3 and the company will invite bids on the bond issue to be opened about May 9. Subscription price for the stock issue also is expected to be determined on that date.

New York Cotton

New York, April 27 (AP).—Cotton futures were irregular today, with final prices 65 cents a bale lower to 40 cents higher. The halting of all cotton shipments to China by ECA pointed to lower cotton export prospects brought in heavy selling in the old crop deliveries. Declines extending to $1.75 a bale were accentuated by the absence of export buying in futures which has been a sustaining influence in past week. The market later improved on mill buying and short covering.

Sawyer Lifts Export Curbs On 500 Items

The Commerce Department yesterday ended export controls on some 500 nonstrategic items, including foods, building materials, bathtubs, quinine and cash registers.

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer said the decree about doubles the number of products which can be shipped without Government say-so. They were removed from controls because there is a good domestic supply.

The Associated Press said in a New York dispatch that trade circles there interpreted the lifting of export controls as "an open invitation to American businessmen to get out and do business all over the world."

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial production dropped in March for the fourth straight month and the downswing is continuing.

March output, on the board's seasonally adjusted index, fell to 184 per cent of the 1935-39 average compared with 189 in February and 191 in March, 1948. The peak was 195 in October and November last year.

Simultaneously, the board said, prices of industrial commodities dropped generally in March and April, with sharp reductions in metal scrap and nonferrous metals. Employment in factories also showed a "further marked reduction" in March.

The two-week halt in coal mining was a factor in sending industrial production down in March. But apart from that, there was a decline of about 2 per cent in production of manufactured goods.

"Although coal output was restored in April, present indications are that total industrial output has declined further," the board said.

While this report provided added evidence of an easing of economic activity, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder told a news conference that he still holds "confidence in continued prosperity."

Observing that his position is neither "optimistic nor pessimistic," Snyder explained:

"I have absolute confidence that if we go about working in an energetic way—as we always have—we've got the purchasing power to continue in a prosperous period for some time to come."

Sen. Baldwin Says He Put Family First

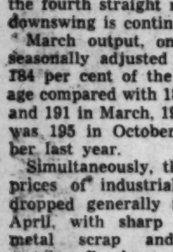
Stratford, Conn., April 27 (AP).—United States Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) said today at his home here he was considering his family rather than a political future when he accepted a seat on the Connecticut Supreme Court bench.



Sen. Baldwin

Baldwin said he had telephoned Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) yesterday after accepting Democratic Gov. Chester Bowles' offer to be associate justice on the State Supreme Court of Errors, and had told him this.

He said he told Vandenberg the judgeship was something he had pointed toward and wanted for many years, and that when the opportunity presented itself, he felt that this time his family, rather than his political party, should be considered.

Baldwin said he told Vandenberg and Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) in telephone conversations that his decision was final and was not made at the spur of the moment.

In commenting on remarks from Washington which he said indicated belief he might be deserting the party at a time when his vote was needed in the Senate, Baldwin said he expected to continue his legislative work until he takes his place in the State Supreme Court next December.

Baldwin said the Malmedy massacre hearings, for which he is chairman, will be resumed Friday.

Confession Reported In Oakland Base Fire

Oakland, Cal., April 27 (UP).—An 18-year-old Army private has confessed setting the million dollar Oakland Army base fire March 15 on an "impulse" while doing sentry duty, Army authorities announced today.

The youth was identified as Pvt. Bobby J. McBride, of Dinuba, Cal. McBride said he started the six-alarm blaze by touching his cigarette lighter to a burlap wrapping on a stack of outbound cargo.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE PRESIDENCY of the United States has its advantages. If you happen to be the President and also a friend of Del Webb's, you get a gold lifetime pass to Yankee Stadium, like yesterday when Mr. Truman received Mr. Webb at the White House with one hand and latched onto his gaudy pass-gate credentials with the other.

Mr. Truman's collection of gold passes, incidentally, ranks him as runner-up to the late Mr. Roosevelt in that department of White House affairs. He has been doing very well as a two-term man. Congress has not yet seen fit to pension former Presidents, though their widows get a $5000 yearly grant, but it would mount to no inconsiderable nest-egg if Mr. Truman were forced by circumstances to melt down those gold Annie Oakleys.

POVICH

For the President there are gold passes to the American League games and gold passes to the National League games, and even to the Caps' basketball games, and the two major pro league games, and those are merely seasonal things. Friend Webb came up with the grand gesture—a lifetime pass, good even after Mr. Truman chooses to leave office or is voted out. It's no fair-weather pass.

NOT THAT Yankee Owner Webb needed to go to the White House bearing gifts. He goes way back with the President, did a rapid job of it building Army camps under high pressure early in the war, and was complimented at that time by the then Senator Harry Truman, head of the Senate's eagle-eyed War Expenditures Committee.

The White House used to be the private preserve of Clark Griffith on these pass-bestowing expeditions, starting with President Taft, and if it wasn't conceived as a deft publicity touch that's what it amounted to. It made all the papers, and the American League was basking in its exclusive pipeline to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. Mr. Griffith had a nice thing, and it didn't hurt baseball.

About 10 years ago, Ford Frick, the old newspaperman who took the job as president of the National League—the pay was nicer than dealing in old newspapers—began to catch on to Griffith's stunt, and crowded into the act. He started trekking to the White House to present the Presidents with National League passes, and call attention to the fact that there is a National League.

NEXT TO GET into the act was that splendid fellow, your friend and yours, George Preston Marshall, who runs the Washington Redskins. All of a sudden it dawned on Marshall, even before his talent scouts realized it, that the man in the White House was a terrific pass-receiver. So Marshall scurried up a gold pass in the late years of F.D.R.'s Administration, got himself a date at the White House, and handed it over.

Marshall has been going up to see Mr. Truman, too, bearing gifts of a gold pass to the National League Football games, but thus far Mr. Truman has not dignified the giver by attending one of the Redskins' games. For his opening-game ceremonies, Marshall, has had to settle for Army and Navy braid, or a Cabinet officer, or such, definitely a comedown from baseball's command of the presidential presence.

That may have been in Marshall's craw last winter when he decided upon a change of coaches for his Redskins, and fired Turk Edwards. His new choice, you remember, was Rear Admiral John Welchel, and Marshall thus dignified himself as the only civilian outside of the President to boast a naval aide. On his next trek to the White House he can go with new honors.

THE ALL-AMERICA Football Conference wasn't far behind after Marshall initiated the President into accepting gold football passes. Publicity Director Jack Espey recognized the ease with which it could be done, and promptly the AAC got into the act. Always it must be a gold pass, that is unless the Senate's famed silver bloc starts throwing it's weight around again and begins asking why.

It remained for Webb, though, to do the really decent thing and perpetuate the President's welcome to his ball park, even after he is no longer the President. It isn't a money-saving gsture with the long view of economizing on gold passes every year, because I assume the cost is all deductible. It's just the nice thing to do for an old friend, Webb is thinking.

Webb is thinking of doing another nice thing to an old friend, today, he tells me. He is thinking of taking his old friend, Bob Hope, out to the Columbia Country Club and presenting him with a golf lesson and he intends to make that, too, perpetual.

Boudreau Hurts Arm, Leaves Game

Cleveland, April 27 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians went on a batting spree today, pounding five Chicago White Sox pitchers for 13 hits, including two home runs, a triple and a pair of doubles for an 11 to 3 romp.

The game was marred by an injury to Tribe Manager Lou Boudreau. A ball pitched by Orval Grove in the seventh inning struck Boudreau on the left elbow and eventually forced his retirement. The Cleveland pilot remained in the game long enough to advance from first to third on a double by Joe Gordon, then retired in favor of Rookie Ike Boone.

X-ray pictures later showed Boudreau's injury apparently was only a bruise.

Mickey Vernon, new Tribe first sacker obtained in a trade with Washington, smashed his first round-tripper of the season with Gordon aboard in the first. Ken Keltner clouted his second with two on in a four-run seventh inning.

DOM IS DOOMED—Dom DiMaggio, of the Red Sox, slides into a cloud of dust in the fourth inning against the Athletics yesterday, only to be met by Catcher Joe Astroth who's blocking the plate and waiting for Dom with the ball. Dom wasn't the only man out on the play. Umpire Art Passarella was knocked down (note his hat flying from his head) and time had to be called for a few moments while Passarella regained his composure. No. 9 is Ted Williams and No. 24 is Pitcher Carl Schieb, of the A's. The Red Sox won, 10-6

Bosox Win On 2 Homers By Stephens

Boston, April 27 (AP).—For the second time this season Vern Stephens drove in five runs in a single game as he walloped two mighty home runs to lead Boston's Red Sox to a 10-6 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics today before 12,677 happy fans.

Stephens' first four-bagger was a towering smash which cleared wall and screen in left field and scored two mates ahead of him in the first inning.

That gave starting Pitcher Ellis Kinder a three-run lead but the Boston right-hander couldn't stand prosperity and gave up four runs in the third when Taft Wright lined a three-run homer in to the right field stands.

Kinder was rapped for the other two Athletic runs in the fourth when Eddie Joost doubled off the wall in center driving in two runners and sending the Boston pitcher to the showers.

Kinder was replaced by Lefty Earl Johnson who twirled four-hit shut-out ball the rest of the route.

After the Sox picked up another run in the fourth, Stephens rapped his second homer of the game in the fifth, scoring Ted Williams, who had walked, ahead of him.

The powerful Stephens' previous big day with his run-producing bat was last Saturday when he hit two homers and a triple and sent five Boston runs across the plate as the Red Sox whipped the New York Yankees, 11-8.

Griffs Score 3 in 9th To Upset New Yorkers

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

All of a sudden the Nats got rough last night, wiped out a three-run Yankee lead in the ninth and won a 4-3 ball game in the tenth before 18,762 happily astonished fans at Griffith Stadium.

In a situation where they were threatened with their eighth straight defeat—losing 3-0 with two out in the ninth and nobody on base—the Nats began to take charge. They drove Allie Reynolds out of the box and an inning later conked Joe Page for the winning run.

The Yanks were only one pitch away from their sixth straight win when it happened—a 3-and-2 fast ball that pinch hitter Clyde Vollmer swatted for a triple against the left center wall to drive home the tying two runs in the ninth.

Thompson Starts It

And then against Joe Page in the tenth, Pitcher Forrest Thompson personally launched the winning run by dropping a two-bagger into left center to open the inning.

The situation invited panic by the Yankees and that's what happened. When Sam Dente missed an attempt to bunt, Rookie Catcher Ralph Houk threw low to second base in an attempt to trap Thompson off. The ball skidded off Phil Rizzuto's glove, and Thompson disengaged himself from the pile-up at second base to scamper to third.

Whereupon Dente terminated these seven straight defeats with a line single to right that broke up the ball game.

Haefner Hurls Well

But that ninth was the thrill inning for the Nats' customers. Mickey Haefner wasn't around to see it. He had been relieved in the bottom of the eighth after holding the Yankees to five hits but finding himself on the short end of a 2-0 duel with Reynolds.

The Yanks came up with a third run against Thompson in the ninth, and the Nats looked like a hopeless crew at that juncture, having been shut out in their last 20 innings.

It appeared impossibly hopeless, in fact, when Coan and Lewis grounded out to open the ninth, and then the Nats started getting in their licks. Eddie Stewart, maker of two of the Nats' five hits to that point, dropped a two-bagger into center. Eddie Yost singled to left to score him. Now the hits were literally eddying off the Nats' bats, because Eddie Robinson banged a single to center that put the tying run on.

Out of the dugout strolled big Vollmer to pinch hit for Al Kozar with Manager Joe Kuhel angling for the long ball that would tie the score. Reynolds quickly busted two strikes past Vollmer. Then two balls. Two more, Vollmer fouled off. The count reached 3 and 2. Vollmer tipped a foul into Yogi Berra's mitt and the game apparently was over, but Berra couldn't hold the twisting ball, and the Nats had a reprieve.

Vollmer Hits 3-2 Pitch.

The next time Vollmer swung it was beauteous for the Nats' fans to see, to say nothing of the heartening effects on the Washington bench. It was a line-drive swat between Lindell and Bauer to left center, and Yost was home and so was pinch runner John Simmons, all the way from first with the run that made it 3-3.

The Yanks protested loudly that Vollmer was out on Rizzuto's relay to third base, but Umpire Bill McGowan. ATTENDANCE—18,762. TIME—2:34.

Browns Beat Newhouser in 12 Innings, 4-3

Detroit, April 27 (AP). — Right-hander Karl Drews, aided by some healthy slugging by Bob Dillinger and Paul Lehner, put the St. Louis Browns back on the victory road today as he beat the Detroit Tigers 4 to 3 in 12 innings.

Dillinger and Lehner got three hits apiece off Lefty Hal Newhouser who gave up only nine hits while losing his first game after two previous victories.

The win snapped the Brownies' seven-game losing streak.

Dillinger got things under way in the top of the twelfth when he led off with a single and moved to second on Eddie Pellagrini's sacrifice. Lehner then singled sharply to right center, scoring Dillinger with what proved to be the winning run.

The Tigers came right back in the bottom of the twelfth to get a rally under way.

Aaron Robinson and Rookie Johnny Groth singled successfully to put runners on first and second with none away. Drews bore down and forced George Vico to hit into a double play, with Robinson moving to third. Dick Wakefield came in as a pinch hitter for Hal Newhouser and fouled out to Third Baseman Dillinger to end the game.

Rojek 'Beaned', Bucs Blast Cards, 7-1, Behind Dickson

St. Louis, April 27 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates pushed in four runs in the first inning, then went on for a 7-to-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals tonight.

Murry Dickson hurled the Pirate victory as the club moved into a first-place tie with the New York Giants in the National League.

Pirate Shortstop Stan Rojek was struck in the head by a pitched ball in the ninth inning.

Rojek walked about 25 steps then collapsed, unconscious.

He apparently was hit in the right temple. Ken Johnson was the Redbird pitcher.

It was the second time tonight Rojek was hit by a pitched ball. He was touched on the left arm by a ball pitched by Gerry Staley in the fifth frame, but was not hurt that time.

The seriousness of Rojek's injury was not determined immediately.

Those Wondrous Nats

NOW, whattaya think of our Nats?

Those skeptics, who left the park with two out in the ninth last night, missed another terrific finish. And it served 'em right, too.

Our boys were due to bust loose. Haven't I been telling you.

Sure that's only two wins for us, but look how we won 'em both. We whipped the As with two in the ninth. And now we whipped the Yanks with three in the ninth and one in the tenth.

The league-leading Yankees, by golly.

It's hard to pick out any one hero, so many of 'em were wunnerful. There was Eddie Stewart starting the rally with two out in the ninth. And Clyde Vollmer smacked that game-tying triple in the ninth.

Course that's nothing new for Vollmer. He's the same guy, remember, who won the opener.

And what about our Mr. Forrest Thompson. His great relief pitching, then his double in the tenth, and his heads-up play when the Yanks started tossing the ball around. And Sammy Dente's winning single. His birthday was just Tuesday. Bless Sammy.

In the excitement, let's not forget big hearted little Mickey Haefner, who pitched eight excellent innings, and retired for a pinch hitter. He gets no official credit for the win, but he deserves something.

That win was the turning point. Our Nats are back up in a tie for seventh. We're on our way up.

Giant Rookie's Grand Slam Beats Bums

New York, April 27 (AP).—Rookie Outfielder Pete Milne's pinch-hit home run with the bases loaded in the seventh inning gave the New York Giants an 11-8 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today and moved them back into the league lead.

Milne's blow, off Relief Pitcher Ezra (Pat) McGlothin, was a line drive that eluded Centerfielder Duke Snider and rolled past him to the centerfield wall.

Until that hit, it looked like the Giants were going to lose another because of their leaky pitching staff. Helped by Johnny Mize's first home run of the season, and a two-run triple by Jack Lohrke, the Giants had opened up a 6-0 lead against Starter Paul Minner and his successor, Rex Barney.

Braves Beat Phils; First Win for Spahn

Philadelphia, April 27 (AP).—Warren Spahn of the Boston Braves gained his first victory of the season tonight as he blanked the Philadelphia Phillies with three hits for a 2-0 decision.

The Braves bunched three of their six hits off Robin Roberts for all of their runs in the second.

Bob Elliott, Braves' third baseman, was hit on the kneecap by a line drive off the bat of Willie Jones, and had to be carried off the field. An examination in the dressing room showed the injury was not serious, but the veteran infielder was sent to his hotel.

Fisherman's Angle

Caster Gets Forty Shad On Patuxent

By Ralph Murdock

CASTING FOR shad is practically a new sport for our local anglers but it has really gone over with a bang. Up until a few years ago the supposition was that a shad could only be taken by snagging or with a net.

Catching these fish with a lure has switched many anglers to the use of light fishing tackle. The average fisherman usually owned a two-piece fishing rod which he used for small perch, hard heads, large rockfish and even channel bass. In other words he caught a five ounce or a fifty pound fish with the same outfit.

But times have changed. He still uses the "old dependable" occasionally but now he has added a light casting rod to his fishing equipment. This is the ideal tool for shad fishing.

THE UPPER PATUXENT River continues to furnish the best fishing for shad. In Sunday's column we suggested this spot as the three-star special. Bob Nungesser, who peddles the lure bearing his name, gave his "00" spoon a real workout by catching 40 shad at this location. Another catch Monday was 18 roe and 16 buck shad. These fish were taken by several colors of spoons, namely, red and white, and red and silver. The fish bite better in the early morning but several nice catches have been taken about two hours before sundown. We suggest being on the grounds at 5 a. m. for the best results.

IF YOUR CASTING is not up to par, here is a thought. The National Capitol Casting Club meets every Sunday from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. at the west end of the Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool. Visitors are always welcome at the regular sessions of this club. At all times there is someone available to assist the novice, as well as the experienced fisherman in perfecting his technique with bait, rod, fly rod, or spinning rod. The members are all good sports. They will gladly help to perfect your casting.

HERE is the best report from Oregon Inlet and what a catch it is. Fishing from two boats with Captains Lee Dough and Ken Ward the following fishermen caught 29 channel bass in two days. William Simpson, Arvin Basnight, Locke Gauthier, Stan Henrserote and Bill Lee of Silver Spring, Md., and Robert Renville, Bud Olsen, Chet Holden, and Thomas Basnight of Arlington, Va.

The largest fish was taken by William Simpson. The red gamester weighed 54 pounds. Bill Lee, the undertaker, hooked one that he claims was larger, but the fish broke his line and the "evidence" got away. Thomas Basnight boated one on a hard line after a terrific struggle. Tommy's hands looked like he had put them in a meat grinder. When his hands are in better shape he promises to write a book entitled, "How Not to Catch a Channel Bass."

YATES Goldsborough, Carl Argent and the writer took a fling at the shad in the upper Patuxent Wednesday morning.

We arrived at 5 a. m. Six cars had already parked and the fishermen were at their favorite stations. You could hear the shad breaking and whirling in the water before dawn. It was a slack tide. Additional anglers continued to arrive to pick their choice holes.

A light shower lasted only a few moments. As daylight approached the shad started to bite. We caught three roe and five bucks in an hour. Some anglers had more than a dozen. As we returned to our parked automobile we noticed that there were 24 cars there instead of 6 It looks like an unusual amount of interest in this spot.

Bob Nungesser jr., while fishing for shad caught a large carp at this spot. It registered 17½ pounds on the scale at the Largo Sports store. Junior was very proud of his fish because seldom does a carp hit a spoon. That is what keeps the interest in fishing. You never know what you have on the other end of your line until you get it in.

Fish story of the week originating from Oregon Inlet is about a beer-drinking channel bass. From inside it was removed 19 lead sinkers and an unopened bottle of Budweiser. This fish story should end all fish columns.

It Girl Has To Pull Up in Rough Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, April 27.—In a roughly-fought battle—particularly rough on the favorite players—Mrs. Danny Shea's Busy Morning won by a nose from Larry MacPhails' Marian Ann in the $7500 added Havre de Grace Breeders' Stakes, feature here today.

Willow Brook Stable's White Bones, who was coupled with the winner as the Danny Shea-trained entry, was third a length and a half in back of Marian Ann and a head to the good of S. W. Labrot, Jr.'s Arcave.

There was much crowding and bumping in the frisky field of juveniles soon after the break and Ella K. Bryson's It Girl, the heavy favorite, was eliminated when Jockey Bobby Strange was forced to pull upsharply .

While she benefited in the poorly run race, Busy Morning must be credited with a fine effort, for she turned the fourth furlongs in 47 1/5 to miss the track record by only three fifths of a second, while returning a win mutuel of $15.80.

Busy Morning was bred at the Holly Beach Farm by the late William H. Labrot and was named for the Breeders' stake before that sportsman's death last month. On April 1, the daughter of Occupation and Bamboo Broom was leased to Mrs. Shea, whose silks she carried to victory.

Lynch Rides Well

There was much excitement at the winner's circle following the running of the feature when Mrs. Shea accepted a silver trophy from John Pons, manager of Country Life Farm and vice president of the Maryland Horse Breeders' Association.

Jockey Jimmy Lynch, who has won three races at the meeting, all with 2-year-olds, was atop Busy Morning and put up an excellent stretch ride to have his mount outrun Marian Ann in the final strides. Busy Morning never was worse than fourth, but had speed in reserve for the late drive.

Danherst Pulls Upset

Favorite players who went down swinging on It Girl tried in vain to recoup their losses in the next race, the Matilda Purse.

H. H. Hecht's The Pincher was supposed to be "money from home," but he finished far back in the sprint of 6 furlongs involving six horses.

William G. Helis' Danherst, beaten by The Pincer this spring and a recent winner on an off track, came through with a smashing effort to take the honors to the tune of a $31.80 mutuel. The colt finished a half length in front of C. Wetherill's Raise You with John A. Manfuso's Alluring third.

The day's saddle honors went to Jockey Steve Brooks. He rode S. C. Mikell's Camp Play to victory at $8.80 in the first race and was a factor in a $254.80 daily double pay-off completed when Apprentice Harry McGuigon scored with the Palatine Stable's Fair Vision at $65.

Brooks' other winners were K. A. O'Connor's Silver Money, at $10, in the fourth, and the Knollwood Stable's Red Pompon, at $16, in the seventh.

Civitello Ill With Pneumonia

Havre De Grace, Md., April 27.—Apprentice Jockey Benny Civitello, riding sensation of the Maryland season, is suffering from pneumonia at his home near Newark, Del. Trainer Jim Radney to whom Civitello is under contract reported the youngster, setting the pace for Jockeys here, probably will not be back in the saddle for a month. Civitello developed a severe cold and was forced to cancel his mounts last Monday and has been absent since. He had 18 winners here.

GU Leads Local Penn Relay Entries

Nine Area Schools In Meet

Georgetown's IC4A indoor championship 1-mile team leads a Washington delegation of five colleges and four high schools to the fifty-fifth annual Penn Relays Friday and Saturday in Philadelphia.

Maryland and Georgetown are each sending four relay teams and Howard four. In addition, they are entering individual performers. American and Catholic will compete in the special Mason-Dixon Conference mile relay.

Local scholastic representation will be furnished by Phelps, Cardozo, Armstrong and Dunbar.

The Hoya mile quartet of Vince Cino, Mort Kane, Bob Spearman and Ed Sause whipped Manhattan in 3:21.7 to take the IC4A indoor title in February.

Bill Collins, Alonzo Williams, Len Boswell and Lew Russell of Howard are expected to give the Hoyas a race for the best time. They clicked off 3:25 last week in beating Manhattan and Fordham at the Seton Hall games last weekend.

Maryland also will send to the wire in that event the team of Bill Alexion, Paul Ostrye, a Wilson High product, George McGowan and Ed Matthews.

Local interest will also be on the Hoya two-mile team of Jim Rams, Dave Smith, Racely Saunders and Pat O'Brien, which took second in the IC4A, and Hoya Billy Mitchell, who goes after the 120-yard high hurdles title, which will be defended by his brother, Tommy, of Indiana.

Broad Jumper Ronnie Allen and a shuttle hurdle, sprint medley and half-mile relay team will also carry the Georgetown banner.

In addition to its mile team, Howard has entered Joe Payne in the 100-yard dash, Tankard Marshall in the broad jump, and a medley, quarter-mile and half-mile team.

Alexion will run for Maryland in the 100-yard sprint, Ike Eichorn will toss the javelin, and Tyson Creamer and Lindy Kehoe are in the two-mile. The Terps have, in addition to the mile team, quarter-mile, half-mile, Class "B" mile and four-mile teams.

Scouts Get Eyeful

High Pitcher Tosses Seventh No-Hitter, Fans 20 Out of 21

Nashville, Mich., April 27 (AP).—Major league scouts from five cities got an eyeful when they journeyed here to see Ken Beardslee, the pitching sensation of Vermontville High, in action.

While the scouts looked on in admiration, young Beardslee hurled a no-hit, no-run victory over Nashville High School.

For that matter, his teammates did all right, too. The final score was 24-0.

But the scouts' eyes were centered on Beardslee while he fanned 20 of the 21 men to face him and retired the other man himself on a grounder. He has pitched seven other no-hit games in his three years at Vermontville High. Winning all 17 games he has started, he's also twirled five one-hitters, two two-hitters and two three-hitters. Three hits is the most he's ever allowed.

Major league scouts from Chicago, New York, Boston, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh watched Beardslee perform.

Thus far this season the 6-foot 1-inch 170-pounder has hurled 22 innings and allowed only one hit.

Celebrities Have Fun, Too

Celebrities the petite singer went all out.

First, she took five quick golf lessons from Red Bannigan, assistant pro at Columbia. Next, she purchased a new set of clubs, but her final act was the payoff. As caddies, she engaged three persons in her Statler show to walk the course with her to apply adhesive tape and gauze to her blistered hands.

HILDEGARDE'S partner was Babe Didrikson, the rock 'em, sock 'em gal golfer. Babe's drives were straight down the middle, Hildegarde's, when she managed to hit the ball, all over the course. Finally, the Babe called Hildegarde over and said:

"Listen, honey, just loosen up your girdle and smack 'em."

Then, too, the Celebrities tourney was the scene of a great miscalculation. The victim was none other than Frank Pace, jr., director of the budget. The scorekeeper tallied Pace's score wrong. Pace, as befitting his office, found the error and won an Oscar for the best scoring non-golfer in the field.

And certainly you recall the day the nonpareil Walter Hagen strode majestically to the first tee, whaled the daylights out of his drive and turned to his son, Walter jr., and said:

"I'VE GOT you started, son, take over from here." And young Walter did.

Most of the gang will be back this year at Army and Navy. And if General Eisenhower feels inclined to drive a golf ball off someone's nose this year, well, Bob Hope's schnozzle is available. And Eisenhower will hardly have to use a tee off Hope's prominent proboscis.

Nats' Rally Wins, 4-3

Gowan was emphatic that he wasn't, and the only man who proved to be out was Reynolds. Page replaced him and got over the hump by disposing of Weigel on a grounder to short.

It was the Yanks who first threatened to win the game in the tenth. Phil Rizzuto opened up against Thompson with a single to left. Lindell struck out, but Henrich dropped a single into short left center, and Rizzuto romped into third, but the play wasn't over yet.

Gil Coan, who slipped on the wet turf, captured Henrich's hit on the hop with one hand, and Henrich was trapped trying to take second. During the run-down, Rizzuto moved toward the plate and the Nats transferred their attention to him.

They ran Rizzuto down, with Henrich gaining second. But two were now out. Berra was hit on the left wrist by a pitched ball, but Bill Johnson popped to Yost.

Until the scoreboard posted the Nats' ninth and tenth innings they gave all the earmarks of accepting the humiliation of their eighth straight beating without much struggle.

Little Haefner was pitching his heart out in apparent futility, with the Nats getting no closer to a run than first base in the first six innings, and leaving him with a 1-0 deficit over that span.

The Yankees weren't hitting much, but they were making extra-base hits count. In the escond, Henrich led off with a triple to right center and scored on Berra's fly to Coan.

The Nats didn't mount any kind of a scoring threat until the seventh, and then it was sorry demonstration. Stewart led off with a double to left that Lindell couldn't hold, and was immediately trapped off base and run down when Yost missed an attempt to bunt.

Rookie Gerry Coleman slugged a double over Lewis' head in right center to launch a second Yankee run in the eighth with none out. The Yankees knew how to sacrifice, and Rizzuto moved him to third, whence Lindell scored him with a fly to Stewart.

Thompson's debut in the ninth wasn't auspicious. He walked Johnson to start with and was smacked immediately for a long two-bagger to the left field corner by Bauer that accounted for another Yankee run.

That made it 3-0 as the Nats came up in the ninth, and what they came up with was enough to tie the game until they could take it in the tenth.

Ray Scarborough will pitch against Ed Lopat, two-time Yankee winner in two starts this season, in today's afternoon game . . . Berra was removed from the game by the anYks after being hit on the left wrist by one of Thompson's pitches in the tenth . . . It was painful and swollen, and will be X-rayed today . . . The Nats had a makeshift infield in the tenth inning with Mark Christman on first and Jay Difani on second, but not a ball was hit in their direction.

Vandy Wild, Reds Bow to Cubs, 8 to 3

Chicago, April 27 (AP).—Cincinnati's Johnny Vander Meer developed a spell of wildness that turned into a six-run rally for the Chicago Cubs in the fourth inning today. The Cubs breezed home from there for an 8-3 victory before a ladies' day turnout of 23,223.

Clarke Backs Battle for Governorship

State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, of Alexandria, yesterday indorsed the candidacy of his Senate colleague, John S. Battle, for election as Governor subject to the Democratic primary in August.

Announcing his support of Battle, Clarke said: "I feel that Virginia is extremely fortunate in having a man of Senator Battle's caliber to offer himself as Governor of this great Commonwealth."

He said Battle had real knowledge of problems confronting public education in the State, and predicted that the Charlottesville candidate, if elected, would exert his efforts toward unsnarling financial difficulties in the State's school building program.

Clarke is the tenth member of the Senate to indorse Battle, who also has the support of Representative Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria.

9 Bus Drivers Fined $25 Each

Nine drivers for the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., were each fined $25 yesterday in Municipal Court for failing to keep proper trip logs.

The charge was brought under a section of the Interstate Commerce Act. The company has been charged with 18 violations in permitting the faulty logs to be kept. A court hearing has been set for May 18.

Admitting that his clients in the case were "technically guilty," Defense Attorney Denny Hughes said there was nothing "criminal or vicious in their offense."

Assistant United States Attorney Harold Bacon pointed out that the regulations were designed to keep track of drivers' hours in the interest of public safety.

Ortiz Helped Cooper as Fighter

Jimmy Cooper is hoping that boxing instruction he had four years ago will pay off for him when he meets Danny Petro Monday night at Griffith Stadium.

Cooper, then only 15, got his start in boxing under Manuel Ortiz, bantamweight champion. Ortiz thought Jimmy showed promise and helped him along with some of the knowledge he has acquired over 10 years in the ring. Jimmy believes that some of the champ's polish may have rubbed off on him.

Cooper is sparring with left-handed battlers to sharpen his shots against the Southeast southpaw, Petro.

Group Favors $5 Million for County Schools

A school construction program costing $5,040,000 in Montgomery County for 1949-50 was indorsed yesterday by the Montgomery County joint committee on school finance.

The group, composed of delegates from county-wide organizations, was formed at the request of the county council to determine what school construction budget the taxpayers would be willing to support.

In its report, the joint committee said a tax increase of 10 cents on assessed $100 valuation would be necessary to carry the program.

Recommending full participation in the State-aid program for county school construction, the group said the county should borrow $3,780,000 from the recently created State credit pool in order to be eligible for a State grant of $1,260,000.

Also urged by the committee was consideration by the school board of less expensive methods of school construction including use of standard plans for elementary school buildings.

Permanent U. S. Aid To Colleges Favored

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) said yesterday that he favors permanent Federal aid to replace philanthropy as a major support of higher education.

The Federal Government has authority to grant funds to schools through its responsibility to maintain the public welfare, he told a meeting of the American College Public Relations Association at the Washington Hotel.

Senator Kefauver said that the general public fails to understand that student fees do not provide sufficient money for the full cost of instruction.

Asserting that philanthropy probably never again will bear the financial burden, he said it is essential that a sound and stable program of continuing Federal support of higher education be developed before the present temporary programs expire."

Other speakes at yesterday's meeting were Senator Frank Graham (D., N. C.); Horace Renegar, former president of the American College Public Relations Association, and Josh Lee, member of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Dr. Earl J. McGrath, U. S. Commissioner of Education, will speak at 10 a.m. at today's general session.

Dog Hogs G.W. Election Rally

Candidates for student office at George Washington University competed for attention with a dog from Pearl Harbor named Otto at a speech-fest last night.

At least in the rear of the hall, the dog came out a howling best.

This is no reflection, however, on the speaking abilities of the candidates. They to vie for attention with a dog who chews gum.

Otto, 38 pounds and the property of Bill Cantwell, law student, demonstrated his abilities both in and out of the pre-election meeting in the University's Hall of Government.

In the corridor he played dead and chased paper balls, also prayed and danced.

Otto then decided to exercise his lungs. Someone stepped out from the hall and said "Sh-h-h!"

Insidee, James Foley, 2450 Massachusetts ave. nw., candidate for student council president, said he'd heard the university was going to build a big parking garage about three blocks from the campus. Foley is running against Charles Crichton, 3565 Brandywine st. nw., and John Graves, Clarence, Missouri.

15,000 Mentioned As Navy Department Lay-Off Minimum

The lay-off of civilian employes in the Navy Department is likely to be substantially greater than has been anticipated.

There's guarded talk in the department of a layoff of a minimum of 15,000 employes before June 30, or about double the number indicated in its 1950 budget. Most of the discharges will be in the Bureau of Ships, which has nine big shipyards on the East and West Coasts.

In the shipyards are about 100,000 employes. It's reported that an average reduction of 10 per cent must be made in these yards before June 30, or the discharge of about 10,000 employes.

A minimum of layoffs is scheduled for Navy employes in this city. The big gun factory here—the largest single naval establishment—has no present plans for a layoff. The departmental staff would be increased a bit under the House-approved budget by the replacement of military people with civilians, especially in the Marine Corps.

The Navy has about 30,000 civilian employes in the Washington area. It's doubtful if all of its activities here could escape the coming big lay-off. Some of the Navy yards already have made some layoffs but additional discharges for them are in the works.

Navy's 1950 budget as approved by the House indicated a reduction of 7000 civilian jobs. Its budget as submitted by the President provied for 5000 fewer jobs and cuts made by the House would wipe out nearly 2000 additional.

But two other factors, it's said, will compel the Navy to wipe out additional jobs and they are (1) salary increases given to per diem employes which must be absorbed, and (2) a substantial reduction in Navy's carryover funds. Navy funds for the construction, repair, and maintenance of ships can be spent over a 27-month period. As of June 30, Navy will lose the right to spend carryover funds, and what money is available for that purpose will be substantially smaller.

In other words, Navy will be required to operate within its 1950 budget—and that budget won't support its present civilian staff.

REDUCTIONS for most all Federal agencies would be required under a plan that has been unveiled by GOP leaders in the Senate. Briefly, the proposal would make a cross-the-board slash of at least 5 per cent in the appropriations of all agencies.

The first test of strength will be on the Labor-Federal Security appropriation bill. Senators Bridges (R., N.H.) and Ferguson (R., Mich.) have served notice that they will seek to cut it and all other money bills by a minimum of 5 per cent. They are seeking to cut the non-fixed-charge items in the Labor-Federal Security bill by 6 per cent.

The reduction in any one item would be limited to 20 per cent. Agency heads would be given the discretion to make to reductions which they believe would lead to both economy and efficiency—but they would be compelled to make an over-all slash of 6 per cent in the Labor-Federal Security bill.

Besides the two big agencies, the Railroad Retirement Board, National Labor Relations Board and the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service either now are or will be covered in the Labor-FSA bill.

Civil Service Commissioner Frances Perkins is emphatic to friends that she has indorsed no candidate to be president of the Civil Service Commission and that she doesn't intend to unless the President seeks her advice . . . Mrs. Audrey Y. Kent, chief of civilian personnel at Air Force headquarters here, has been awarded a decoration for exceptional civilian service . . . Dr. Henry Mann, professor of mathematics at Ohio State, has been appointed to the staff at the Bureau of Standards here.

RECLAMATION employes can worry about something else. The rumor is definitely not true that they won't be paid on their next payday because agency funds are tied up in the first deficiency bill. Employes in a number of other agencies have real cause for concern as the bill is still in a Senate-House deadlock. Office of Housing Expediter employes will miss their second payday Friday unless the bill is okayed in the meantime.

The term of Commissioner Leland Olds of the Federal Power Commission will be up soon. He's a good bet to be renominated for another term but some of the utility interests might try to block his confirmation by the Senate.

River Terrace Seeks Morning Express Bus

Scheduling of an express bus to originate in River Terrace during the morning rush hours will be sought by the Citizens Association of River Terrace.

The group voted at its meeting last night in the River Terrace Church, Clay st. and Anacostia ave. ne., to request the Capital Transit Co. for this service when buses replace streetcars on the Benning line May 1.

It was contended that the only scheduled express bus leaving Kenilworth Junction which would arrive downtown early enough for workers would be too crowded on its arrival at 34th st. and Benning rd. to accommodate River Terrace residents.

Chester V. Parker, former president, was appointed to request the transit company to make a survey of the need for the increased service.

President Robert F. Tibbetts read a letter from the Rev. Andrus B. Smith, pastor of the River Terrace Church, requesting that the group refrain from discussing controversial questions of a racial nature in the parish hall.

The Rev. Mr. Smith asked that "in the future the subject of race relations be avoided unless it is treated in a constructive manner such as would lead to a lessening of racial tensions and improvement of feelings."

The parish hall was the scene of two meetings, April 2 and 3, during which community residents discussed possible action which might be taken against a Negro family which moved into the neighborhood April 2.

The family, Mr. and Mrs. Odis Von Blasingame and their 6-month-old son, occupy a row house at 3303 Ames st. ne. in the heretofore entirely white community. Blasingame is an advertising salesman for the Afro-American newspaper.

Civic Group Opposes Dissection Measure

The Lincoln Civic Association last night went on record in opposition to a bill, now in Congress, to permit the use of impounded dogs by scientists for dissection.

Meeting in Francis Junior High School, 24th and N sts. nw., the group also voted to ask the Recreation Department to open summer playgrounds immediately after the closing of schools and to keep them open until the Saturday before the schools' reopning; to ask the House Appropriations Committee to include in the Interior Department budget funds to erect lights on the Francis Playground at the rear of the school and to ask the police to enforce the law against riding bicycles on sidewalks and to break up the practice of public drinking near package liquor stores.

Lie Detector Test Refused By Policeman

Blackstone Smith, the dismissed Brentwood, Md., policeman, said yesterday he was asked to undergo a lie detector test after reporting he was bound and gagged in his apartment early Saturday morning.

Smith said he agreed once to take the test but later refused.

The test, he said, was requested by State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie of Prince Georges County Saturday night during an inquiry into the alleged attack.

Bowie, reached by telephone later, admitted he had made such a suggestion and expressed surprise that Smith had made it public.

"We did not announce it," said Bowie, "because we did not want to embarrass him."

Smith, whose story of a mysterious attack has added more chaos to an already confused picture of gambling investigations here and in the county, answered questions at a full-dress press conference in the Washington office of Attorney James J. Laughlin.

Smith, whose dismissal as sergeant on the Brentwood force was announced as for reasons of "economy," has related that he was set upon by two or more men shortly after 4 a. m. last Saturday in his bachelor apartment at 4100 Utah ave., Brentwood.

Smith was called before the Prince Georges County grand jury last week in connection with the probe of alleged gambling activities in the county. Mistakenly, he says, word has gotten around the county that he has the inside on county gambling. He denies such knowledge.

He said he has not retained Laughlin as his attorney. Asked why he had sought Laughlin's advice, he said bcause the District attorney is "so close to the situation."

Smith said he has moved into Northwest Washington and from now on considers himself a District resident.

Teachers' Sick Leave Bill Offered

Abernethy Enters Measure by Request; Cumulative Feature Limited to 60 Days

Representative Abernethy (D., Miss.) yesterday introduced the Board of Education's bill for giving District school teachers paid sick leave.

Abernethy introduced the bill by request as head of the House District subcommittee in charge of school legislation. He said he favored the plan in general, and would arrange early hearings on it.

The sick leave plan was a strongly emphasized point in the recent Strayer report for District school improvements. The Commissioners favor the bill.

Cumulative Leave

The bill would permit teachers to accumulate 10 days of sick leave a year, up to a maximum of 60 days. The leave would accumulate at the rate of one day a month from September through June. Teachers who have been in the District school system would be credited on July 1 this year with one day of sick leave for every year of service up to 20.

School attendance officers who now receive sick leave would continue to receive it under the new bill. They would be credited on July 1 with their accumulated sick leave. They, too, would be limited to 60 days of accumulated leave.

Under the bill, teachers and attendance officers could use their sick leave for "personal illness, presence of contagious disease or death in the house, or pressing emergency." They would be entitled to use all leave to their credit whenever they are given maternity leave by the school board.

For serious illness, the school superintendent, under rules to be made by the board, could grant up to 20 days sick leave in addition to that accumulated by the teacher. But if the teacher leaves the school system after receiving unearned advance sick leave, pay received for the extra leave would have to be refunded or it would be deducted from the final pay check, except in cases of death or disability.

Under the present setup teachers who are kept from duty by illness must pay from their own salaries the amounts necessary to hire a substitute teacher.

Limitations Defined

The teacher gets the difference between her own salary and that of the substitute for but 30 days, and after that receives no pay.

The limit of 60 days accumulated leave fixed in the bill would apply to permanent and probationary teachers and attendance officers. For temporary teachers and attendance officers there would be a limit of 10 days accumulated leave.

The District Commissioners, in submitting the sick leave bill to Congress, said "the Board of Education has been making urgent requests that this legislation be enacted as being vital to the welfare of the school teachers. The Commissioners concur in their views and urge its enactment."

The Commissioners estimated the bill would cost the city about $188,000 a year.

Engineer Student From Venezuela Hurt in Collision

A Venezuelan civil engineer studying in the United States was injured yesterday when the station wagon in which he was riding collided with another automobile in Prince Georges County.

Injured was Dr. Alfonso Carlos Romero, 27, participating in the American Republics Training Program in cooperation with the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. He suffered face and head injuries.

The accident occurred at Route 5 and Woodyard rd. at Clinton, Md., as the other vehicle, according to police, was attempting to make a left turn.

Dr. Romero was taken to Casualty Hospital by the District Heights Rescue Squad.

BLOSSOM QUEEN MARGRET THORS SLICES AN APPLE PIE

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Winchester, Va., April 27.—This apple capital of the Old Dominion readied itself today for an influx of 200,000 visitors in the next 48 hours to pay homage to the pulchritude of nature and womanhood.

Late this afternoon sunshine burst forth, spurring hope for satisfactory weather for the twenty-second annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival, which officially opens here Thursday.

The weatherman foresaw cloudy skies for the opening day, but he predicted no rain.

Festival officials estimate the crowd will exceed last year's, when more than 190,000 persons swelled the population of Winchester more than tenfold.

Miss Margret Thors, daughter of Thor Thors, Iceland's Minister to the United States and Canada, obligingly acceded to the demands of photographers this morning as she got a taste of what is in the offing for her as queen.

Her first performance for the press was in the kitchen of the George Washington Hotel. She donned a starched chef's hat and placed a white apron over her navy blue dress to slice a 20-pound apple pie.

Some 1500 elementary and high school pupils also went through their paces before more than 3000 spectators at the Handley School amphitheater in a dress rehearsal of an outdoor show called "Forerunners, A Pageant of Springtime."

They will perform in the real thing at 2 p. m. (E.S.T.) Thursday, and an hour later, Miss Thors will be crowned as Queen of Shenandoah by Vice President Alben W. Barkley on the mammoth Apple Blossom Festival outdoor stage.

After the coronation and pageant, the Winchester Fire Department and visiting fire departments will hold a torchlight and mummers' parade through city streets.

At 10 p. m. Thursday at the City Armory, Miss Thors' court of princesses will be guests of honor at a ball. And then Friday night, the queen herself again will be the center of attraction at a ball.

Johnny Long's band will play for both dances. Times for the dances and all other festival events are Eastern Standard. To get Washington Daylight Saving Time, add one hour.

Comedian Bob Hope will arrive in time for the festival parade, of which he will be grand marshal at noon Friday.

There will be a repeat performance of the Handley School pageant at 10 a. m. Friday.

B. & O. to Operate Apple Blossom Special

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will operate an Apple Blossom special to Winchester, Va., from Baltimore and Washington on Friday for the Apple Blossom Festival.

The train, scheduled to reach Winchester before the beginning of the festival program, will leave Baltimore at 8:15 a. m. (EDT) and Washington at 9:15 a. m. (EDT). Stops will be made at Silver Spring, Rockville and Point of Rocks.

Returning, the special will leave Winchester at 7:55 (EDT).

License Unit Weighs Case Of Car Dealer

The District License Board took under advisement yesterday charges against James W. Sarchino, 50, president of Plaza Auto Sales, Inc., 43 Massachusetts ave. nw., following a final hearing on revocation of his license.

At a hearing on April 15 ten car owners testified the car dealer flaied to give them payments totaling $10,245 for cars he took over to sell for them.

Joseph C. Turco, attorney for Sachino, did not offer witnesses at yesterday's hearing. He moved that the case be dismissed because "the board itself is improperly constituted," and asserted only the District Commissioners could hold hearings on the charges.

Robert D. Wise, assistant corporation counsel, chairman of the license board, denied the motion. He stated the board has a clearly delegated right to hear testimony for the Commissioners, who review both testimony and recommendations by the board before making a decision.

Ruling on Appeal

Both Drivers Held Liable In Accident

Where a traffic accident arises from concurrent negligence of two drivers, both can be compelled to contribute toward payment of the resultant damage, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

The doctrine was set out in an opinion of Judge Wilbur K. Miller with Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens and Judge James M. Proctor concurring.

The decision resulted from an automobile accident suit. It was filed by Mr. and Mrs. William Langford who sued Ralph L. Feltman, trading as Skyview Cab Co. Feltman sued to compel Kenneth E. Knell, driver of the automobile in which the Langords were riding, to pay a share of the damages which were assessed at $11,500 by the jury.

The Appeals Court said that it was not clear from the trial court's decision how much Knell must pay but indicated that $5750 was the proper sum.

The Appeals Court directed the trial court to clarify its findings.

"We conclude that when a tort is committed by the concurrent negligence of two or more persons who are not intentional wrongdoers, contribution should be enforced," wrote Judge Miller.

"In formulating a definite contribution rule, we desired to use the utmost care and to reexamine meticulously the general subject of contribution. To that end we requested Messrs. Edmund L. Jones and David G. Bress, members of the District of Columbia Bar, to file briefs and participate in oral argument as amici curiae. We are much indebted to them for their scholarly contributions which materially assisted us in the study of the problem."

Divorce-Perjury Conviction Is Upset by Appeals Court

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday reversed the divorce-perjury conviction of Edgar C. McFarland, 49, of Derwood, Md.

McFarland has been sentenced to serve eight months to two years in jail for allegedly falsely swearing in seeking a divorce in 1946 that he was a resident here while being really resident in Landover Hills, Md.

The appeals court remanded the case to District Court for retrial because the trial judge did not make it clear to the jury that "the matter of residence is to be regarded as the equivalent of domicile."

The appeals court also found error in the trial court's rejection of cross-examination of Mrs. Alva Rogers Conradi, the complaining witness, as to whether she and McFarland were living in an "illicit relationship" in Maryland during 1945-1946, at which time it was charged McFarland was living there.

The appeals court said, "Her admission of an illicit affair, had it been obtained, might have tended to show McFarland merely sojourning in Maryland for an extramarital adventure," but was legally domiciled in the District of Columbia.

Postal Pay Hike Bill Introduced

Pay raises of $150 a year for postal workers are provided in a reclassification bill introduced yesterday by Representative John E. Lyle (D., Tex.).

The measure also would increase the present sick leave of 10 days to 15 days and annual leave from the present 15 days to 26 days. Lyle said it would establish "a genuine longevity system in the postal service by granting full credit for all past services in the allocation of meritorious grades."

Commissioner Mason Off on Golf Trip

Court Upholds Death Penalty For Girl Killer

Annapolis, Md., April 27 (AP).—Eugene H. James, 32-year-old Negro janitor, moved a step nearer the gallows today when the Court of Appeals upheld his death sentence.

James was convicted of murdering 11-year-old Marsha Brill in Baltimore last July 6.

(The Baltimore janitor was indicted in the District for the similar knife slaying of Carol Bardwell, also 11, in Rock Creek Park here last June 27. Washington detectives said he confessed to the Bardwell girl's murder after his arrest in Baltimore in connection with the Marsha Brill slaying. —Editor's Note.)

Because of a subconscious hatred for little girls, James emerged from a bush and stabbed Marsha with a butcher knift as she bicycled down the street, the defense said.

Maryland' highest court rejected James' plea that he confessed as a result of "psychological torture" by Baltimore police.

"We neither approve nor disapprove the methods by which the confession was obtained," Judge Charles Markell wrote for the unanimous six-judge court.

The decision left James' only hope of escaping the gallows in a possible appeal to the United States Supreme Court or to Governor Lane for executive clemency.

Student's Face Burned by Spray Of Refrigerant

A freshman student in refrigeration learned a painful lesson yesterday at the Chamberlain Vocational High School, Potomac ave., between 13th and 14th sts. se.

The youth, Benjamin Carl Dyer, 16, of 615 Fairlawn ave. se., removed a freezing unit from a refrigerator. He forgot about the valves that control pressure of the sulphur dioxide gas.

The valves let go—gas sprayed Carl's face, almost coating his features with ice. A school nurse, Mrs. Ruth Kolbe, opened windows, salved Carl's eyes and washed the refrigerant from his face. He was admitted to Gallinger Hospital with first degree burns.

Court Acts To Bar New 'Forgotten' Prisoner Case

Marshal Ordered To Notify Bench of Suspects Brought From Other States

District Court acted yesterday to prevent recurrences of the Scott W. Fuller case in which a larceny suspect was held in District Jail four months without bail or a court hearing.

Fuller, who is 23 and resides in Sedalia, N. C., was accused of stealing $120 here last summer. Arrested in his home State in December, he was brought here and placed in District Jail. He was finally indicted April 18 and Monday was given his first court hearing.

Judge Richmond B. Keech, who disclosed the new court procedure, said that henceforth the United States Marshal must inform the court whenever a prisoner is brought to the jail from another jurisdiction. The previous system, used in the Fuller case, was to notify only the United States attorney as the prosecuting officer.

Investigation Begun

An investigation of the Fuller case was begun by Judge Keech as soon as he learned of it. He set up the procedure, designed to serve as a check on prolonged detention, on his own initiative, and yesterday Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws gave it his approval.

Judge Laws directed that an official letter be sent to both the marshal and the United States attorney to inform them of their duties in the cases.

Judge Keech said the court here has been diligent to see that prisoners are held in jail not more than a month.

He said he did not recall seeing Fuller's name on any jail lists.

In the Fuller case, Keech said, he learned that the information concerning the arrest was forwarded immediately after it occurred to the office of United States Attorney George Morris Fay.

"As I get it, the matter rested up there," Keech said.

Judge, Fay Confer

"Our main aim is to set up a modus operandi so that we do not lose track of any prisoners. But it is more than that, because we want to see that no man stays in jail unnecessarily," Keech said.

Laws added that he had been informed that a case of this kind "will never happen again."

Laws conferred yesterday with Fay. The prosecutor gave reporters the following statement on which he refused to elaborate:

"The investigation by this office in the case of United States vs. Scott W. Fuller has been completed. All facts covered by the investigation will be presented to the court at the time of the hearing of the motion to dismiss the indictment on May 4, 1949."

Park Board Will Discuss Segregation

Discussion of racial segregation at District recreation facilities is on the agenda of the two-day monthly meeting of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission which starts today.

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of NCPPC, last night said he has informed Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) that the Congressman's request that NCPPC remove racial designations from its recreation plan will be presented to the commission meeting.

Grant and Klein in recent months engaged in a lengthy letter dispute as to whether elimination of segregation at District recreation facilities would require congressional "sanction."

NCPPC's first session will be held at 10 a. m. today in its conference room at the new Interior Department building.

Boost in Police Pay Urged to Cut Crime

Pay raises for District policemen were suggested yesterday by the Washington Criminal Justice Association as the best solution to the local crime problem.

Vincent Saccardi, head of the private organization, suggested $500 more a year for privates, $750 for sergeants and $1000 more for lieutenants and higher ranks.

"The best solution is more policemen," he said. "Today we can't get them because of the low pay. There are now 160 or 170 vacancies. At a cost of about $750,000 a year, this would be cheap compared with the 15-million-dollar District crime bill in 1948.

The association has asked District Attorney George Morris Fay for comment and explanation on the outcome of cases of aggravated assault. The WCJA said this week that 4447 such cases were reported last year, with 3008 resulting in arrests.

Col. Oscar I. Gates

Col. Oscar I. Gates, USA (ret.) died yesterday in Walter Reed Hospital. He was 58 years old.

Born in Mississippi, Colonel Gates was graduated from Virginia Military Academy in 1909. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Field Artillery in 1916 and received a World War I Purple Heart.

A graduate of the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and a prominent Army polo player, Colonel Gates retired in 1946. He had been living in Auburn, Ala.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Frances B. Gates; a sister, Mrs. Ralph S. Hirsch, both of Auburn, and a nephew, West Point Cadet Irving S. Hirsch.

Graveside services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Friday in Arlington Cemetery.

Guard Pilot's Widow Gets No Pension

Once First Lieut. Elmer Mercurio got in that plane, it made not the slightest difference in the risk involved whether he was a regular Air Force man or a National Guardsman.

When his F-47 Thunderbolt came screaming to the earth and exploded in flames near North Beach, Md., Tuesday night while Mercurio was "maintaining his proficiency for need in national emergency," he was no less dead for being a reservist.

But if he had been a regular Air Force officer doing exactly the same flight, his widow and two children at 1709 Trinidad ave. ne., would get $115 month pension plus a sum of about $2000.

As it is they get, in the words of one bitter National Guardsman yesterday, "no pay, no pension, no nothing." Only burial expenses and these not to exceed $450.

During the war Mercurio was a P-51 fighter pilot with the Eighth Air Force. He did missions over Germany, mostly those dangerous "rhubarbs" — low-altitude flights blasting trains, trucks and tanks. His plane got many a flak hole in return and Mercurio ended the war with the Air Medal and four clusters, several battle stars—and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

He got an $80 a week job with a construction company. Then he decided that in addition he would keep up his fighter pilot's skill and joined the 121st squadron of the District air guard.

This latter decision has resulted in his 23-year-old wife being left with nothing but his GI insurance to support herself and their two daughters, Joan, 4, and Susan, 2. They get the $10,000 in a lump sum —"Buster" arranged it that way. It sounds like a lot—it won't last long in supporting three persons. It is absolutely all that she has, Mrs. Mercurio said.

Mercurio's death and the plight facing his family added dramatic point to legislation now before Congress to give dependents of National Guardsmen the same benefits—if the Guardsman is killed on training status.

Lieut. Mathias To Be Reburied In Maryland

Lieut. Mathias

Reburial services will be held Friday at 10:30 a. m. in Cumberland, Md., for Lieut. Robert (Pat) Mathias, 29, former Washington artist and National Golden Gloves boxing champion, who was killed in action on D-Day in the Normandy invasion.

Lieutenant Mathias, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Mathias, 6916 8th st. nw., and husband of Mrs. Doris Habig Mathias of Cumberland, attended Wilson Teachers College and was employed by the Advertisers Art Service in The Washington Post Building when he entered the service.

In 1937, Lieutenant Mathias won the 147-pound class title in the National Golden Gloves finals in Boston by defeating Earl Dugan of Seattle.

A National Guardsman, Lieutenant Mathias began Regular Army service in February, 1941.

He served with the Army Engineers at Fort Meade, later transferred to the Infantry and subsequently to the paratroops at Fort Benning, Ga., where he received a commission in 1942. He was sent overseas in December, 1943.

Surviving are his parents, his wife, two brothers, Joseph M. of Kensington, Md., and Justin E. Mathias of 6916 8th st, nw., and three sisters, Mrs. George F. Norris, Takoma Park, Md.; Mrs. Robert L. Jones, and Mrs. F. B. Dillion, jr., both of Washington.

Service will be held at St. Peter's and Paul's Church in Cumberland, with burial in the church cemetery.

'Great Diavalo' Ashes Strewn Over Atlantic

The ashes of Michael Patrick Ryan Efferson, 46, "The Great Diavalo" of flying circus fame, were scattered by plane over the Atlantic yesterday, following memorial services at the Hines Funeral Home here.

Mr. Efferson, who survived hundreds of performances as a parachute jumper and wing-walker before World War II, died Saturday in Boston of complications following an ulcer operation.

A Washington resident for the last four years, he was president of M. P. Efferson & Associates, Inc., an aircraft export firm, at the time of his death. His home was at Dorchester House.

As a member of the Gates Flying Circus, which he joined in 1919, he had broken "nearly every bone in his body," friends said. Among stunts he performed without a parachute was a "wing change" from plane to plane, flying at a height of several hundred feet.

In the early 1930's his pilot's license was temporarily suspended when he flew upside down under San Francisco's Golden Gate and Bay Bridges on a bet.

A native of Brady, Tex., Mr. Efferson joined the Infantry in World War I when he was about 16.

After a dozen years with the Gates Circus, following the war, he ran his own circus for several years in the early 1930's.

He joined the RAF Ferry Command as a civilian pilot in 1940, and held an operations command job in Newfoundland, transatlantic jumping-off point. Nicknamed the "Mayor of Gander," Efferson was famous for a large 3½-foot wooden key to the city, on which he collected the signatures of hundreds of notables, including Franklin D. Roosevelt, Molotov, Churchill, and "Wild Bill" Donovan, OSS chief, all of whom passed through the post.

In 1942 he became a civilian primary instructor for the Army at Bennettsville, S. C., where he stayed two years. A job flying rubber out of Brazilian jungles for the United States Rubber Development Agency, offshoot of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, followed.

Mr. Efferson came to Washington in 1945 as assistant to the president of Laister-Kauffmann Aircraft Corp. Early in 1946 he resigned to form his own company.

He married Miss Esther Murray, former assistant maitre d'hotel at the Carlton Hotel here about three months ago.

Family and Friends Exhort in Vain Against Pretty Girl's Hopeful Pursuit of Unsettled Gambler, 32; Chase Has Lasted Three Years

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Sally is a very pretty girl, 22, and could be popular if she would accept the many invitations that various admiring young men offer. But she is in love with Walter, who is 10 years her senior and a professional gambler. He follows the races—North in summer, South in winter.

After much persuasion from family and friends, Sally will occasionally go out with some nice lad her age; but after a few dates she refuses to see him again, and her usual excuse is, "He is just a kid." She prefers to concentrate on Walter.

Walter tells Sally that when he makes good at the races he will settle down, invest his winnings in a business and they will be married. This has been going on for three years, but there is no "formal" engagement for Sally to count on. She has lost her pride and quite openly chases Walter.

Girl Is Lavish in Her Devotion

WHEN WALTER is South, away from home, she writes him faithfully, several letters to his one, and visits his family. She sends him lovely gifts on gift-occasions, but when he should reciprocate he sends her an apology for lacking funds to buy her anything. And when Walter is here at home, their dates usually consist of a day at the races.

Walter thinks nothing of spending Saturday nights at the movies with his men friends, while Sally sits home wondering where he is and why he doesn't call her. The following morning she calls him to ask for an explanation; and despite his negligence she candidly says she can be happy only with him.

Is she right to wait year after year for Walter to set a wedding date? Or should she break all ties with him, even if it means breaking her own heart? She ignores the worried advice of family and friends, and our final hope is that she will heed your unbiased opinion. Please answer soon. F. T.

Girl Is Example of Self-Hypnosis

DEAR F. T.: Help for a slavishly infatuated person comes from within the self, if at all; and usually it begins to germinate, in an appeal for some outsider's guidance and support in finding a "'cure," only when the unhappy captive-soul can't bear any more hidden suspense and suffering.

Sally's slavish attachment to Walter isn't love. It is self-hypnosis achieved by self-deception, about one's self and the other party; a state in which no love exists, either given or received. It is a pitiful expression of psychological immaturity, untaught ignorance of "reality" values in human character and human interchange, and avid infantile hunger for physical gratification.

What seems to be "love-giving" in Sally's behavior is really an aggressive bait-offering to Walter, a campaign of bribery and tacit reproach which aims to undermine or override his defensive, equally self-centered, self-serving preference to roam at large without restraining ties.

Trained Awareness Might Break Spell

POOR SALLY is totally insensitive to "What Makes Walter Run"—if I may paraphrase Budd Schulberg's famous book title;—but she is also thoroughly confused and on the wrong track, concerning herself and what adjustments to make, and actions to take, to arrive at real love and contentment in life.

You write from a large city, where a wealth of good psychological counsel is available at first hand; and it is this type of teaching that Sally needs, to help her get free of her fixated trance-like "concentration" on Walter. And he, incidentally, needs similar aid, to achieve deliverance from his compulsive addiction to gambling.

And Countess' Choker

Our Correspondent Admires Mme. Berard's Diamonds, Mrs. Krock's Ermine Stole

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THINGS WE'VE LIKED LATELY: Peltry: The tiny, but very tiny, choker of silverblu mink worn by Comtesse Daisy de Contades, sister of France's smartest (both ways!) lady senator, Jacqueline Patenote. The choker topped a gray flannel Maggy Rouff dress cut with a symmetrical white pique trimmed neckline . . . Mrs. Arthur Krock's new white ermine stole, full over shoulder, narrowing, falling almost hem length. Worn at cocktail time with a severe black dress, a small upturned brim white hat.

"Jools": The airily festooned diamond necklace worn by Titian-blonde Mme. Armand Berard, wife of the French Charge d'Affaires . . . The mound of canary topazes, emerald cut, set almost turtle shell shaped, and worn as lapel ornament by Mrs. Clark McIlwaine. Straying amidst the yellow glitter, a small, heart-shaped deep orange stone . . . The exotic cat's eye parure, part of Mrs. J. Van Courtland Wintoun's collection. The wicked green gems winking amidst cascades of tiny gold Empire tassels . . . Mrs. Rowan Shevlin's moonstone parue, earrings, bracelet, necklace, a triangular jabot of blue-gray oval stones, picked here and there with tiny diamonds. Worn most effectively with an extremely decollete gray satin evening gown, its heavily folded skirt slightly stiffened, the bodice laced with satin like a shepherdess.

The perfect desses tailleur of Mrs. David Bruce (recently voted the world's fifth best dressed by Parisian couturiers. So perfect as to be practically indescribable—an olive-greeny-brown light woolen cloth, its tight skirt made walkable by a giant box pleat smack in back, its jacket minus shoulder stuffing and belled below nipped waist with almost imperceptible stiffening.

Works of Art Department: The school of magnificent salmon gracing the buffet at "Sivvie" Szechenyis wedding reception. Set realistically on tummies, tails almost awaggle, the giant fish were encased in aspic overlaid with a design sketched in some pink, cream-like substance.

Floral: The newly planted Egyptian Embassy garden, to be ready for Saturday's Goodwill Industries House and Embassy Tour . . . Those miniature red roses, "Sweeheart Rose" size, called "Garnet," increasingly popular around town and handsomely on trellis in the Mayflower lobby.

First Lady Sees Pacific Fashions

By Peggy Preston

THE ancient, exotic Pacific brought a unique offering to Mrs. Truman yesterday—a parade of fashions, music, dancing and crafts—presented at the annual brunch given in her honor by members of the Congressional Club.

There was color and folklore galore in the big Terrace Room of the Shoreham Hotel for the party that is always a highlight of the club's spring program. At the entrance the red-coated Marine Band played as the First Lady, clad in a green and black print dress and black straw bowler, entered. Flowers from Hawaii, flown here for the occasion, made gala the head table where she took her seat alongside Mrs. Ralph E. Church, president, wives of members of the Cabinet and Supreme Court, club officers and past presidents.

Native Products

Three Pacific areas which either now or in the past have flown the Stars and Stripes, participated in the program. They were Alaska, the Philippines and Hawaii, and each sent a little portion of itself with which to charm the audience.

Alaska dangled a nugget of pure gold from a bracelet, matched it with a necklace that formed a solid band of gold and was joined with a piece of carved ivory—all native products of the land of the Eskimo. The Philippines sent a troupe of dancers to perform an exciting bamboo dance called the "Tinikling"; and Hawaii, islands of flowers, gave Mrs. Truman a lei of pink blossoms.

But of paramount importance were the fashions, ranging from the ancient to modern, and typical of each of the countries of the Pacific. The Hawaiian group was presented by Anna of Vienna, a couturiere who went to Honolulu several years ago, and who was selected by Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington to represent the designers of the islands.

Anna brought a collection of more than 40 gowns to Washington for the event and commentated as she showed the modern adaptations against the old. The ancient island Tapa cloth was displayed along with a sundress of cotton broadcloth, hand blocked with symbols of the islands; magnificient Chinese brocades, dating back to the time of the Manchus, were made into modern dinner gowns. In turn she traced the influence on native fashions of all the settlers who came to Hawaii, including the Americans, Japanese, South Sea Islanders, Spaniards and Portugese.

Alaskan Program

Mrs. Ernest Gruening, wife of the Governor of Alaska, and Mrs. Edward R. Bartlett, wife of the Delegate, arranged the part of the program dealing with that Territory. Mrs. Blake Clark served as commentator.

The national song of Alaska was sung by Mrs. Gruening and following was a collection of colorful Chilcat Indian blankets, rich in design and decoration. Hats, worn by Indian women to signify social position, were borrowed from museums and private collections, and put our own spring bonnets to shame with their novel design. The sealskin parka, familiar dress of the frozen North, was shown, along with a beautiful modern adaptation of chiffon. An evening gown, the latter was trimmed in ostrich plumes, replacing the traditional woof skins on the parka.

Filipino students in Washington, and members of the embassy staff, modeled the exquisite collection of costumes native to their country. The history of fashions was traced from 1890 until the present day, and fabrics in all were of the crisp, transparent pina cloth, made from sturdy pineapple fiber.

Cancels Engagements

Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, sr., has had to cancel all engagements, as she has been confined to her home this week with an injured ankle.

Club Federation Votes to Raise National Dues

Hollywood, Fla., April 27 (AP).—The General Federation of Women's Clubs voted today to raise its national dues from 15 to 25 cents a year.

Expected opposition to the proposal faded as a vast majority cast favorable ballots in a standing vote. The Illinois delegation—with 113 members—spearheaded the opposition and drew some support from New Jersey and Washington, D. C., delegates.

The 25-cent per member dues is paid to the general headquarters in Washington by each State organization. The funds are used for general federation operations expenses. The dues-paying membership is about 77,000 in 14,000 clubs.

Earlier, Eugene J. Taylor of the New York Times editorial staff told 2000 delegates attending the federation's fifty-eighth annual convention that the Government will come out far ahead on its expenditures for rehabilitation of physically handicapped persons.

Taylor, who also is an instructor at New York University's College of Medicine, said the cost of rehabilitating handicapped persons averages $293 per case, a single rather than annually recurring expenditure.

Mrs. Hiram C. Houghton of Red Oak, Iowa, was introduced today as the only candidate for the presidency of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Houghton is now first vice president of the organization which claims a membership of 7,700,000 in 28 countries.

Election of officers will be held at the 1950 convention in Boston, Mass. Terms are for two years.

Nelson Calls for Civilian Board To Control All Defense Spending

By Genevieve Reynolds

MAJ. GEN. OTTO L. NELSON, Jr. (Retired) vice president of the New York Life Insurance Co., last night advocated an all civilian board to allocate all funds for national defense including the armed services, the Atlantic Defense Pact and ERP.

He made his suggestion in a speech before some 100 delegates and board members attending a three-day council of the National League of Women Voters, held in the Washington Club and Friends Meeting House.

The former Deputy Chief of Army Staff told the league representatives from 40 States that an organizational entity, separate and distinct from the armed services, is needed to stretch defense dollars.

"Preferably this group should be comprised of civilians," he explained. "Their task would be to allocate funds to various activities so that we have a tailor-made system of national defense, cut on a pattern to fit our existing circumstances. Their functions should include not only the allocation of funds for the armed forces but also for the European Recovery Program and for the nations of the Atlantic Defense Pact to improve their means of defense . . . Assignment of specific responsibilities should be made to each participating part of the entire effort to avoid dissipation and overlapping."

Clear Foreign Policy

Establishment of a national defense budget on an objective, overall basis with required organizational changes, will "stretch our defense dollars," according to the speaker. He also advocated: (1) clear formulation of foreign policy in terms of its military consequences; (2) consolidation and integration of our armed forces "in lieu of the present program of federation."

A clear statement of foreign policy is essential before calling upon an over-all military body to determine definitely what the military consequences of our policy are, stated the speaker. "The military is entitled to know what they should be prepared to do," he declared. "Then they should be required to submit an over-all program on how it should be done."

Nelson proposed a common uniform for all members of the armed forces with different insignias to distinguish between the various branches.

Following Nelson's talk, Eric Sevareid of Columbia Broadcasting Corp., and Howard Meyers of the Committee for Economic Development led a floor discussion among members on stretching the defense dollar.

"Italian women taught me that democracy can't be taught or bought—that it must be shared," Mrs. Marc Law of Chicago told delegates to the National League of Woman Voters' Council meeting at luncheon yesterday in the Friends Meeting House.

A former national vice president of the league, Mrs. Law has just returned from a four months' stay in Italy as a representative of the Carrie Catt Memorial Fund, created by the LWV to meet requests of foreign women for help in using their vote effectively.

Share Democracy

"Governments cannot and should not make propaganda," she explained. "You can't change people's minds and hearts by mere propaganda. You can share democracy with them, however."

Mrs. Law urged trade union leagues, 4-H Boys and Girls Clubs, farmers groups and others to send representatives to Italy to talk with the people on their own level and individual problems.

Praising the United States Information Service for its work, she expressed a hope that it could be expanded to the field of human relations. She differentiated the information service from propaganda in that the former helps develop skills and technical development.

The speaker described how the Society to Fight Illiteracy in Italy, a nonpartisan organization, persuaded a reluctant, impoverished government to open night schools for illiterate adults and teen-agers who work in the daytime.

"Teachers in these Italian mountain classrooms with no window glass, no heat and little light, are very young," she continued. "They have practically no materials except a small blackboard. Pupils can't afford to buy pencils or notebooks."

As the first step in remedying the problem, Mrs. Law called upon council delegates and board members to contribute at least 2 cents for notebooks for the children.

Mrs. Law also announced that $4000 has just been voted by the Carrie Chapman Catt fund to the Society to Fight Illiteracy in Italy.

Following the morning session and noon meeting, delegates from 40 States visited their Representatives and Senators to discuss with them the bills the LWV is supporting, such as Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act renewal, Federal aid to education, and housing legislation.

Capt. Milliken Gets Award Of Soroptomists

Capt. Rhoda Milliken, head of the Woman's Bureau of the Metropolitan Police Department, yesterday received the Soroptimist Club's annual Silver Medal Award for outstanding work toward advancement of women. In her acceptance address at the club's luncheon meeting in the Willard Hotel, she appealed to the Soroptimists to help get new quarters for the bureau.

Captain Milliken said she and her coworkers were just like "sardines in a can" and that it is "most difficult to do business" under the circumstances.

Included in the audience to which she made the appeal were Louis Brownlow, former D. C. Commissioner in whose term the Woman's Bureau was established; Maj. Ernest Brown, former Chief of Police; Inspector Clarence Talley, assistant superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Department; Judge Richmond B. Keech of the United States District Court; Judge Walter J. Casey, and Miss Anne Laraby, assistant director of the women's bureau of the Labor Department.

Inspector Talley gave a brief talk praising Captain Milliken and prophesying that she might one day be an inspector herself.

Chief of Police Maj. Robert F. Barrett was unable to attend but sent a note of congratulations to Miss Milliken which toastmistress Miss Mary Bourke read. Soroptimist president, Mrs. Edith Jarvis presented the silver award.

Also present at the meeting were Captain Milliken's sister, Miss Elizabeth Milliken, Miss Ella Werner, regional director of the club; Col. Mary Agnes Brown, Sibyl Baker and Charl Williams, three former recipients of the award.

Ask Anne

Several months ago, I purchased two pairs of ruffled nylon curtains for my living room. I paid $12 a pair, which seemed quite a price, but the curtains were so beautiful and crisp looking, and I was further sold by my belief—and the saleswoman's assurance—that they would launder so easily, require no starch, very little ironing, etc. Knowing the qualities of nylon, I felt no misgivings. However, my neighbor, who has similar curtains, recently laundered hers (carefully, by hand) and we are both sick at the results. They entirely lost their body and hang limply; my neighbor said ironing them was a terrible job and some of the wrinkles never did come out although she had them thoroughly dampened. Worst of all, the curtains now have small holes in several places and tear at the slightest touch, almost as if rotten. Nylon curtains have only been on the market a comparatively short time, and I can't believe these were old enough to have rotted. Do you have any suggestions for laundering mine, such as whether to use starch, ironing temperature, etc.? W. F. M.

I have discussed the nylon curtain situation with an experienced saleswoman in the curtain department of a large Washington department store who says that they have sold a very large number of nylon curtains since they came on the market early last fall. Since she estimates that the majority of these curtains would not have been washed as yet, it is too early to make any statement as to how they will stand up. Because nylon is a new curtain fabric, no fair statement can be made as to its washing or wearing qualities until more time has elapsed and more evidence is in. However, nylon will snag and catch when washed, just as hosiery does, so care must be used to prevent holes from that source.

The laundering suggestions for nylon curtains given by the manufacturer are to wash them in lukewarm water with mild soap flakes, rinse thoroughly and hang straight to dry. When dry, dampen slightly and press with an only warm iron which is set to the same temperature as for pressing rayons. Starching them will not harm the curtains, but it possibly won't contribute much stiffness either since the yarn does not absorb moisture readily. It is, however, worth a try.

If these curtains were purchased at a reliable store here in town, I think it would be worth your while to take them back to the store where purchased and discuss the situation with the buyer in the curtain department. When he sees them he may be able to determine the cause of your difficulty. Reliable stores welcome an opportunity to do what is possible to eliminate customer disappointments in merchandise when it can be established that the merchandise is faulty.

Can you give me the name and telephone number of the Hospital Closet in Maryland from which hospital supplies can be borrowed? E. M. F.

The Loan Chest is operated by the Silver Spring Women's Club and is under the supervision of Mrs. Minna P. Loeschke. She can be reached by calling Sligo 1891. This organization loans all sorts of sick room supplies from hospital beds to thermometers to persons in Silver Spring and vicinity. In order that more persons can be served, they limit the loan period for each item to six months.

My problem is a cement basement floor which I would like to paint. Condensation in the summer time, however, ruins the ordinary paint jobs which our neighbors have tried, even with special sealing. Can you tell me of any new product, such as a rubber-coat-base paint that will lick this problem. And, of course, where to get it.

E. M. F.

There is a cement floor paint on the market with a rubber base which is impervious to moisture and alcohol and will wear twice as long as cement paints without the rubber base. There are several good brands on the market and they can be purchased at well stocked paint stores. Ask for concrete floor paint with a rubber base. To apply, first etch the floor by washing with a 10 per cent muriatic acid solution. Allow to stand 10 minutes or so until it stops foaming and wash away. Allow floor to dry and apply paint. Muriatic acid is corrosive so be sure to wear old clothes and gloves when working with it.

About Nylon Curtain Care

How should I properly clean the inside of a silver-plated teapot which hasn't been used for more than 30 years? It has been packed away in the attic. P. H. H.

To thoroughly clean, scour the inside of the pot with a household cleaner and steel wool. Use a small brush to clean the spout and any other areas which cannot be scoured by a cloth. After every inside spot has been scoured, wash well in hot, sudsy water and rinse. If there is any trace of odor remaining, fill with boiling water and add a handful of washing soda.

The Film 'Riley' Is True to Radio

By Richard L. Coe

"THE LIFE OF RILEY," at Keith's, is unblushingly lowbrow but it is certainly a good audience laugh-getter.

Radio addicts are probably familiar with the adventures of this bumbling family man, a talkative, slow-witted bungler whom his family and friends both love and admire. The screen version, a speedy if jerkily paced affair, finds the character's creator, William Bendix, happily enjoying himself just as much as Keith's first audience decidedly did yesterday.

Irving Brecher, who writes the radio serial, has written and directed the screen version, which probably will continue on as a cycle as long as the writing-acting team cares to keep spinning. As a screen play, "The Life of Riley" is wildly episodic and jiggles along as though you're listening to several months of half hours thrown together.

The humor is best illustrated by examples:

"I know you're speechless," says Bill to his chattering wife, Rosemary DeCamp, "but let me get a word in edgewise."

"I got the whole thing in the hollow of my head."

"An executive is only as good as his underdogs."

"Put the money in your stocking," he tells a parched old lady. "It will be safe there."

After accusing his wife of having had her name tattooed on his friend's chest and she asks him about the mermaid on his own back, Riley replies: "After we were married I had the decency to have your face painted on her."

Undertaker's Humor

An undertaker, of long, sallow visage, is a favorite character, weaving in and out of the "story" for gag value. His maxims, uttered in sepulchral tones, bring down the house: "The grass is always greener on the other fellow." "You may not like flowers at first, but they'll grow on you."

These efforts are tossed into one of those stories dear to radio serial writers about how worthy the poor are (poor, that is, on $60 a week, which is considerably higher than most of the people in the land average) and how foolish and empty are the rich. This dramaturgical device, as old as drama itself, once more works like magic on an audience.

But the resulting movie is carelessly enjoyable. "The Life of Riley" was not made for those who look on radio humor as a threat to civilization.

Animal League Lists 14,935 'Guests' in '48

The Washington Animal Rescue League housed a total of 14,935 animals at its shelter, 71 O st. nw., during 1948, the group reported yesterday at its annual meeting held at the shelter.

More than 9000 of these were cats or kittens, and over 3000 were dogs, with the rest listed as miscellaneous.

The league's three ambulances, on 24-hour call, rolled up a total of 30,000 miles during the year. Its clinic, open daily from 3 to 6 p. m. at the shelter, treated an average of 500 animals monthly, the report said.

Total expenses for the year, the Chest agency reported, were $13,974.

The league reelected its entire slate of officers and members of the board of directors yesterday, according to a report signed by Mrs. John W. Morrell, secretary. Mrs. Spencer Cosby is president.

Catholic Youth Work Meeting Hears Leaders

Shift of young Catholic farmers to the cities is the great weakness of the church in America, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. L. G. Ligutti, executive secretary of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference, said last night.

He told the several hundred clergy and laymen attending the second National Conference on Catholic Youth Work at the Shoreham Hotel that neglect of rural recreation work aggravated this situation.

To Counteract Trend

To counteract the trend, which finds 7 out of 10 Catholic rural-born youths heading for the cities, Monsignor Ligutti suggested the establishment of "young Christian farmers' cells."

The aim of these units, he said, would be to develop "an appreciation of the fact that the rural home is the natural habitat of the Christian family; that ownership and management of even a small amount of productive property are the greatest safeguards against Communism; that physical labor is ennobling and that farm work is not as fatiguing as mass-production work."

The Rev. Thomas D. O'Connor, pastor and youth director of the Immaculate Conception Parish, Baltimore, asked the delegates to emphasize the "spiritual view" in their youth activities.

In a welcoming address, Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle, of Washington, urged youth workers not to isolate the Catholic youth organization. It should be an integral part of school, home and church life, he said.

Movies, Press Scored

Earlier, the Rev. Edgar Schmiedeler, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference in Washington, scored the movies, press and radio for undermining the spiritual aspects of marriage in favor of a view of marriage as a "bargain-basement" affair.

These media, he said, have substituted a "changing, man-made marriage for God's own plan; family life has suffered much and profoundly as a result of this great ideological ferment."

At a morning session, the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, said that young people should be taught to respect the channels of organization in their work.

The conference will enter its third day today with sessions scheduled on cultural, athletic and religious phases of the youth program. The Most Rev. Richard O. Gerow, Bishop of Natchez, Miss., will preside at a formal luncheon. The conference will close Friday with a meeting of diocesan scout chaplains.

Rulings Asked On Methods of School Finance

State Senator Charles R. Fenwick said yesterday he had queried the Virginia Attorney General on the legality of three methods of financing school construction.

Fenwick, who represents Arlington County in the General Assembly, said he had asked Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond:

1. Can the Governor transfer unbudgeted and unearmarked surpluses to the State Literary Fund for loans to local school boards "without prior authorization of the Legislature?

2. Can local school board borrow from the State Retirement Fund to build schools and, if so, is any legislative act needed to authorize such loans?

3. Can local school boards borrow from State funds earmarked to retire bonded indebtedness, and is a legislative approval needed?

Fenwick said that if funds could be obtained without calling a special session of the Legislature and without changing the tax structure, it would serve as a stop-gap until the Legislature convenes next January.

Earlier this year, the Fairfax School Emergency Committee set up to find school construction funds, charged the State had nearly $85,000 in surplus funds available that could be diverted for school purposes.

He achieved world fame in scientific circles, by finding a hitherto unknown type of particle, the meson.

Press Warned Government Threatens It

New York, April 27 (AP).—American Newspaper Publishers were told today that advocates of big Government have been gnawing away at the press."

The statement came from David W. Howe, retiring president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, at the association's 63rd annual convention.

He said the great expansion of Government activities means "there are several times as many public officials to watch."

Sees Reporting Smothered

Also, Howe declared, there is "an enormous Government propaganda bureau" which he said is "tending to smother in some degree all objective and searching reporting."

William Baumrucker, jr., of the New York Daily News, head of the ANPA mechanical research committee, told the convention that as an "oversimplification" he would "like to say that our business has no labor problem insofar as costs are concerned. Our true problems of cost right now are, to a very large extent, problems concerned with our lack of desire, lack of willingness, lack of ability and perhaps just downright fear to make use of methods, processes and equipment now available to us."

Thomas W. Young of Norfolk, Va., president of the Negro Newspaper Publishers Association, told the ANPA members that the 135 Negro papers in the country "consider that a major purpose for their being is to protest and expose every condition inconsistent with the democratic concepts we all treasure."

Agree on Buyers' Market

Representatives of all major advertising media, taking part in an afternoon session sponsored by the ANPA Bureau of Advertising, agreed that the Nation now has entered a buyers' market with hard, competitive selling necessary.

Harold S. Barnes, ANPA advertising head, cited new records in advertising volume.

In 1948, Barnes said, newspaper advertising set a new record for the third straight year and the first quarter of 1949 showed a 17 per cent gain over the same period last year.

Bill Increases GI Protection in Military Court

A bill providing more protection for a serviceman when he is tried in a military court was approved unanimously yesterday by the House Armed Services Committee.

The measure provides for a complete overhaul of the military justice system, often criticized as too harsh, and establishes for the first time a uniform code of law for the Army, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard.

Prof. E. M. Morgan, Harvard University law school, said the bill would provide "more protection for the accused than in any other system of justice, automatically and without cost."

As an over-all safeguard, also, the bill would create a new "military court of appeals," headed by three civilian lawyers appointed by the Presicent and serving for life at $17,500 a year. They could review all major sentences imposed by courts martial.

Furnishings Sold For Restaurant's Delinquent Taxes

Furnishings of the swank Stables Restaurant at 2620 E st. nw. were sold at auction for $3200 yesterday to satisfy delinquent personal property taxes totaling $2800.

The equipment was purchased by Allan A. Merine of the New England Raw Bar, on the Municipal Wharf. Merine said he would reopen the restaurant if he is able to obtain a lease for use of the structure from the Federal Government.

Tax Collector Guy W. Pearson said the tax bill at the time of seizure totaled $2005, but later the 1949 taxes were added. A $279 water bill also has been entered against the proceeds, but a corporation counsel's ruling is being awaited on whether the District may deduct this amount, Pearson said.

Larceny Suspect's Arrest Held Legal

Police were legally justified in arresting a larceny suspect on information relayed by the police radio dispatcher, Judge Ellen K. Raedy of Municipal Court ruled yesterday.

The defendant, James A. Marshall, 21, of 202 New York ave. nw., was arrested without a warrant after the dispatcher gave Marshall's description as a man wanted in the theft of shirts valued at $60. It turned out the shirts were valued at only $39.

Judge Raedy continued bond at $300 for Marshall and set trial for May 18.

Rapillo Held to Court On Mail Fraud Charge

Jerry Rapillo, 40, former Berlin (Md.) police chief, was held for Federal grand jury action in Alexandria yesterday on charges of using the mails to defraud and operating a business under a fictitious name.

United States Commissioner Stanley King ordered Rapillo to post $1000 bond. The charges arose from the complaint of a Clifton (N. J.) man that he ordered cigarettes at a reduced price from Rapillo's Alexandria firm and failed to receive them, although he mailed a check for $27 to the defendant.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Warm Reception Awaits Prowlers Here

Local burglars are hereby warned that a good place to stay away from is 4211 8th st. nw.

Commenting on the complaint of a District Liner that the city had put up a bright street light outside his bedroom window, Mrs. Luella M. Moyer of the 8th st. address tells me:

"It's fortunate that we humans aren't all alike. The street light which now illuminates the front of my house has given me such a feeling of security that I sleep like a baby. As a matter of fact, I have been tempted to remove the gun from under my pillow, thereby ending a practice of more than half a century."

IT'S A BOY, PODNER; HAVE A CHAW!

Mrs. E. A. Arneson of 4110 Fairfax st., Landover Hills, Md., reports that her husband was given a cigar by a brand new papa the other night, and that led to quite a discussion of the influence of the baby boom on the cigar business. The question was raised:

Did the wartime increase in births affect the sale of cigars?

Local wholesalers say that it undoubtedly did, but they can't tell how much. During and after the war, many people were given cigars by proud fathers, and thereby acquired a yen for El Ropos, or whatever the brand.

But, of course, there were other factors, too. People had more money to spend—and a harder time finding their favorite cigarettes.

Currently, the cigar industry reports that the baby boom has died down, but the cigar business is still perking right along.

When sales start to slip, maybe they'll finally reduce prices a bit.

Meantime, what this country needs is a good 5-cent cigar that you can buy for less than 10 cents.

TRAFFIC JAM SESSION

The morning mail is unusually heavy with traffic matters today.

S. Butcher of R. F. D. 2, Falls Church, Va., wonders whether we can't do something about buses that stop right smack in the middle of the highway while taking on and discharging passengers.

"I suppose," he muses, "that only a madman would suggest that the bus companies should provide turnouts for their equipment, to eliminate this hazard."

Ed Pearson of 4421 Southern ave. se. (Badge No. 80, W. M. & A. Lines) takes exception to our recent item in which another District Liner said I was being too easy on bus drivers. Ed says:

"Don't be irked when we ask you to move to the rear; we're just trying to make room for others just like you.

"We're sorry that we can't wait for everybody who is running for his bus, but we have schedules to maintain—and if we're late you should hear the groans and grumbles from our passengers. They count on us to get there on time.

"And of course no bus driver likes to start and stop with a series of jerks, or throw his passengers around. But traffic conditions sometimes make quick stops necessary."

A good rebuttal, Ed—and another bus driver, J. J. McK. of 1344 Bryant st. ne. adds one more thought. He says it's our taxi drivers who cause many of those quick stops, by whipping in front of a bus and causing the operator to hit his brakes with a bang.

Speaking of hackers, Jerry Cowden of 315 Bradley lane, Chevy Chase, Md., reports that they unnecessarily complicate his life. Says Jerry:

"Why do the police let the cab drivers loiter in the curb lane (on Pennsylvania ave., for example, near the Raleigh) so that I have to drive around them to make a right turn—and then the cops forbid me to make the turn, because I'm in the wrong lane?"

Why, indeed, Jerry? I've often wondered myself. The only explanation is that there's nothing slower on our streets than a cruising cab looking for a passenger, and nothing faster than a loaded cab, trying to save 15 seconds in delivering its passengers, so that it can start cruising again.

GIVE-AWAYS

Five beautiful kittens, born on Washington's Birthday." (Glebe 7616.)

"Six little kittens, 3 weeks old and very cute." (Georgia 6317.)

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

John Powell of 4218 70th ave., Landover Hills, Md., tells me that a Prince Georges Post reporter recently paid a visit to a disk jockey who was described as:

"The composer of several hit songs, including 'I Love You For Seventy Mental Reasons.'"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Senators Plow Up Pact Problems

By Drew Pearson

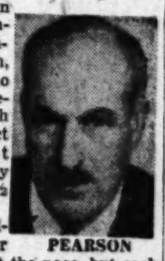
Terse, urgent questions affecting our hopes for peace came boiling to the top the other day behind the closed doors of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Answering them, the men who must implement the North Atlantic Pact were kept under steady fire for 4½ hours.



PEARSON

Big, bull-voiced Senator Vandenberg set the pace, but each Senator got a load of questions off his chest. They combed the pact's fine print for pitfalls and loopholes, and searched for hidden meanings between the lines. As a result, many tough problems were plowed up.

The chief target in this verbal shooting gallery were Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of Defense Johnson and ECA Ambassador Harriman. They talked brilliantly, but not quite enough, to please the Senators.

"I can't be offmand and free about information that involves other countries," Acheson retorted impatiently, when pressed for details.

Johnson also buttoned up during a barrage of questions on atomic energy from Senator McMahon of Connecticut. The queries were based on secret information that McMahon had learned at the Pentagon, and Johson objected to going into detail in front of committee clerks. This caused McMahon to declare that he wouldn't support the pact if he couldn't get the information he wanted.

"If the price of the Senator's vote," bristled Johnson, is my violation of what I consider the security of the Nation, then we may have to forgo the Senator's vote."

Senate Stairs Too Steep

To add to the turmoil, the meeting was interrupted 13 times by rollcall votes on the Senate floor. This kept the Senators straggling up and down stairs to the Senate floor until 71-year-old Senator George of Georgia finally snorted in disgust:

"By God, I can't go up and down those stairs any more!"

And he quit the meeting.

Another problem was how much to tell the press. Vandenberg was against issuing any release until the Secretary of State formally presented the military program to Congress. The Michigan Republican warned, however, that "Drew Pearson has a dictaphone hidden in here."

Later, Chairman Tom Connally stamped angrily into the meeting after a trip upstairs to vote.

"Somebody has already leaked the amount (of the proposed military aid)," he thundered. "Some newspaperman told me the figure and asked if that was correct."

After this incident, it was agreed to release an outline of the $1,130,000,000 plan to help rearm the North Atlantic treaty nations. Here are the other highlights of the meeting.

Senator Vandenberg wanted to clarify the important question of whether the pact was just another old-fashioned military alliance or a genuine instrument of collective security. He pointed out that the U. N. Charter recognizes the right of nations to "collective self-defense" in case of attack.

The Charter, however, adds in Article 51: "Measures taken by members (of the U. N.) in the exercise of this right of self-defense shall be immediately reported to the Security Council."

Does this mean, Vandenberg asked, that the treaty nations must report their secret defense plans to the Security Council—where Russia has ease access? This was something none of them wanted to do, but Senator Pepper of Florida warned that the pact, itself, promised to abide by the U. N. Charter.

Secretary Acheson explained, however, that the only "measures" we are obliged to report to the Security Council are whatever measures may be taken jointly—after an armed attack occurs.

ONLY ARMS TO EUROPE?

"What I want to know," chimed in Utah's Senator Elbert Thomas, "is what do you mean by the rearmament of Europe? One thing Europe knows how to do is arm. The idea of supplying arms seems archaic unless we give them our best bombs and techniques. But if we do that, I am against the whole program.

"The aim of the Atlantic Pact is to bring about an atmosphere to make arms unnecessary. If we are not going to teach the processes of peace, we may as well quit now, because the world knows all the processes of war."

Thomas also warned against building up a "United States Army of Europe." Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, on the other hand, argued that a composite army would be more effective than several miniature armies.

Another question, raised by several Senators, was whether to furnish Europe with American-made arms or help the treaty nations manufacture their own arms. If the United States tries to produce all the armaments needed for the allied world, the production and logistics problem, it was argued would be terrific. But, on the other hand, plants built in Europe would be easy prey to the Russians and might be turned against us. No one had a ready answer for this.

Before Senator George walked out, he was in a negative mood toward anything that cost more money and warned that every move we made in Europe only implicated us deeper. Many Senators were also angry with the Administration for pushing the arms program before the treaty is even ratified.

Acheson's reply was that hte arms program was the only logical way of implementing the pact. Averell Harriman reported that the Marshall Plan had saved Italy from disintegration and had stiffened the upper lip of other Western nations. All they needed now was the arms, he declared, to make a strong stand against any aggressor.

Wealthy oil heiress Perle Mesta, social arbiter for the Trumans, will shortly be rewarded by an appointment as first lady ambassador to either Denmark or Luxembourg. (Mrs. Mesta used to be a Republican.) . . . The Joint Chiefs of Staff have decided to equip our Western European allies with the famous M-1 Garand rifle. Reason behind the move: The U. S. has six million Garands in surplus and is planning to make a new, improved model for American troops . . . George Kennan, now chief of the State Department's policy-planning staff, will be promoted to counselor, replacing Chip Bohlen, who moves to Paris. However, Kennan will continue his important job of trying to anticipate what the Russians will do next.
